BLOW TO THE FREE STATE

British Regard Irish Chief's Death as Irreparable Loss to His Country.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Michael Collins's death is regarded in circles in close touch with the realities of the Irish situation as deplorable, not only in its removal of a brave soldier and a loyal supporter of the treaty, but also in depriving Ireland in the moment of her greatest stress of one of the very few men who had succeeded in attaining real leadership. As The Evening Standard says tonight:

"What threatens is not the strength of the enemies of the Free State but the weakness of its supporters, and we have to fear not so much the sharp agonies of a vigorously renewed civil war but the rot of more and more anarchy."

In the weary months of strife which preceded the peace negotiations of a year ago the British Government found that one of its chief difficulties lay in discovering any man who could speak with authority for Irish opinion. Eamon de Valera was in America, Arthur Griffith professed to have nothing to do with the militant Sinn Fein and Michael Collins had not yet emerged on the political stage. Sir Horace Plunkett, Lord Midleton and countless other moderate of various types were ready to suggest all kinds of solutions for the Irish problem, but not one of them possessed the one essential qualification of the ability to deliver the goods.

Then came the peace negotiations, and at least one factor in their success was the gratification that the British Government felt when it realized that at last it was face to face with men who had the confidence of the Irish people and who could make a bargain in their name.

Now the question arises, Who will take the places of Collins and Griffith? The newspapers tonight remark how strangely the Free State has lost the services of four of the five signatories to the treaty. Collins and Griffith are dead, Robert C. Barton has gone over to Eamon de Valera, George Gavan Duffy has resigned through disagreement with the Provisional Government's domestic policy on courts and other matters. Only E. J. Dugan remains available. He, however, does not seem to be of sufficient weight to carry on Griffith's and Collins's work.

It seems more probable that Alderman Cosgrave and General Mulcahy will now take the lead. Many people, says an Irish publicist, writing in The Star, think Mulcahy is an abler man than Collins. It was his decision to support the Free State that sealed the fate of de Valera's revolt, and he has a clear understanding of the actualities of Ireland's situation. He knows, says The Star's informant, that if Great Britain decided to resume control of Ireland the Irish army would be powerless to resist for long, and he recognized that the treaty gives Ireland a great measure of national independence.

Cosgrave is also uncommonly able and fair-minded, and it is to be hoped that the situation will clear up when the new Irish Parliament meets in a few days

Premier Lloyd George received the news by telephone from London while he was in bed at Criccieth at 5 o'clock in the morning. He was greatly distressed and at once arose and got into communication with several members of the British Government.

Collins possessed just that touch of courage and adventure which appeals to the Welsh instincts of the Prime Minister. The story is quite authentic that on his entry into Downing Street Collins took down an old carbine and shouldered it and that Lloyd George took down a Welsh shepherd's crook and in offering it to him said: "This is our national weapon and is a better emblem of peace."

The Prime Minister was also much interested by what he termed the boy in Collins's nature, for the Irish leader was always ready to joke and to give play to his wits in the most serious moments of the negotiations.

The members of the Government have frequently said that the negotiations in these latter days with the Irish representatives never had a real chance until Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins came over. In the words of Sir Robert Horne, they were a perfectly complementary, while Griffith was a statesman, far-seeing and cool in emergencies, Collins had both courage and confidence. Every Minister in the Government was convinced of the honest sincerity of these two leaders, who sup-

Free State Leaders Promise Irishmen To Carry On the Work of Dead Chief

The death of Michael Collins is a terrible blow to the Irish nation at a time when it stood in the greatest need of his wise and courageous guidance. But we are confident that the example of his life is impressed upon the minds of the people by this tragedy and will raise their spirits to face the difficulties in this great crisis as he faced them, and to triumph over them.

His death has sealed his work and the nation is resolved to bring his work to triumph.

The Irish Government this afternoon issued the following statement:

The greatest and bravest of our countrymen has been snatched from us at a moment when victory smiled through the clouds upon the rising up of the nation to which he had dedicated all the powers of his magnificent manhood.

The genius and courage of Michael Collins lent force and inspiration to the race and brought the long fight against the external enemy to a triumphant end, which had become almost a dream, and swept before it the domestic revolt which tried to pluck from your hands the fruits of that triumph of your unchallenged authority in the land.

In every phase of the awakened activity of the nation, the construction, administration and execution of the military, the personality of Michael Collins was vivid and impelling. He has been slain to our unutterable grief and loss. But he cannot die. He will live in the rule of the people, which he gave his great best to assert and confirm and which his colleagues undertake as a solemn charge to maintain.

COLLINS DIED FACING ODDS OF TEN TO ONE

LAST WORDS 'FORGIVE THEM'

Body Is Being Taken From Cork to Dublin for National Funeral Monday.

CORK, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Michael Collins fell fighting to the last what seemed at first an overwhelming force of irregulars, who ambushed his little party in a wild mountain road between Macroon and Bandon.

The Commander in Chief of the National Army had been visiting Cork and, accompanied by the members of his headquarters staff, left at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning to inspect the military positions south of Cork. He was escorted by a light armored car and a lorry carrying soldiers. Altogether the party is believed to have numbered about a score, including General Sean O'Connell, commander of the bodyguard, and Major Gen. Dalton, commander of the Free State troops in Cork.

A dispatch rider preceded the large touring car with Collins and other officers; then followed a whippet armored car, while an ordinary open tender brought up the rear. The party visited nearly all the posts to the south of Cork occupied by the National Army, among them Skibbereen, Ross Carbery and Clonakilty. At each place the officer commanding was interviewed and the party enthusiastically greeted.

Owing to the interruption of communication by the main road, the party toward evening took a roundabout route for Cork from Bandon. Bealnablath, which is eight miles from Macroon, lies to the south of the main road on the south side of the River Lee, in a hilly, rugged district. While proceeding by road near this village at 6:30 o'clock in the evening the party was ambushed by about 200 irregulars.

The battle opened with a few shots fired by the attacking forces. The Nationals were taken by surprise, and one of the first bullets nearly struck Collins before his car stopped, missing him by only an inch or two. The Nationals hastily dismounted and General Collins himself assumed leadership. A hail of bullets sweeping the road left him quite unmoved, his first thought being for the safety of his men, whom he ordered to take cover at the fences on both sides of the road.

At the very outset the dispatch rider in front was badly wounded in the lungs, and under the direction of the Commander-in-Chief was removed to temporary safety. Then the Nationals settled down to reply to the fire, and the fact that they were faced by a far superior number did not daunt either Collins or his officers, and within a few minutes the attack developed into a grim engagement, fiercely contested.

Killed in Last Stages of Fight.

Every man of the ambushed party had been tried repeatedly and had proved his bravery and coolness in action, and all of them showed steadiness in the battle, which lasted close to an hour. It was in the very last stages that Michael Collins was killed. It is asserted that the carefully directed fire of the Nationals took heavy toll, a large number of irregulars being killed or wounded.

For forty-five minutes the only casualty on the side of the Nationals was the dispatch rider. The fighting was nearly ended and the irregulars were on the point of retreating, defeated despite their overwhelming number and advantageous position, and the firing had become less intense, when suddenly Col-

PROPOSAL IN ITALY TO ANNEX AUSTRIA

PARIS BACKS 'LITTLE ALLIES'

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Aug. 23.—Now that the internal situation in Italy has returned to comparative normalcy, the Cabinet is free again to turn its attention to foreign policy, especially to the situation of Austria, which is fraught with many dangers for Italy. As is known, the Austrian Chancellor, Dr. Seipel, visited Prague while King Alexander of Jugoslavia and his Premier, Pasich, were conferring in Marienbad with the President of Czechoslovakia and his Premier, Benes, whose ambition to make Czechoslovakia the arbiter of Central Europe is well known.

In these negotiations Italy sees France's attempt to make Austria join the Little Entente. Official circles here point out that the underlying principle of the whole French policy in Central Europe is the formation of an anti-German coalition ready to rush to France's aid in the event of any future trouble with Germany. Paris therefore aims to prevent the union of Austria with Germany. As Austria, however, is doomed if she continues in her present state of isolation, France has conceived the plan of getting Austria into the Little Entente.

In other words, France, in pursuing her policy of isolating Germany politically as well as financially and economically, finds herself forced by the nature of things to pursue a policy opposed to Italian interests. Italy, which lived for years with the constant nightmare of having a powerful Austro-Hungarian empire as a neighbor, is now confronted by the possibility of seeing the States which composed the Dual Monarchy uniting in a new federation just as anti-Italian as the old one, but strengthened by the addition of Serbia, Rumania and Poland.

This would obtain the twofold object of saving Austria financially and economically through the assistance of the Little Entente and tying Vienna down to an alliance which must necessarily be anti-German.

If such is the French plan—as the Italian Foreign Ministry believes—the anxiety of Senator Schanzer and those who direct Italian foreign policy is quite justified. The strengthening of the Little Entente means not only the strengthening of the anti-German compact, but also the strengthening of a coalition which is bound to be anti-Italian owing to the presence therein of Jugoslavia, which Italy considers as her arch-enemy, and Austria, which cannot forgive Italy for the annexation of Tyrol.

Against such a coalition Italy has determined to fight with all her might. For this reason an economic union between Italy and Austria has been suggested, a union which might be especially helpful to the two countries.

The rumor has gone so far as to suggest that the Duke of Aosta, first cousin of King Victor, and the brilliant leader of one of the Italian armies of the war, might be appointed Viceroy.

The Duke of Aosta cannot forget that his father, Prince Amedeo, accepted in December, 1870, the crown of Spain. Although having ruled three years as a constitutional sovereign he was forced to give up the throne and leave the country under danger for his life. His brother, the Duke of the Abruzzi, several times has been offered and as

Ohio Republicans Ignore Ship Subsidy And Fail to Mention the Fordney Tariff

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 23.—After a bitter struggle in the Committee on Resolutions, the Ohio Republican State Convention today rejected a ship subsidy plank which was brought from Washington by Congressman S. D. Fess, Republican candidate for United States Senator.

There was no explanation for the attitude. There was no mention whatever of merchant marine or ship subsidy, though a fight for the subsidy plank, for which President Harding already has appealed to Congress in a special message, was made by Representative Fess, Carmi Thompson, candidate for Governor; Walter Brown of Toledo, Harding's Chairman of the committee at Washington for reorganization of Government bureaus, and also by Senator Willis, who appeared before the committee just before midnight last night.

There was no mention either of the Fordney-McCumber tariff measure now in the process of enactment at Washington. The tariff plank was a statement of a demand for a tariff representing the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, with no specific mention of the pending bill.

The platform omitted mention of the soldiers' bonus. It was very cordial in its expression toward President Harding and carried the slogan "Stand by the President," who was told that Ohio still has confidence in the "great and illustrious President in the White House."

HOFBRAU IS RAIDED; $25,000 LIQUOR HAUL

WATCH OTHER RESTAURANTS

Led by E. B. Henson, chief assistant to Zone Chief John D. Appleby, general Federal prohibition agents descended yesterday afternoon upon Janssen's Hofbrau Haus, 1,214 Broadway, at Thirtieth Street, and, armed with a search warrant issued by United States Commissioner Samuel Hitchcock, searched the place from the cellar to the top floor.

It was on the top floor that the agents reported finding between $25,000 and $30,000 worth of choice liquors and wines, most of which had been imported. The liquors were seized and removed to the Knickerbocker Warehouse, which is used as a Government depository. The raid began at 2 o'clock, but it was after 6 o'clock when the last truckload of the seized liquor left the restaurant for the warehouse.

No arrests were made, but summonses were left for August Janssen, owner, who was reported to be out of the city; Frits Singer, manager, and Louis Brackman, a waiter, who is alleged to have sold Prohibition Agents John P. O'Neill and Charles Lacaron beer at 40 cents a glass. It was on the reported purchase of beer that the search warrant was issued. In the raid yesterday the agents said they found a quantity of beer in bottles in the basement, besides a number of kegs from which draught beer had been served.

The Hofbrau Haus is one of the best-known restaurants in the city and in the pre-prohibition days was always crowded with patrons, day and night. Even since prohibition came it was retained its popularity to a great extent, many of the old patrons going there regularly for their meals, regardless of the Volstead restrictions.

The agents said this was the first raid made on the restaurant by Federal enforcers. Incidentally, it was the largest haul made by prohibition agents in some time and among the largest ever made in a restaurant in the city. The raids on Jack's, at Forty-third Street and Sixth Avenue, some months ago, and at Shine's on Seventh Avenue, between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets, were the most productive previous raids on mid-town restaurants.

The manager of the Hofbrau protested the seizure by the Federal agents, declaring that the liquors had been purchased prior to prohibition. The agents said that the question of time of purchase did not enter into the case at all, taking the position that sales had been made from the stock.

Two representatives of the restaurant aided the Federal agents in making an inventory of the seized liquors and it was said for the restaurant that it was hoped to regain possession of the goods through the courts.

Employes of the restaurant refused to open the doors to the rooms on the top floor, where the liquor was stored. The agents broke down the hallway door on the top floor and also the doors leading to two rooms.

The third room, used by the restaurant as the linen room, was opened for the agents. Some liquor, the agents said, also was found in the linen room. The search downstairs was conducted so quietly that the score or more patrons in the place were not disturbed and few knew what was going on. Later on, when the dining rooms were crowded, the patrons noticed the boxes being carried out through the aisles between the tables, but "dry" raids have become such a common occurrence in New York that they created no excitement. Only a few spectators gathered on the sidewalk from time to time to watch the truckmen load the liquors.

This is the second restaurant raid in the last few days, and it was hinted last night that other places are to be visited with search warrants before the week is out.

The staff of general agents in this city is constantly growing, mostly by transfer from the staff of Director Loy. Two agents, Rhinehardt and Brown, were transferred yesterday to the general agents under Zone Chief Appleby. The transfer always carries an increase in pay of several hundred dollars a year. Rhinehardt has been one of the most productive agents in the White Light district of the city, probably because he appears more at home in evening dress than most agents.

Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith recently went over to the general agents and are now getting a salary of $3,000 a year each, instead of $2,250 as formerly. They left yesterday for Albany and Saratoga Springs, where they will appear as witnesses in cases to come up for preliminary hearing.

Three cases of whisky were reported stolen early yesterday morning from the warehouse of the Sherwood Distilling Company, 358 West Forty-third Street. A five-ton truck was used to break down a fourteen-foot door, through which the robbers entered. An electric protective system sounded an alarm, but the truck and its occupants were out of sight before the police arrived.

W. Z. FOSTER SEIZED IN RADICAL ROUNDUP

SEEK ROSE PASTOR STOKES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—In the arrest of William Z. Foster, head of the Trades Union Educational League, in Chicago tonight, the seizure of seventeen members of the Communist Party of America and a nationwide search for more than fifty other persons, including Rose Pastor Stokes of New York, Federal and Michigan State authorities tonight announced the breaking up of one of the greatest radical conspiracies of recent years.

Most of those held were captured in a midnight raid in the hills of Berrien County, Michigan, twelve miles south of Benton Harbor. There the "Reds" had assembled their annual convention in a heavily timbered valley. Pine knots furnished the light by which their business was transacted. There they heard the reports of personal representatives of Lenin and Trotsky; there, the Federal officials aver, plans whereby the existing railroad strike was to be used as a means of spreading their program of violence were discussed.

For three days Federal officials watched them, powerless to act without authority from Washington. Then came a tip to the radicals and all but seventeen disappeared within an hour.

The rest were surrounded by sixty Deputy Sheriffs, members of the Michigan State Constabulary and agents of the Department of Justice, and seized.

Foster Seized at His Office.

Foster, one of the escaping ones, was trailed to Chicago. He turned up at his office at 118 North La Salle Street today. He was arrested just after he had issued a statement denying his implication in the convention. He was taken to the detective bureau, thence to the Fiftieth Street Station, while warrants and extradition papers were awaited.

Mrs. Stokes was also one of the escaping ones, Federal officials say. She is particularly wanted; her home in New York City is being watched, it is said here, as well as the homes of her numerous acquaintances.

The Communist Party of America was organized in Chicago in 1919. During its early struggles schism developed in its ranks, and later the Communist Labor Party was organized from the dissatisfied element. The remaining element was the ultra-radical group—those who openly avowed their belief that violence was the only method by which they could hope to overthrow the Government of the United States. At first they were an open organization. Then, on New Year's Day, 1920, agents, under the direction of State's Attorney Hoyne, swooped down on their quarters in a series of raids which netted virtually all their leaders. A few escaped. Many were convicted.

Since that time the party has been working at all times under cover. Now and then pamphlets would appear from some mysterious source. In each case they were revolutionary in tone, "Hang the Capitalists and Seize the Government," was their motto.

Last year a convention was held in the hills of Michigan. The Federal authorities appeared, but two days too late.

Agent Tells of Session.

This year the story is different. Last Thursday morning strangers began dropping from trains at St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, Mich. All later turned up at the Forest House, a resort conducted by Karl Wulfskeel and his wife, an eighth of a mile from the village of Bridgeman.

By Saturday morning there were sixty of them and on Saturday morning Agents Spolanski and Edward Shanahan of the Department of Justice left Chicago on a mysterious mission. All Saturday night these two men lay in a drizzling rain on a hilltop a mile from the Forest House watching the groups assemble and confer and disappear again. The rain did not bother these revolutionists. They built a bonfire and gathered around it, discussing their plans.

"The first man I saw and identified was Foster," Spolanski said tonight. "The second was Boris Reinstein, personal representative of the Communist International of Russia, sent here to aid Foster in his campaign of 'saving from within.'"

That night local representatives of the Department of Justice asked William J. Burns, Chief of the department at Washington, for authority to make arrests. Chief Burns in turn communicated with the Michigan State Constabulary. Through the latter Sheriff George Bridgeman of Berrien County was notified.

Sometime Sunday the radicals be-

ROADS STAND FIRM ON SENIORITY, 254 TO 4; MEDIATORS' ALTERNATIVE ALSO REJECTED, BUT A GROUP OF ROADS MAY CONSIDER IT

Carriers' Unwavering Stand on Seniority Declared by the Association's Chairman

Thomas De Witt Cuyler, Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, after the meeting of the member roads at the Yale Club, held yesterday, made the following statement:

"The various suggestions made by the Chairman of the train and engine service brotherhoods, as voluntary mediators, in respect to an adjustment of the pending strike of the shopcrafts, were fully considered, and the following preamble and resolutions were adopted by a vote of 254 to 4:

The committee appointed at the meeting of the railroads on Aug. 11 having been requested by the chief officers of the five train service organizations to meet them as mediators, reported to the meeting today that conferences in accordance with this invitation were held in the City of Washington on Aug. 12 and in the City of New York on Aug. 17 and 18.

At these conferences the position of the railroads, as reflected in the action taken on Aug. 11, was fully discussed, but the committee has reported that the officers of the train and engine service brotherhoods were unable to bring about an agreement on the part of the shop crafts.

At the conclusion of the conference on Friday, Aug. 18, an adjournment was taken to enable the committee to report the result of the conference to their associates, which report has been made today.

After discussion the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the committee is authorized to meet the representatives of the train and engine service brotherhoods again and state to them that the railroads adhere to the position heretofore taken, namely, that "the striking former employes cannot be given preference to employes at present in the service, without doing violence to every principle of right and justice involved in this matter and without the grossest breach of faith on the part of the railroads to the men at present in their service. Under these circumstances it becomes apparent that the railroads cannot consider any settlement of the present strike which does not provide protection in their present employment, both to the loyal employes who remained in the service and to the new employes entering it."

Resolved further, That unless the representatives of the striking former shop employes are prepared to accept that position, the railroads are unable to see wherein the efforts of mediation by the chief officers of the brotherhoods can harmonize these fundamental differences.

Resolved, That the railroads express their appreciation of the friendly intent and the earnest efforts that have been made by the chief officers of the train and engine service brotherhoods to compose the present situation, and express their sincere regrets that the situation has not permitted a successful termination of these efforts.

"These resolutions were at once communicated to the mediators by a committee appointed for the purpose. Upon delivering and reading the resolutions to the mediators they requested that they might appear personally before the member roads, which request was, of course, granted. The mediators thereupon joined the executives assembled at the Yale Club and made statements embodying their views of the situation.

"In the course of Mr. Sheppard's remarks, he, on behalf of the mediators, submitted a suggestion in the form of a memorandum which is fully quoted in my letter given below.

"They disclaimed any knowledge as to whether this suggestion would be accepted by the striking shopmen, but requested that it be considered by the association, and also that it be presented to any individual road that might be inclined to make a separate settlement. To this communication the association directed the following answer to be made today to the Chairmen of the five train service organizations, which was accordingly done:

Gentlemen:

The carriers have carefully considered the tentative suggestion you have today made, reading as follows:

First—All men to be reinstated in the position of the class they originally held on June 30, 1922, and as many of such men as possible are to be put to work Sept. 1, at present rates of pay and all employes who have been on strike to be put to work or under pay not later than Oct. 1 next, except such men as have been proven guilty of destruction of railroad property or convicted of crime, ordinary cases of assault and battery, the result of personal encounter, are to be disregarded.

Second—If a dispute arises as to the relative standing of an employe or employes that cannot be otherwise adjusted by the carrier and said employe or employes the matter shall be referred to the United States Railroad Labor Board, in accordance with the Transportation Act of 1920 by the organization, the employes or the carrier in the interest of any employe who may be aggrieved.

Third—No intimidation nor oppression shall be practised or permitted as against any of the employes who have remained or have taken service or as against those who resume service under this understanding.

Fourth—All suits at law now pending as the result of this strike to be withdrawn and cancelled by both parties.

The use by you in this suggestion of the term "reinstated" goes to the root of the differences between us.

You have repeatedly explained to our committee that this means an acknowledgement on the part of the carriers that the men returning to work under your proposition above quoted will be senior to the new men employed since July 1, 1922, and senior to the old men who remained in the service to the extent that the returning strikers were senior on June 30, 1922.

As this acknowledgement would doubtless control the decision of the Labor Board on a dispute submitted under your second paragraph as to seniority, and oblige it to render a decision against the old men who remained and the new men who entered the service, we cannot accept it.

I am,
Faithfully yours,
(Signed) THOMAS DeWITT CUYLER, Chairman.

"It may be, from the suggestion above mentioned of the mediators, that they will recommend to the leaders of the striking shopmen to permit settlements with individual roads, authority to make which has hitherto been declined by these leaders:

"While the basis suggested by the train and engine service brotherhood leaders interpreted as it is understood the brotherhood leaders interpret it, was not acceptable as submitted, a group of roads have determined to ascertain whether or not such modifications of it may be obtained by further negotiations between this group of roads and the mediators as will make the proposal acceptable to at least some of the roads under their special conditions, which, in that event, would consider the making of separate and individual settlements."

Coal Inquiry Bill Passed, 219 to 55; Labor Proposal Defeated By the House

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The House today by a vote of 219 to 55 passed the Administration bill for a commission composed entirely of impartial representatives of the public to investigate the coal industry. The amendment demanded by organized labor for a commission to be composed of operators and workers was overwhelmingly defeated. Several amendments were adopted to harmonize the bill with the Borah measure on the same subject. This action, it is believed, assures prompt action in the Senate tomorrow.

A bill fostered by the Administration establishing a Government price-fixing agency for the coal industry is expected to appear in Congress tomorrow, possibly accompanied by a letter from President Harding. Secretary Hoover and Attorney General Daugherty consulted with the President this morning on the final touches that were to be put to the measure.

Congressional leaders plan to dispose of all coal legislation leading out of President Harding's strike recommendations within a week. This developed from a conference that members of the New York delegation in the House had with Representative Mondell, Republican floor leader, this morning, when an appeal sent to Representative Mills from the New York State Coal Commission was brought to his attention.

Opposed by Labor Spokesman.

Opposition to the Administration's commission bill was represented chiefly by Representative Bland of Indiana, who, as spokesman for organized labor, unsuccessfully sought to have his measure providing for a commission of operators and workers substituted for the committee's bill. This opposition appeared to be very strong for a time. In fact, the Rules Committee through a desertion of three Republican members, Johnson of South Dakota, Schall of Minnesota and Dale of Vermont, agreed to substitute the Bland bill for the committee's report. These Republicans joined with the Democrats and overruled the majority.

There was a hasty consultation of leaders and the three deserting Republicans reconsidered their action and returned to the majority on consideration that the rule be liberalized. This was done. But finally the leaders determined that time could be saved by

STRIKERS OPPOSE PLAN

FINISH FIGHT IN PROSPECT

Chief of Shopcraft Workers Declares He Welcomes the Issue and Will Not Yield.

Mediation efforts of the chiefs of the five train service brotherhoods to settle the nation-wide shopmen's strike failed yesterday when the leading railway executives of the country, in conference here, reaffirmed with practical unanimity their stand against restoration of seniority rights. Determined to protect their loyal employes and new men, the executives also rejected an eleventh-hour peace proposal by the brotherhood chiefs that the strikers be reinstated "as of June 30," when the strike was called, without specific mention of seniority. The railroad executives held that this alternative proposal was unacceptable because it would automatically restore the seniority rights of the strikers.

An inquiry by the mediators as to whether the railroads would consider individual settlements on the basis of taking back the men "as of June 30," was discussed by a small group of roads. They said they would test the good faith of the negotiators in this matter, but declared that no settlements would be made on any basis that sacrificed the position of the main meeting on the seniority question.

"Mediators never talk," said Mr. Stone, when asked for a statement.

Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, acting as spokesman for this group of executives, said that there would be another conference today with the brotherhood chiefs, and urged newspapermen to refrain from speculating on the success of the negotiations. He said he would not divulge the time or place of the meeting.

"If you want to see us settle the strike, just give us a chance," he added.

The brotherhood chiefs immediately went into conference with the leaders of the striking shopmen at the Hotel Woodstock. It was understood that they were urging the shop crafts leaders to recede from their stand against individual settlements and continue negotiations.

The appointment of Mr. Willard as spokesman for the small group, in place of Hale Holden, President of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, who was first named, was regarded in some quarters as significant, as the President of the Baltimore & Ohio for some time has been pressing former employes of his road to accept separate peace. His offer was refused, and a few of the strikers' places were filled, it was understood.

Peace Door Shut, Says Jewell.

Immediately after the executives of the general meeting declared for a "finish fight" rather than compromise on the seniority issue, Bert M. Jewell, national leader of the striking shopmen, in a formal statement, said: "The 400,000 striking employes accept the challenge of the railroads" and "we will redouble our efforts, confident of success." He declared that the unions had offered "every concession within reason" and that the Association of Railway Executives by their action yesterday had "closed the door" to peace.

Mr. Jewell and other union leaders said that they had not authorized the brotherhood chiefs to make any suggestion of settlement with individual roads. "The strike must be settled on a national basis," declared Mr. Jewell.

Committee Reports Failure.

The action of the executives in reaffirming their stand on seniority and ending the mediation of the brotherhood chiefs came after a day of conferences. The main conference was attended by practically all of the 140 railroad Presidents of the country, and the vote was affirming the stand of the executives on seniority was 254 to 4. The only dissenting ballot was cast by S. Davies Warfield, President of the Seaboard Air Line, who held four votes. There was no explanation for his action.

When the conference was called to order by T. DeWitt Cuyler, Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, the Committee of Executives which participated in the negotiations with the brotherhood chiefs last night reported that it had been unable to report any basis of settlement. After a discussion, in which nearly a score of executives urged reiteration of the stand taken since the beginning of the strike to protect loyal and new employes, a resolution was adopted stating that unless the shopmen were willing to take this position the railroads were able to see wherein the efforts at mediation by the chief officers of the brotherhoods can harmonize these fundamental differences." The roads expressed their appreciation of the efforts of the mediators.

The executives communicated their action to the Brotherhood Committee, headed by Warren S. Stone, at a meeting in the board room of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad in Grand Central Terminal. The mediators then asked permission to appear personally before the main meeting of the executives. When this was granted, B. M. Shepherd, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, addressed the executives and submitted a memorandum which provided that all men be reinstated in the same classes as they held on June 30, at present rates of pay, only strikers proved guilty of violence to be barred; disputes to be referred to the Railroad Labor Board, the present force to be free from intimidation and all lawsuits to be withdrawn.

The mediators also said that they would recommend to the leaders of the striking shopmen to permit settlement with individual roads. They then withdrew.

After a brief conference the executives reiterated their stand and rejected the proposal, declaring that to accept it would be going against the old men and the new men, although the question of seniority was not mentioned. They explained that the suggestion of the term "reinstated" would be interpreted to mean the restoration of seniority. The roads' position is set forth in detail elsewhere in this issue in a statement by Mr. Cuyler.

When the executives adjourned their meeting without day, a group of executives, headed by Mr. Holden, held a brief meeting to consider the possibility of testing the mediators' suggestion regarding individual agreements. This action was at first believed to have been due to a split in the ranks of the executives as to the stand on seniority, but that later was proved erroneous.

After the conference of the group, which represented about twenty roads, Mr. Holden issued the following statement:

"At the conclusion of the general meeting of the Association of Railway Executives the members of a considerable number of individual railroads remained in further conference over a proposition submitted by the brotherhood officials. There was no dissent from the action taken at the main meeting.

Split of Executives Denied.

"There is no question of a split. The railroads are all standing pat on seniority and any individual settlement will have to be made in the light of that understanding."

Mr. Holden then requested a conference with the brotherhood mediators by telephone, and shortly after 9 o'clock last night the group of executives and the brotherhood chiefs entered on a long conference.

When newspaper men reached the headquarters of the striking shopmen and brotherhood chiefs after the executives' conference, Mr. Jewell and the other union leaders were anxiously awaiting the verdict.

"That means a fight to a finish," said Mr. Jewell, who immediately took exception to reports that the shopmen would favor individual settlements.

"No such proposal was authorized by our people," said William Johnston, President of the International Association of Machinists. Other union leaders also appeared much disturbed by the report and made it clear that peace would not come on such a basis.

Will Fight to End, Says Jewell.

Mr. Jewell, on behalf of the striking shopmen, issued the following statement:

"The Association of Railway Executives have closed the doors. The unions have offered every concession within reason to end the strike and to save the public from a breakdown of transportation, but the executives have made none. On the contrary, they have since the strike began raised an entirely new and irrelevant issue of their own—seniority—and their refusal to recede from their position have made a settlement impossible at this time. The responsibility for what will happen now rests wholly upon them.

"The shopcraft's employes voted in June for a strike to establish a living wage and decent working conditions. The Association of Railway Executives have now voted for a lockout to smash unionism on the railroads and to eliminate collective bargaining from the industry.

"The men have been ready at all times to meet the executives to bring about an honorable settlement. We expressed our willingness to do so to the Railroad Labor Board in Chicago. We accepted President Harding's terms of settlement of July 31. The executives, however, have consistently and arrogantly blocked every move to end the strike. They have done so with the plain intent of eliminating unionism from the railroad shops as the first step to the elimination of unionism from the industry as a whole. They refuse, even at the President's direct request, to take back striking employes with seniority rights unimpaired, in order that they might harass free and courageous men from their jobs and thus disintegrate the employes' organization. They even try to justify their refusal on the ground of promises of permanent employment to strike-breakers which they have not made.

"The shopcraft employes are now fighting for their very existence and the existence of the other railroad employes, as well as for justice and right. This last unjustified action of the executives makes our victory secure. The executives today have not a leg to stand on before the people.

"The 400,000 striking employes accept the challenge of the railroads. We will redouble our efforts, confident of success."

Stone Silent on Result.

Mr. Stone said that he would make no comment at this time, but "will probably have something to say later."

Earlier in the day, however, before the executives took action on behalf of the brotherhood mediation committee, Mr. Stone issued the following statement:

"The Mediation Committee of the five transportation organizations has returned to New York to be of any service it can in effecting a settlement. We are holding ourselves in readiness for immediate conferences with the executives whenever they may desire them, and are continually in touch with officers of the unions.

"The strike can be settled because it must be settled. It must be settled because the public demands a settlement. The crews who now operate the trains form that part of the public which knows best just why a settlement must come.

"We hope that patience will establish peace, and believe that newspaper propaganda by either side will produce nothing but embarrassment for both sides."

Executives in Attendance.

The conferences of the railway executives began at the Yale Club, Forty-fourth Street and Vanderbilt Avenue, yesterday morning, about 11 o'clock. Among the executives present were the following:

To Confer To-Day With Cuyler, Chairman, Association of Railway Executives.

W. H. Finley, President, Chicago & Northwestern Railway.

Hale Holden, President, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad.

Ralph Budd, President, Great Northern Railway.

[illegible], President, Northern Railway.

Perry R. Todd, President Ranger & Arcoden Railroad.

Eppa Hunton Jr., President Richmond, Fredericks & Potomac Railroad.

Ralph Peters, President Long Island Railroad.

Alfred P. Thom, Vice Chairman and general counsel Association of Railway Executives.

Progress of Conference.

After being in session for nearly an hour, adjournment was taken, without any official announcement being made as to the reiteration of the stand on seniority.

"The situation looks mighty serious," Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific said to a colleague on leaving the meeting. Other executives indicated that they were prepared for a finish fight.

Later the brotherhoods' mediation committee was summoned to the New Haven Board rooms to meet the executives' committee. The brotherhoods were represented by Mr. Stone, Mr. Sheppard, W. N. Doak, Vice President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; D. B. Robertson, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen and Enginemen, and T. C. Cashen, President of the Switchmen's Union of North America. They meet with the executives' committee, consisting of Mr. Cuyler, Mr. Elliott, Mr. Holden, J. Kruttschnitt, Chairman of the Southern Pacific; W. L. Mapother, President of the Louisville & Nashville; C. H. Markham, President of the Illinois Central; A. H. Smith, President of the New York Central lines, and A. P. Thom, counsel of the Association of Railway Executives.

It was at this conference that the executives informed the brotherhoods of their stand on seniority. Mr. Sheppard then proposed that the brotherhood chiefs be permitted to go before the general conference and submit his proposal. This request was granted, and shortly after 4 o'clock the brotherhoods followed the executives' committee to the Yale Club, leaving a half-hour later.

Mr. Stone, in leaving this meeting, was asked by newspaper men if he had anything to say.

"No, I said it all in there," he replied. "They'll give you a statement when they're through in there."

Three Voyagers Arrive.

As the main conference started its discussion of the proposal of the brotherhoods, William Besler, President of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and E. E. Loomis, head of the Lehigh Valley, who returned from Europe yesterday on the Majestic, hurried up to the conference from the pier and entered the meeting.

The executives adjourned shortly before 6 o'clock and hurried away, declining to be interviewed by the score of newspaper men awaiting them at the door.

Asked if there would be another conference to-day, D. F. Loree, Chairman of the Eastern Presidents Conference, who was considered leader of the "no surrender" group of executives, smiled and said:

"You'll have to see Mr. Cuyler. He is arranging the meetings."

He declined to comment further, but was apparently pleased with the outcome.

When a small group of executives, headed by Mr. Holden, remained in the room in conference the report spread that the executives were split on the seniority question, and the majority had withdrawn, declaring for a finished fight. This, however, was soon dispelled by Mr. Holden, who said the executives would not settle on any other basis than that agreed upon in the conference.

70,000 Miles Represented.

The total mileage represented in this later conference was estimated as between 60,000 and 70,000 of the more than 215,000 miles represented in the association. Among the executives in this conference were the following:

Official spokesmen for the Association of Railway Executives explained to newspaper men that the roads represented in the group conference were among those that had not filled the places of the strikers and would be able to take back a majority of the striking shopmen, if a settlement could be effected. They explained, however, that those roads would "dictate their own terms."

Labor Chiefs in Session.

After leaving the conference at the Yale Club the brotherhood chiefs hurried back to the Woodstock Hotel, where they went into session with the representatives of the striking shopmen and non-striking railroad unions. Besides Mr. Jewell, there participated in this meeting A. F. Franklin, President of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers; Martin F. Ryan, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen; James Burns, Vice President of the Sheet Metal Workers; James Noonan, President, and Edward Evans, Vice President of the Electrical Workers; Timothy Healey, President of the Stationary Firemen and Oilers; W. D. Helt, President of the Order of Railway Signalmen; Edward Manion, President of the Order of Railway Telegraphers; H. F. Grable, President of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers; Richard Dee, Vice President of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes, and William H. Johnston, President of the International Association of Machinists.

The brotherhoods at that time made a preliminary report, but were without the final verdict of the executives. The strike leaders then met newspaper men and declared their hostility to individual settlement proposal.

"If we had wanted to make individual settlements we could have signed up a number of roads some time ago," said Mr. Jewell. "What we want is a national agreement. We can't go fishing in back ponds further. We will fight it out and we are going to win the strike."

Executives Are Pleased.

Railroad executives expressed themselves last night as being well pleased with the results of yesterday's conference. They said the meeting was one of the "most harmonious" ever held by the association. Instead of splitting on the seniority question, they voted with virtually a solid front.

The Western and Southern roads which were reported as leaders in the strike made the concerted effort, it was learned, to block the "no surrender" group, but joined them in their stand.

Practically all of the executives at the conference reported progress in filling the places of the strikers and expressed confidence in their ability to defeat the strike in a "finish fight."

Showing that the railroads have a large surplus of equipment ready to meet transportation needs, the Association of Railway Executives made public the following statement:

"Reports filed with the Car Service Division of the American Railroad Association showed that on August 15 there were on American railroads 176,439 surplus freight cars; that is, cars in good repair and immediately available for use as traffic conditions warranted. This was a reduction of 21,047 cars since July 31.

"Of the total, 116,844 were surplus coal cars, which was a reduction of 228 since July 31, while 59,595 were surplus box cars, or a decrease of 5,941 within the same period. Reports also showed 2,622 surplus coke cars, a reduction of 91 in slightly more than a week, while there were also 6,629 surplus stock cars, a decrease within the same period of 1,038.

The following statement was also issued by the association showing increased coal car loading for week ended Aug. 12:

Reports just received by the Association of Railway Executives show that on last Monday, Aug. 21, 19,043 cars were loaded with coal. This was the largest number loaded on any one day since the miners' strike began, on April 1. Last Monday's loadings would be at the annual rate of production of approximately 6,250,000 tons per week. Coal loadings on last Monday were an increase of 3,302 cars over the previous Monday, at which time the total was 15,741 cars. During the week which ended on Aug. 21, tabulations showed 96,101 cars loaded with coal, an increase of 4,630 cars over the preceding week.

The Pere Marquette Railroad, in a statement issued here, also declared its ability to handle coal and fruit shipments. The road said that it would be able to meet all traffic requirements despite the strike.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad said the strike situation showed a "marked improvement in the last few days," and normal service, both passenger and freight, continues to be maintained."

Slow to Take Action.

It was learned from executives who attended the meeting that some of the apparent differences as to a proposed settlement of the strike had arisen from the belief on the part of a number of the executives when Mr. Jewell, head of the Mechanical Shop Craftsmen, called the strike on July 1 in response to the strike vote of his organization, that he would quickly recognize that he had ordered the strike against the decision of the Railroad Labor Board, a Governmental body authorized by act of Congress, and in that belief these railroad executives did not take steps to recruit their forces even after a large percentage of their men had gone on strike. A number of the railroads acted on this belief but as the strike proceeded, such roads as those in the Northwest, the Baltimore & Ohio and the Southern Railroad, offered to take back their shopmen with all rights restored, and this offer was sustained by the local lodges of the men, but rejected by Mr. Jewell, who took the ground that the strike was "a national one."

The roads mentioned thereupon advertised for men, but the outside supply of mechanical shopmen, west of the Mississippi River and in some Southern States, was then rather light, and these roads had not been able to secure anything like a complement of men.

On the other hand, the executives at the head of the Delaware & Hudson, the Boston & Maine, the Bangor & Aroostook, the Colorado Southern, the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, the Lackawanna, the New Haven, the Pennsylvania and other roads felt that Mr. Jewell's step was but an aftermath of the "outlaw strike" which was precipitated in the spring of 1920. It was recalled that in the "outlaw strike" truckers, section men, scale men, clerks, the Harbor Boat Men's Union, which included captains, engineers, first deckhands, second deckhands, oilers, firemen, fuel men, bridge masters and bridgemen, and a number of yardmasters, yard conductors, yard brakemen, switch tenders, ticket collectors, passenger trainmen, freight conductors, freight flagmen, freight brakemen, firemen, yard brakemen, engineers and firemen joined, the strike began to collapse after a month and the executives of the roads mentioned did not care to go through a second experience of that kind. As one of the executives who attended yesterday's meeting put it:

Outlaw Strike Inspiration.

"The inspiration for that 'outlaw' strike was a desire on the part of the younger men in those organizations to supplant the older men in the organizations. These younger men felt that promotion under the seniority rules was too slow, and so evolved their own conceptions of seniority, not accepted by agreements with the railroad executives. The older men in the organizations did not know this fact at that time, but they learned it afterward, and some of the older men in these organizations who sympathized with that strike, if they did not actually go out, have had their eyes opened very widely."

The executives of the roads of the class mentioned, therefore, when the present strike was called on July 1, replaced advertisements in newspapers throughout the country, calling for men and stating in explicit terms that the employment would be permanent, and day after day since July 1 these advertisements have been kept running. These executives still do not stated to-day's meeting, that they had thus given their word of honor that the employment would be permanent, and they could not and would not break their word of honor to their men. It was pointed out that on many of the Eastern railroads fully 80 per cent. of the new men are ex-service men who took the places of the strikers, and these men took the places with a clear and distinct understanding that the employment was guaranteed to be permanent. Quite recently it was announced, from Paris, that the preservation of the United States, while it was asserted the men now on strike were "profiteering" under the McAdoo rules, which raised many a day laborer out of his job overnight and gave him the pay of a mechanical shop craftsman.

Expected No Trouble.

One executive who rather favored a settlement, according to propositions that have been submitted, said:

"We did not believe that Mr. Jewell's organization would strike against a decision of the United States Railroad Labor Board, a Government body, any more than we thought a labor organization would strike against an opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States, also a Government body. There is a difference between the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States and those of the Railroad Labor Board. From a decision rendered by the former there is no appeal, but from the decision of the Railroad Labor Board there is an appeal, just as the Pennsylvania and other railroads appealed from the decision of the board prohibiting the letting of contracts to outsiders. We thought Mr. Jewell would take an appeal, but he did not, and went on with the strike."

One of the executives remarked at the meeting that his road had spent nearly $4,000,000 in trying to protect the striking men and their fellows who took the places of the strikers from brutal violence. Where even the women wives of the men had been stoned and otherwise very badly treated, and that this had been established in affidavits submitted to Justices of the Federal Courts who had granted injunctions against such proceedings.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION IN ILLINOIS ROUNDHOUSE

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—As railroad executives gathered in New York today to consider peace proposals by the heads of the transportation brotherhoods acting as mediators in the shopmen's strike, trouble on the Southern Railway, principal sufferer from trainmen's walkout during the past few days, began to clear away.

Breaking bombs kept the rail strike fever at a high pitch in some of the nation's rail centres.

A tremendous explosion early today in the Chicago & Alton roundhouse at Venice, Ill., shook buildings within a radius of three miles and police squads were rushed to the shops when further violence was threatened. Several sticks of dynamite were thrown on the roof of the roundhouse in which a number of men were working.

BILL MAKES FELONY OF RAIL VANDALISM

OTHER DRASTIC PENALTIES

Senator Sterling Asks $5,000 Fine and Five Years' Imprisonment for Willful Obstruction.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—A Bill making it a felony under the Federal law for any person or persons to interfere with the operation of trains in interstate commerce and making such persons chargeable with murder in the event that lives are lost as a result of such interference was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Sterling of South Dakota.

The bill, which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, reads:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that any person or persons who shall wilfully by physical force, or intimidation by threats of physical force, obstruct or retard or aid in obstructing or retarding, or attempt to obstruct or retard, the orderly conduct or movement in the United States of interstate or foreign commerce, or the orderly make-up or movement, or disposition of any locomotive, car or other vehicle on any railroad or elsewhere in the United States used and operated in interstate or foreign commerce, shall be deemed guilty of a felony and for every such offense shall be punishable by a fine of not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

"That any person or persons who shall wilfully destroy, injure or impair, or attempt to wilfully destroy, injure or impair, any of the tracks, switches, roundhouses or terminal facilities being the property of any railroad used and operated in interstate commerce with the intent thereby to obstruct, retard or prevent such commerce; or whoever with the intent wilfully to destroy, injure or impair, or attempts to destroy, injure or impair any locomotive, car or other vehicle on any railroad in the United States used and operated in interstate commerce, or any necessary equipment or appliance contained with such locomotive, car or other vehicle, shall be deemed guilty of a felony and punished by a fine of not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment for not exceeding five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

"If as a result of the wilful destruction, injury or impairment of any such property, equipment and appliances so used and operated in interstate commerce accomplished with the intent to obstruct, retard or prevent such commerce as aforesaid, any passenger or other person is killed, the person or persons committing such destruction, injury or impairment shall be deemed guilty of murder and punished as provided in section 275 of the Criminal Code of the United States."

LABOR ASSAILS BILL TO PROTECT ALIENS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 23.—Strong opposition on the part of union labor to President Harding's recommendation for the enactment of Senator Kellogg's bill to enable the Federal Government to punish offenses against aliens in violation of treaty rights developed today before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. The President's recommendations were contained in his address to Congress last week on the strike situation. In advocating the Kellogg Bill, the President indicated that he desired such legislation to meet the situation presented by the massacre of miners at Herrin, Ill. Two Mexican citizens were among those killed.

Edgar Wallace, one of the legislative agents of the American Federation of Labor, appeared before the Committee on Foreign Relations today to express opposition to the measure. Tomorrow the International Association of Machinists will be represented in the committee's hearing and subsequently representatives of the railway Brotherhoods will appear.

Opposition to the bill by union labor did not cause surprise, but opposition on the grounds advanced today by Mr. Wallace was not expected. Wallace said that the effort of the mine operators at Herrin, which he condemned, was no justification for the massacre of mine workers, his remarks showed a sympathy for the union miners at Herrin in their resentment of the use of armed guards to protect the men who had taken the places of the union members.

"Were you ever in Herrin?" retorted Mr. Wallace to a question from Senator New. Mr. New had asked if Mr. Wallace did not think the law proposed by the bill would serve to deter the kind of crowd that operated at Herrin if it was realized that the Federal Government was prepared to use force to prevent violence in strike troubles.

Herrin is an average American community," said Mr. Wallace, following his question to Mr. New. "Its citizens have gotten used to the union method. I do not wish to condone what occurred there, but the sentiment of its people was outraged by the action of the coal operators in seeking to crush them by armed force. For every twenty strike-breakers the operators imported forty gunmen to patrol the streets and intimidate the people.

"What was the result? The entire community rose up and what occurred could not have been prevented anywhere if local sentiment as it existed in Herrin was the same. The entire community was outraged by the strong-arm methods adopted by the operators.

"Agreement had been made with the United Mine Workers that the mines should be stripped. But after the union miners removed the surface earth, the operators imported strikebreakers to run the mines and treated Herrin and the rest of the country around it as conquered territory. What happened was inevitable."

One line of argument advanced today by Mr. Wallace was that under the Kellogg bill the Federal Government could send some aliens to places affected by strikes, obtain an injunction to protect them and then bring a Federal prosecution to uphold the injunction. Such a course, it was argued, would make the proposed law a strike-breaking law. Opposition was also voiced on the ground that the measure would grant no relief in the nullification of treaties by State laws. Alien laws aimed at Japanese.

The action of President Harding in calling for what Mr. Wallace termed "anti-strike legislation" while negotiations were in progress for a settlement of the railway and coal strikes was questioned by members of the Committee on Foreign Relations. The motives behind the President's recommendations were questioned by Mr. Wallace. He expressed the opinion that the Railway Bill was not calculated as much to protect aliens as to restrict the right of peaceful picketing and to create a class of labor against the other in the present industrial war.

Up to the time President Harding addressed Congress last Friday, said Mr. Wallace, peace negotiations were proceeding successfully. Following the appearance of opposition to the settlement among labor leaders grew tremendously.

MILLER CONFERS WITH STATE COALMEN

PUTS HOUSEHOLDER FIRST

Preparing for Special Session of Legislature, He Says Housekeepers' Problem Is Pressing.

ALBANY, Aug. 23.—Governor Miller had a conference today with representatives of coal dealers and producers with a view to obtaining first hand information and co-operation in anticipation of the special session of the Legislature to be held next Monday night to deal with the fuel crisis.

After the conference the Governor outlined the situation in this fashion:

"There is a general prospect of prompt resumption of mining in the bituminous fields and they can produce more than the normal consumption of the country.

"The anthracite situation is different, and when mining will be resumed in the anthracite field nobody seems to know."

The Governor emphasized that the first consideration was fuel for the householder. After pointing out that the peace overtures in the anthracite field had failed, the Governor said:

"The immediate problem that we have to deal with is domestic fuel for the householder. Of course we can't do much in the way of distributing it until there is some to distribute."

The Governor said he was not prepared to give details of the program he would ask the Legislature to enact as he was still seeking information on the subject.

"The situation is one that may be changed at any time by what happens," he said.

Concerning his conference with the coal dealers and producers and the need of their co-operation in the crisis, the Governor said:

"We have just had a general discussion of the situation in anticipation of the session of the Legislature. A committee representing the retailers, a committee representing the wholesalers and a committee representing the anthracite producers and one gentleman representing the bituminous producers were here to give me such information as they could with respect to the general situation. Of course, whatever we do, we shall need the co-operation of these gentlemen."

It is expected that the Governor's message to the Legislature will be ready by the end of this week.

BUFFALO, Aug. 23.—A bill prepared at the instance of Mayor Schwab for introduction at the special session of the Legislature, providing for a local Fuel Administrator with power to sell coal and coal yards here and to buy coal in the open market, was denounced as "revolutionary" by coal dealers who gathered at a joint meeting today of city and county officials called to consider the fuel situation. A committee will be sent to Albany to oppose passage of the measure.

NEW BATTLE BEGINS IN SOFT COAL FIELD

Miners' Chief Bans Work for Pennsylvania Operators Who Refuse Check-Off.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 23.—President Lewis of the United Mine Workers today served notice on the Pittsburgh Coal Company that it would be required to accept the terms of the Cleveland agreement, which includes the check-off. In serving notice on this company he also served notice on the Pittsburgh Coal Operators' Association. The members of both organizations have agreed to accept the Cleveland agreement wage scale, but have balked at the check-off, included in the Cleveland agreement. So the fight between the United Mine Workers and the Pittsburgh district organized operators now comes down to a battle over the check-off.

President Lewis's order bars all members of the Pittsburgh Coal Operators' Association, the Freeport Thick Vein Association and those in the Connellsville region from operating union mines until they agree to adopt the check-off system, despite the fact that the first named has authorized the union scale of wages at its idle mines and the Connellsville region operators today began paying a rate a little higher than the Cleveland scale.

HARD COAL CONFEREES MEET SEPARATELY

Committees of Miners and Operators Remain in Philadelphia, but Are Still Aloof.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—Miners' representatives, headed by President Lewis of the United Mine Workers, will remain in Philadelphia until tomorrow, but this was said not to indicate that they had hopes of a resumption of the joint conference between themselves and the anthracite operators' committee.

"Our work ends today and tomorrow," said Philip Murray, Vice President of the union, "is merely of a routine nature."

"The conference is adjourned as far as we are concerned," Mr. Lewis said. "As long as the operators insist upon arbitration to settle the strike we are through."

The operators, who conferred among themselves today, although issuing no formal statement, indicated that their position, held since the joint conference began last Thursday, was unchanged.

There is a stalemate, both parties seemed to indicate that the fight between the operators and the 165,000 hard coal miners was to the finish unless President Harding again invited them to resume negotiations.

OPERATORS MAKE TERMS IN SOUTHWEST FIELD

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 23.—An agreement to end the coal strike in the Southwest and resume operation of mines immediately was reached late today at a conference here of miners' union officials and operators from Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and Oklahoma. Vote on the settlement was unanimous, the settlement being based on the Cleveland agreement.

The basis of the agreement, it was announced, was the extension of the wage scale which expired March 31 last to March 31, 1923, a condition of the settlement was that miners now employed in mines under operation shall not be discriminated against. Operators declared newly mined coal would be on the tracks at mine sidings by Sept. 1.

COAL INQUIRY VOTED BY HOUSE, 219 TO 55

bringing up the bill in the regular way and, therefore, the rule was not presented to the House.

Interest centred chiefly in the fight waged by Mr. Bland, who contended that the committee's bill was without effect in that it was subject to a decision of the court which already has declared that the Federal Trade Commission had no power to investigate coal conditions in the States. Mr. Bland's first attempt to amend the bill to create a commission of six, with equal representation to the operators, the workers and the public, was defeated by a vote of 136 to 76. Those opposing the amendment said that nothing could be accomplished by a commission interested in the industry and that the members should be impartial and skilled in investigation. His second amendment to reduce the number of the commissioners from nine to five was defeated without a roll-call.

Representative Bankhead's amendments to fix the salaries of the commissioners at $7,500 instead of $10,000 and to reduce the appropriation from $500,000 to $300,000 was accepted.

An amendment offered by Representative Landon of New York to authorize the commission to present a minority report if their investigation justified such a course was defeated, as was his amendment to recommit the bill.

Only to Ascertain Facts.

Representative Winslow, who sponsored the bill, briefly explained its provisions, declaring that this legislation might be supplemented by other intended to control the distribution of coal. The pending bill, he said, was intended only to ascertain facts in the industry with the hope that such facts might be useful to Congress if legislation to deal with the coal situation was deemed necessary at a later date.

"Apparently there was not in the President's mind, nor has there been in the minds of any of the committee, any desire to run the coal business under the provisions of this legislation," said Mr. Winslow. "It is purely a commission to find out real facts and as many as possible, in order that everybody may know what there is to this much-discussed industry. So you must bear in mind that in this bill we really attempt to provide a commission to ascertain facts. We are not running for any kind of legislation which might provide for the management of the coal business, or for the correction of any particular trouble, or for the establishment of any body to be permanent in its character.

"We are simply desirous of creating a commission to be appointed by the President which will put its nose into the business, and it it has the wit and ability to bring forth a report and suggestions, if they please, which will tell the world, particularly the Congress and President, just what they think is the trouble with the thing and what the facts are. Now you will please accept that statement as being descriptive of the purposes of this bill. It appears to me by reading the bill you can get a very clear idea of the provisions and I think the bill is so simple and so straightforward that anybody can understand it. There are no jokers and no funny work of any kind. It is a straightforward proposition to appoint a commission of nine men who will be paid definite rate of salary annually for work upon the commission, which will be terminated within a year."

Fears a Prefudged Report.

Mr. Bland after stating that the Labor Committee had gone fully into the advisability of investigating the coal industry in order to determine wages, prices and conditions, said that all who had appeared before the committee favored a commission of operators, miners and the public.

"Why do you want to appoint a fact-finding agency composed of men who every body of us on the committee and everybody in the country are now going to say we are to have a prejudged report made?" asked Representative Bland. "Why not have a commission of men who have no interest in the industry and who will go into the matter and report that the owners of the mines and the men employed in them will not agree to it, they are not represented? I do not believe they will have any confidence in the accuracy of the commission's findings.

"I believe that if the President had had the right counsel he never would have said that he was in favor of keeping representatives of the miners and operators off the commission. Now the Committee on Interstate Commerce, under whip and spur, without hearings, has brought a hodge podge bill here which you will be sorry you vote for before your hands are off, without a trace of successful contradiction and I challenge a man who knows anything about the law to dispute this statement, that the bill confers no new authority that is not already conferred by the law in the Federal Trade Commission.

"I do not believe that this bill is as strong as the Federal Trade Commission law. All the teeth have been taken out of it. You will find some teeth in the Labor Committee bill. You will find that whereas you deny the operators' right to interstate commerce for their products when they refuse to answer a question that should be answered, they are going to come around and give you the facts. Now the committee bill merely imposes a fine of $5,000 upon one who refuses to testify.

"Is it not a fact that if this bill is enacted," asked Representative Johnson of South Dakota, "the operators could go before the same court that issued the injunction against the Federal Trade Commission restraining its investigation of the coal industry and nullify the statute?"

"That court could make no other ruling on this bill than what they have already made on the Federal Trade Commission law," Mr. Bland replied.

"Then, that means that the passage of this bill will be just an empty gesture to the country," continued Mr. Johnson.

"Absolutely," Mr. Bland said.

Following Mr. Bland's discussion of the Winslow measure, Representative Knutson of California and Representative Knutson of Minnesota declared in short speeches that the proposed commission had ample power to obtain all the facts needed, and they urged that it be passed.

Representative Denison of Illinois, whose district takes in Herrin, the scene of the recent mine massacre, told the House that while there were provisions in the bill he could not approve, he would vote for it as the best that could be obtained at this time. He scored the "extravagant" appropriation of $500,000 to carry out the work of the investigating commission and declared there was no excuse for paying the nine commissioners annual salaries of $10,000 each.

Mr. Denison was followed by Representative Parker of New Jersey and Cooper of Ohio, both of whom urged passage of the measure.

Representative Huddleston, Democrat, of Alabama, a member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Commission Committee, declared that the bill hasn't the slightest thing in the world to do with the coal situation. It will be of no value to the people and it is put forward purely as a political pretense and camouflage. It is but further proof that the Administration has dealt without courage, or intelligence with the coal emergency.

"The question before the Congress," said Representative Tincher of Kansas, "is whether we will carry out the request of the President for an unprejudiced commission or continue to obey the commands of President John Lewis of the United Mine Workers. It has been charged openly that this last strike was a conspiracy between miners and mine operators to make the American public pay, and now they come here and say 'you must not obey your President.'

"Who ever heard of putting interested parties on a jury? Be asked, in dealing with the demand that operators and miners' representatives be put on the commission. 'Some of you would put prejudice into the commission at the very start.'

Representative Thomas, Democrat of Kentucky, followed with the statement that Congress is not a thing in either the Bland or Winslow resolutions. Neither does anything but provide for commissions and salaries. That's all there is to them. Neither would get any new facts that the Federal Trade Commission, the Bureau of Mines or the Labor Department and Commerce Department do not have now in their mind there is no such thing to do and that is to the detriment of both wages and prices."

The prediction was made by Representative Newton of Minnesota that unless the bill was enacted the country would have a repetition of the present strike next April 1 when the new agreement expires.

"The President doesn't want miners or operators on the commission because he has seen how they have tried to get together for the last four months," he said. "They have considered everything else but the interest of the public in their conferences."

Summing up for the Democratic opposition, Representative Fred Lehlbach Garret said that it "offers no relief for the present situation nor any similar situation which may arise in the future, and that no practical, tangible results can come of the bill which will cost the country half a million dollars."

Text of New York Coal Appeal.

Later the telegram from the New York State Coal Commission, signed by Leroy T. Harkness, who read in the House by Representative Snell. It follows:

"The New York State Coal Commission very earnestly urges upon you the necessity for prompt action in carrying out the President's recommendation for a governmental agency to control the distribution and price of coal and for vesting in that agency all the power which you can give it.

"The situation in New York State this Fall and Winter will be very acute at the best. Nearly five months of anthracite coal production has already been lost and even though all the mines were opened tomorrow, some time must necessarily elapse before they can be operated to full capacity. The greatest difficulty is being experienced in getting through shipments out of the very reduced supply of bituminous coal. The Governor has called the Legislature in special session for next Monday and legislation will undoubtedly be enacted clothing the New York State Fuel Administration with all the powers the State can give it. The benefit of such action will largely be lost unless the Federal Government on its part promptly constitutes a strong central agency to secure the coal and get it to the several States.

"The necessity for the investigation of the entire coal situation as recommended by the President is apparent, but even more imperative is the need for prompt action on his recommendation for a governmental coal agency unless effective and vigorous measures are taken to develop to the utmost the supply and distribution of coal, especially anthracite coal. New York faces a coal shortage even worse than that of the Winter of 1917-18. New York is absolutely dependent upon anthracite coal to keep warm, aside from the needs of industry. A shortage in anthracite affects every household in the cities of the State and a serious shortage spells idleness and intense suffering, especially in the tenements and poorer districts. The prospects of Winter being so near and the State almost denuded of anthracite is alarming in this emergency. The Coal Commission believes it should call this matter to the attention of the New York delegation in Congress and urge upon it vigorous and united effort to secure immediate action."

Coal loadings have increased since the Cleveland agreement, according to figures issued today by the Association of Railway Executives. Last Monday the association reports, 19,043 cars were loaded with coal, or the largest number for any one day since the miners' strike began April 1. Last Monday was an increase of 3,302 cars over the Monday of the preceding week when the total was 15,741 cars. If the rate of loading last Monday were continued, a production of approximately 6,250,000 tons of coal would be obtained, necessary to meet this rate of coal loadings.

The Shipping Board today chartered its seventy-third vessel to bring coal from the United Kingdom to the United States. This vessel is the Glen, 6,500 d

FEARS EXPRESSED FOR IRISH FUTURE

SEE NO ADEQUATE LEADER

But Agree a Strong Hand Is Needed to Check Anarchy and Set Up Free State.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The London newspapers all comment on the tragic death of Michael Collins and join in paying tribute to his capabilities as a statesman and a soldier.

The Daily Express in discussing the effect of Collins's death on Ireland's future says:

"If the conscience of the Irish people, roused by the assassination of Ireland's favorite son, does not repudiate De Valera, and by deeds and not words, the whole of Ireland may soon be plunged into anarchy and the political results of the failure of the treaty must be immediate and grave. Once the situation in Ireland drifted out of hand Lloyd George might easily feel compelled to appeal to the electorate for a mandate before acting. Even in this dark hour we do not believe that Ireland will destroy herself. The great majority of the people are for the treaty and we look to Ireland to raise new leaders who will bring to fulfillment the cause for which Collins fell and in whose service Arthur Griffith died."

The Daily Chronicle, after pointing out that "the ruthless and witless Miss McSwiney watchword, "extermination before dishonor" implies the death of the strongest spirits of Ireland, says:

"The murder of Collins brings home to us forcibly the truth that anarchy is raging in Ireland, that life is precarious, that property is unguarded, that civilization itself is threatened through sheer lack of power to keep barbarism under. Horror in Ireland is still our responsibility. We cannot with honor divest ourselves of it. If the process of disintegration continues all civilized opinion would thrust upon us the duty of standing by the forces of law and order and culture. It would be a distasteful task for us, but how could we shirk it?

"But such intervention will be unnecessary if the successors of Griffith and Collins remain steadfast in their faith. If they see, as those two men saw, the peril of compounding with the authors of civil war, if further they will take steps to regularize their position and summon Parliament at Dublin and take oath in adopting such course, it is clear that they will have with them the great maority of Irishmen, who are stirred to their depths by the murder of their gallant leader and must wish more ardently than ever for the success of his policy."

Says Ireland Must Not Lose Hope.

The London Times says:

"It would indeed appear as though fate had kept to itself the guiding hand in the affairs of Ireland. A fresh test has been applied to the faith and patience of every Irishman and to the courage of those who remain to carry on the work. While we do not make little of the capacity of men like Alderman Cosgrave, Richard Mulcahy or the Lord Mayor of Dublin, they are, in so far as Englishmen are concerned, still unknown and untried.

"It was no small factor in the situation that both Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins understood the attitude and mind of British statesmen, and that they in turn were known and appreciated in London. In the darkness that has closed in upon Ireland at their death there is indeed but one clear ray of hope. The Irish people have had their lesson, and for the moment there be no strong directing hand, new forces have come into being that are urging Ireland along the road of peace. The sorrow that reigns there is to some extent an expression of the Irish nation's sense of its own need."

Bolshevism, Says Morning Post.

The Morning Post says:

"The foe in Ireland is not the ragged regiment of Republicans, but sheer Bolshevism. The constitutional aspect of the question falls into the background. This is a matter for the policeman. What in the world is the use of counting upon establishment of the Free State in Ireland when every leader of the Provisional Government, Collins or another who attempts to enforce law and order, is inevitably assassinated? Collins has gone. How long can Richard Mulcahy, who succeeds Collins in command of the Free State troops, retain his position?

"It is as yet too soon to estimate the effect upon the general situation of the loss of Collins, but it is nevertheless sufficiently obvious that in default of forces adequate to root out and destroy the murder gang the process of assassination may result in the supersession of the Free State Party by de Valera's men. And are we, then, to suppose that there will be no revenge taken by the dispossessed? But by that time Ireland will be in the grip of Bolshevist tyranny."

The newspaper asserts that the assassination campaign may spread to England, and says "we cannot too seriously warn the public that it is not republicanism which is the danger, but Bolshevism, using republicanism as a cloak. England is the enemy, and Ireland is but the point of vantage from which England is to be attacked."

He Treated Rebels Mildly.

The Daily Mail says:

"The assassination of Michael Collins, which every right minded person will deplore, is the outcome of his own settled policy of dealing with rebellion. He believed that the rebels could be made to look ridiculous by being captured and then turned loose, and that that was the best method of pacifying Ireland. His military campaign was aimed merely at breaking up the rebel forces and putting them to run, not to punishing them. At all costs he desired to avoid making martyrs. But he forgot the old proverbs about grasping a nettle firmly. The rebels acknowledge no argument but force, and if the Free State is finally to gain the upper hand it will have to face the task in dead earnest."

The Daily News, in paying tribute to Collins, says:

"There was certainly no man on whose life so much seemed to depend. His reputation was held the best guarantee in England for the success of the settlement for which he labored and fought with so indomitable a spirit. The mere force of his personal character was winning the half-reluctant Administration of Ulster and opening the door to an agreement between the North and South which no other key had ever seemed to have the power to unlock. His unrivaled hold over the minds of his own countrymen was incomparably the best asset which the party that he led possessed."

Dublin Papers Fear for Future.

DUBLIN, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—The Dublin newspapers pay elaborate tribute to the slain leader, and most of them in their comments on his death pointed to dire forebodings for Ireland's future. The Irish Times says:

"The death of Michael Collins is a disaster for Ireland. Irishmen the world over will mourn him and will sink their heads in shame at the deep damnation of his taking off. That he should have met a tragic end at Irish hands is the darkest feature of this national calamity. He dared much and suffered much for the ideal to which he devoted his life and in the achievement of which he played such a decisive part. He has fallen now within sight of the goal toward which he strove with such tenacity of purpose, but his death will serve only to strengthen the resolve of the Irish people that his work shall be carried to complete success."

The Freeman's Journal says:

"Michael Collins has fallen by the hands of his own countrymen. He dared death so often in the struggle with England that men felt that he could run all risks and emerge unharmed. That he should have been killed by an Irish bullet is a tragedy too deep for tears. Heavy as is the personal loss, the national loss is appalling."

BELFAST, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—All Ulster has been profoundly stirred by the news of Michael Collins' assassination. The Free State Commander-in-Chief was looked upon here as a more forceful personality than Arthur Griffith, and many declare he had a far greater hold on the people, including those who fully appreciated the latter's cleverness.

The Evennig Telegraph says:

"The blow to the Irish Free State is almost irreparable, especially as Collins and Griffith stood solidly for the treaty, and they leave no outstanding figure behind them. Ulster will sympathize with the Free State in its trials and tragedies, which are directly due to Irishmen themselves. They have rightly or wrongly been given a great charge by the British Government, and it is for them to carry it on in spite of the disappointments and discouragements of recent months."

POPE IS DEEPLY SHOCKED.

He Declares That No Cause Was Ever Helped by Violence.

ROME, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Pope Pius was deeply shocked over the news of the assassination of Michael Collins, which was conveyed to him today by Mgr. Borgoncedi Duca, Acting Secretary of State during the absence of Cardinal Gasparri.

The Pontiff expressed profound sorrow that Ireland, which was especially dear to his heart, was torn by civil war. He added that no cause was ever helped by violence.

COLLINS TOLD BROTHER HE EXPECTED DEATH

Letter to Patrick in Chicago Said He Would Die Like a Collins Fighting for Ireland.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Bandon, County Cork, where Michael Collins, Irish leader, was assassinated last night, is just twelve miles from Clonakilty, where he was born, said his brother, Patrick Collins, Chicago police sergeant, when informed of Michael's death.

"Many is the time Mike and I have walked to Bandon as boys," the Sergeant said. "Never would I believe anybody in that town would kill my brother."

That his brother had been expecting to be killed was revealed, Sergeant Collins said, in a letter the Irish leader wrote him a fortnight ago.

"But he wrote me that if I did get the news that he had been killed, to know that he had died like a Collins and fighting for Ireland," added the Chicago man.

"If it were a real Irishman that killed Mike I would say the Irish race stands discredited. But I know it was not. It was some blackguard not fit to wipe his boots."

LLOYD GEORGE JOINS IN COLLINS PRAISE

In Message to Free State He Says Dead Leader Impressed Even His Foes.

HOPES FOR END OF STRIFE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Premier Lloyd George has sent a telegram to Alderman Cosgrave, Acting Chairman of the Provisional Government of the Irish Free State, to express his deep regret at the death of the Commander-in-Chief of the Free State Army. It contains a note of personal feeling which will be shared by all who came into touch with Michael Collins.

Whatever view was taken here of some phases of his career there were no doubt of what Lloyd George calls his "remarkable personal charm" when once the London negotiations had got going. There was never any question in the minds of British statesmen with whom he was dealing of the honesty and sincerity of the man.

Premier Lloyd George sent a tribute on Michael Collins to The Evening Standard, in the course of which he said:

"I sincerely hope his death will be the last episode in this dark chapter of Irish history and that a new and brighter story will henceforth be written in the life of that unfortunate land."

"I regret to hear the news. I was hoping Michael Collins might be strong enough to deal with the revolution and anarchy in the South of Ireland and that his fellow-countrymen would soon realize the criminal folly of this internecine struggle.

"Although in my ideals I differed profoundly from Michael Collins, still I was anxious and willing to believe that in the restoration of peaceful conditions throughout the whole of Ireland and in the maintenance of law and order we were working together for a common object. That common object must not be lost sight of in any circumstances now, but must be pursued by all right-minded Irishmen, whether they live in the North or in the South, notwithstanding the succession of tragedies which is gradually destroying Ireland and Irishmen in the eyes of all civilization."

Lord Birkenhead, interviewed by The Evening Standard, said:

"I am profoundly shocked at the death of Michael Collins. He was a complex and very remarkable personality, daring, resourceful, volatile and merry, and differed in almost every conceivable way from the more dour and placid Arthur Griffith. I myself formed the view quite early in the history of the negotiations that these two men were equally courageous and honest. I never doubted that if they once gave their word they would sacrifice life itself in order to carry out their promise and this both have done—Griffith perished of sheer exhaustion and overwork; Michael Collins predicted his own end, but the knowledge that his life was certainly forfeit neither abated his spirit nor influenced his actions.

"Two very remarkable men have now been lost to the cause of the Provisional Government. Every friend of a settlement and every friend of Ireland will read of this outrage with heavy hearts and gloomy foreboding. What the effect will be on the future of Ireland who can tell? A very brave man and one very faithful to his word has been vilely murdered. His loss may be almost irreparable."

Lloyd George Sends Message.

LONDON, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Prime Minister Lloyd George today sent the following message to William T. Cosgrave, Acting Chairman of the Irish Provisional Government:

"I deeply regret to hear of the death of the Commander in Chief of the Free State Army. In his death the Free State has lost a fearless soldier, a leader of great energy and devotion and a man of remarkable personal charm. Please convey to the members of your Government my profound sympathy with them in their loss of one of Ireland's brilliant sons at a moment when Ireland most needed his special qualities of courage and resolution."

The Prime Minister issued the following statement on the assassination of Michael Collins for publication this afternoon in The Evening Standard:

"I am inexpressibly sad at the news of the death of this gallant young Irishman. He fell victim to a treacherous blow delivered when he was engaged in endeavoring to restore ordered liberty to his country, which stands sadly in need of it. His engaging personality won friendships even among those who met him as foes, and to all who met him the news of his death comes as a personal sorrow.

"I sincerely hope his death will be the last episode in this dark chapter of Irish history and that a new and brighter story will henceforth be written in the life of that unfortunate land."

Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies, has sent the following message to Mr. Cosgrave:

"I hasten to express to you, as acting head of the Provisional Government, the sorrow I feel at the cruel and wanton act which has deprived Ireland, in her hour of trial, of the leader she had chosen and in whom she trusted.

"Michael Collins was a man of dauntless courage, inspired by intense devotion to his country's cause, and his hopes for its future never quenched. His energy and vision marked him as a leader of his fellow-countrymen. He has fallen trying to do his duty in accordance with the will of the Irish nation.

"The double loss within a few days of Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins is a heavy blow to the Irish National Government, struggling for Ireland's life, freedom and unity amid so many difficulties, but in offering you and your colleagues my sincere sympathy at this tragic hour I venture also to express my sure confidence that Ireland will find men to fill the gap and that the Irish people will not rest until they are masters in their own house."

Viscount FitzAlan, Viceroy of Ireland, has wired Mr. Cosgrave:

"Please accept my most sincere sympathy with you and your colleagues in the irreparable loss Ireland has sustained."

Friend Writes of Collins.

Writing in The Chronicle, a man who knew Collins well, after paying tribute to his achievements as organizer of the Sinn Fein's intelligence service, says:

"In politics he was somewhat out of his field, his training was inadequate, his education imperfect. Temperamentally, too, he had something of the peasant in him. When an intellectual man such as Griffith would hold firm to principle and perceive the fatal consequences of a compromise, Collins could see no harm in a 'deal' if only it could avert immediate evil. Thus his compact with de Valera pust before the recent elections was made against Griffith's advice.

"Yet at bottom he had a great natural sagacity. At the peace conference in London his was the strongest personality working for peace. Of all the Sinn Fein leaders he was the most strongly imbued with the conception of Ireland as a sister member country with Great Britain. The British Empire he held was equally Ireland's heritage, equally the creation of Irish emigrants, of Irish arms and Irish brains.

"At the time of the peace negotiations he openly proclaimed his vision of empire as a great league of nations in that to the future these league idea of a dominion status would cease to have meaning, Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia and the rest would be all equal and freely associated partners. It was his firm belief that eventually the United States would also enter this league.

"On that day the scattered Irish race would be reunited, just as much as Anglo-Saxons."

The writer adds:

"As a guerilla leader Collins was often compared with the elusive De Wet. Few are aware that he received a letter from the famous Boer General complimenting him upon his prowess, this was when the struggle was at its height."

COLLINS WAS TO MARRY GIRL WHO SAVED LIFE

Kitty Tiernan, When He Was 'On the Run,' Tramped All Night to Warn Him of Danger.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Michael Collins was to have been married as soon as the military situation in South Ireland was well in hand to Kitty Tiernan, a charming County Longford girl, whom he met under romantic circumstances.

Once when he was "on the run" she tramped all through the night to a lonely cabin where he was hidden to warn him that the police were on their way to arrest him. There was then a price on his head, and he had often declared he would never be taken alive.

Collins's sister is employed in a London Post Office savings bank. She only heard of her brother's fate on arriving at the office this morning. She received special leave to go to Ireland.

POLITICAL FRIENDS HERE MOURN COLLINS

INSANE ACT, SAYS COHALAN

O'Brien Likens Murdered Man to Lincoln—Others Reiterate Charges of Treason.

Prominent New Yorkers supporting the cause of the Irish Free State were stunned and spoke feelingly of the death of Michael Collins yesterday. Many of those who commented upon the assassination of the young Irish leader likened him to Lincoln, stricken down by the bullet of a murderer as the greatest work of his life was nearing completion; all thought that Ireland might well despair of finding a leader immediately to replace him. Collins was mourned generally as "the strongest man in Ireland's history," who was rapidly bringing order out of chaos and had taken his country to the threshold of peace and prosperity.

"I have been absolutely overwhelmed by this dreadful tragedy," said Morgan J. O'Brien, former Supreme Court Justice, an ardent supporter of the Irish Free State, who served as Chairman of the American Committee for the Relief of Ireland, a non-political organization.

"Because, you know, after Griffith's death he was the one man who stood out after 700 years of struggle," Judge O'Brien continued, "and he was bringing his people to the point where all their troubles, elemental and political, would be solved.

"It is a great shock to those who believed in the absolute certainty that Ireland could govern herself. Now we have this dreadful crime presented us by a handful of men—that is all there are—standing against the Government, standing after 700 years prepared to lose all through the madness and madness of a few young and impetuous men misled by older people. They have set their cause back many years.

"Collins was one of the greatest figures, if not the greatest, in Irish history. He lived for Ireland. He had intelligence, courage, a spirit of self-sacrifice and love of country. At his young age he died recognized as the leader of the Irish race. It is not wonderful that so young a man could direct the destinies of a people? More than 80 per cent. of the Irish people in Ireland and throughout the world, and the whole of the United States, had confidence in this young man's sagacity and ability to solve the Irish problem.

"He may favorably be compared to Lincoln, who, of course, was a great statesman, while Collins was a great soldier, a soldier on the verge of accomplishing the liberation of his people and the restoration of law and order, just as Lincoln was.

"The men who killed Collins must either be regarded as children or as savages. The Irish cause will go on, perhaps, but things look very dark. Collins established the only lines on which the Irish people can go forward to complete independence."

Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company, in the London branch of which Collins worked as a clerk for four years before he was called back to Ireland to take the field, said that he would undoubtedly have risen to a high place in the bank organization.

"He was a clerk in our London office —a very good clerk, a man of strong character, an attractive personality, a high-class fellow who would have gone far. He was coming along very fast when he was called back to Ireland," Mr. Sabin said.

Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, spokesman for the Friends of Irish Freedom, said:

"I have just heard with horror of the slaying of Michael Collins. Such an act is the work of madmen and cannot be too strongly condemned. Poor Ireland! She has lost a great son in Michael Collins, and one in whom the mass of the race saw a great leader and a splendid type of man carrying on the work that leads to prosperity, conciliation, good-will and independence. Others undoubtedly will come forward and finish the task for which so many have toiled, but Collins will go down in history as one of the most attractive, romantic and splendid figures of his age. May God be very good to him!"

Diarmuid Lynch, Secretary of the Friends of Irish Freedom, sent the following cable message to General Richard Mulcahy, on whose shoulders, for the present at least, will fall the carrying out of the Free State's military policy:

"What a horrible tragedy! Mick Collins dead at the hands of men calling themselves Irish Republicans! Mick, the sincere, genuine republican to whose patriotism, organizing genius, resourcefulness, bravery, fearlessness and cheerfulness is due such a very large measure of the credit for the victories since 1916! God rest the noble soul of our dear comrade Collins and give you and his other splendid lieutenants the courage and strength to bring order and finally absolute independence out of the present shocking chaos which exists in Ireland."

Senator James P. Phelan of California, who has just returned from Europe and who is stopping in this city, said that he had had an hour's conference with Collins, in which the Irish leader assured him that he would continue his fight for what 90 per cent. of the Irish people wanted.

"He was a man who could care for himself in any sort of fight, but, like Griffith, he always went heavily guarded," said the Senator. "He had a remarkably shrewd mind, and on his shoulders depended largely the success of the Free State. He would not have been hard on de Valera if the latter had surrendered. He permitted some of the Free State's prisoners to go free after giving their word that they would go home and stop fighting. He intimated that de Valera would not be harshly dealt with if he gave himself up. It had always been the feeling that Collins would die with his boots on."

Mgr. Charles F. Duffy, Chancellor of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Newark, said:

"No cause can prosper that depends upon an assassin's bullet. The best friends of Ireland must grieve at this new turn of affairs. A great ideal is being lost by the action of its friends. Michael Collins was killed when he was best employed. May his death not be the death of Ireland's hopes."

Justice William P. Burr, who on Monday granted an injunction which tied up $2,300,000 deposited in American banks by de Valera, said he was shocked to hear of Collins's death.

"Somehow I didn't think it possible that Collins could be killed now," Justice Burr said. "It is a great loss, probably an irreparable one. But surely Ireland will hardly collapse. There must be another who can take his place. It is not only a shock to the friends of Ireland, but it is a shock to the whole civilized world."

Judge Alfred J. Talley of the Court of General Sessions, said:

"Another heroic figure has been added to the list of Ireland's patriotic dead. Before the unhappy difference of opinion in Ireland itself no man was more beloved by his people than was Collins. There was an atmosphere of bravery and mystery about him that made him particularly attractive to the romance-loving Irish. Like Harry Boland, he has been cut down in the flower of his youth. And if to die for one's country is a badge of honor, the name of Michael Collins will stand at the head of the list as the example of patriotism and sincere love of country and as an inspiration to youth all over the world."

Magistrate George H. Folwell in the Adams Street Court said that Ireland's progress had suffered a severe blow, as Collins represented the best thought of Ireland and the best that Ireland could hope for under present conditions. He said he thought Collins's death only one of a series that might be looked for in the near future. It is bound to injure Ireland's cause among her sympathizers in America, he said.

A reporter who sought comment on the murder of Collins from prominent Brooklyn men more or less active in politics found a number unwilling to discuss the tragedy for publication, although privately condemning the slaying bitterly. They agreed that Collins was an ardent patriot and willing to make any sacrifice for his native country. The reason for their unwillingness to discuss the death of Collins was interpreted as a political one, because of divided feeling among their constituents.

Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, who extended the freedom of the city to De Valera on his visit there three years ago, issued the following statement:

"A great calamity has befallen the Irish people in the death of its soldier hero and leader, Michael Collins. For dynamic force, courage, leadership and bravery we have not seen his equal in many a day. He was the one outstanding figure in whom was crystallized the best aspirations of the Irish race. His death, while a great blow to his people, is also a blow to the great cause he espoused, and its effect will not only be felt by Ireland, but by England and by all the civilized nations generally. It is a matter of deep concern to me, and I hasten to offer my sympathy to the Irish people on the loss of this great soldier and leader."

HAD INVITED COX TO DUBLIN.

But Both Griffith and Collins Die Before He Can Go There.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Ex-Governor James M. Cox of Ohio said today that the death of Michael Collins had caused a most regrettable change in his plans.

"While I was in Geneva," he said, "I received an invitation from Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins to be their guest in Ireland; now they are both gone and so my plan necessarily falls through.

"The death of Collins is a great loss to the world. He fitted into the Irish situation in an almost indispensible way. He and Griffith made a very unusual team, the profound thinker and the vigorous soldier who caught and held the imagination."

Arrangements are being made for Mr. Cox to have an interview with Premier Lloyd George after the latter's return from Criccieth at the end of the week.

IRELAND'S FUTURE IN DOUBT

Personality Was Interesting.

To those who watched day by day the progress of the treaty negotiations in London the figure of Michael Collins was a most interesting one. When he first came he was entirely unknown, and it was evident that he was by no means sorry that it was so. He would hurry from his automobile across the sidewalk into the Premier's residence in 10 Downing Street, and he was clearly distressed at the pertinacity of newspaper photographers who tried to snapshot him.

Moreover, a great deal of interest was taken in the young man, who invariably sat in front of the automobile alongside the chauffeur. They seemed to be a bodyguard, as though Collins would not trust himself to the care of the London police without his own personal escort. Rumor had it that they were armed, but this was denied at Sinn Fein headquarters.

However, as the conference proceeded Collins began to feel more at home. It soon became known that he had made a favorable impression on the British negotiators, and Winston Churchill and Lord Birkenhead were said to be particularly taken with him.

During the most critical period of the negotiations Collins was the messenger between de Valera and the Sinn Fein representatives in London. He went backward and forward across the Irish Sea in an endeavor to use his personal influence with the stubborn theorist who had declined to come over to England to thrash out the difficulties with the British Government.

For as long as the negotiations were in progress the Sinn Fein delegates maintained the strictest reticence. They would merely answer in the briefest fashion as they left the Downing Street meetings formal questions as to when the next meeting was to be held. Collins was noticeable, however, that short as were their answers it was generally Collins who made them. He gave no real information as to how things were going, but he was too good-natured to refuse to make any reply.

But as soon as the treaty had been signed Collins seemed to have dropped a load from his mind. A day or two later THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent found him one afternoon standing on the sidewalk outside the headquarters in Cadogan Place with his hat off and his dark locks blowing about his forehead submitting to photographers with the best grace in the world. He even allowed one to take a "close-up" as though it no longer mattered who had his likeness now, and when he was asked if he did not expect some trouble in getting the treaty through the Dail Eireann he replied with his cheery laugh: "Trouble! Well, I have met trouble before and got over it."

Had Many Narrow Escapes.

Innumerable are the stories told of Collins's hairbreadth escapes during the years of guerrilla struggle against the Crown forces in Ireland. Wherever he was by night or day he had always an avenue of exit arranged beforehand.

Moreover he was dining with friends in Merrion Square. The thunder of knocking at the street door showed that the British intelligence authorities had tracked him down. Collins slipped through a trapdoor to the roof. Gliding from one chimney stack to another he made his way to the top of a hotel a few blocks away, where the night porter had promised to leave the skylight open and a ladder in position.

For once the arrangement failed. The porter had neglected to place the ladder. With the auxiliaries only a few yards behind him Collins reached the skylight and let himself down only to find himself hanging in mid-air.

Directly below him lay the vast staircase well of the hotel. Swinging to and fro until he had acquired sufficient impetus Collins launched himself forward into the darkness. He cleared the bannisters on the top floor by inches and landed on all fours. Only a superb athlete could have done the trick.

Descending the stairs he passed quietly and unrecognized through the guests in the hall. Among them was the chief of the British Intelligence forces who were hunting him down.

The extraordinary coolness of Collins and those who helped him, actually face to face with troops whom he knew were out for the express purpose of catching him. One night during a walk through O'Connell Street to Colleg Green he was held up by troops and police eight times and not detained longer than was requisite to satisfy his interlocutors of his harmlessness. What he always regarded as his narrowest escape occurred at a hotel in Sackville Street on the Christmas Eve before last. He had entered with three others as important as himself in the Irish Republican Army for dinner, and within a few minutes a party of auxiliaries had raided the establishment and were examining the four. Collins himself was the object of special attention, with cadets gripping his arms, he protesting the while against their indignity. An officer stood in front of him pushing his hair back and comparing his face with a photograph.

The result was that the auxiliaries departed and Collins and his companions quietly went on with their dinner. His intimates perceived, however, that his nerves were badly shaken, but within a short time he had recovered himself.

Some months ago there was an attempt made on his life in County Cork, but he did not allow the incident to be published at the time. As he was starting out to visit a sister living on the outskirts of the city he was warned that a party of men had been told off to shoot him. Collins took a revolver and kept a sharp lookout. Going round a turn he saw four men crouching against a wall. He dashed up to them with drawn revolver and ordered them to put their hands up.

Addressing the leader by name, Collins said: "I am told you want me; well, I am here! Now, what do you want me for?"

"I did not want you at all," answered the man in a trembling voice.

"Very well," said Collins, "right about face, march and clear."

He watched them out of sight, but refused to allow any further action to be taken in the matter.

DUBLIN, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Among the innumerable messages of sympathy is one from General Sir Nevil Macready, who was commander of the British troops in Ireland, expressing sincere sympathy for the heavy loss which has fallen on the Irish Government and people.

Death Shocks London.

LONDON, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—The death of Michael Collins has impressed the British public far more than did even the death of Arthur Griffith, while the circumstances of his death, fighting against desperate odds in a carefully arranged ambush during the course of an inspection of his troops' positions around Cork, adds to the halo surrounding his lamented death.

His daring and personal attractiveness, combined with his adventurous career, and his reputation as a courageous fighter as well as a prudent administrator helped to give him prominence and importance in the public eye, which was not shared to anything like the same extent by Griffith, who really was little known to the British people and whose retiring nature did not lend itself to public demonstrations.

The British press is filled with tributes, personal sketches, anecdotes and stories of the hair-breadth escapes of the dead commander in chief in the course of Ireland's warfare with Britain, together with testimony of his political strength, his sagacity and his loyalty in carrying out the conditions of the treaty he signed with England. Prominent men, at home and abroad, from the Prime Minister down, hasten to pay tributes of condolence and respect.

When Arthur Griffith died it was the subject of general comment that his life's work was virtually accomplished and his ideals achieved. With Michael Collins, his work was still to do, and perhaps the question most exercising the British public is what will follow upon the tragic disappearance of the two most important Irish leaders.

The new Constitution of the Irish Free State and legislation finally establishing that Government have still to pass the British Parliament, and will be the chief business of the Autumn session at Westminster; hence the tragic fate which deprived Ireland at such a critical moment of its two greatest leaders is the subject of great anxiety in political quarters here as well as in Dublin.

Richard Mulcahy and William T. Cosgrave are the two names in greatest prominence as leaders of Irish affairs. The meeting of the Dail Eireann, which is under postponement until Saturday and which is expected to delegate the necessary ministerial changes, is therefore awaited with intense interest.

No Man of Collins's Ability Remains.

DUBLIN, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Who is to succeed Michael Collins as head of the Irish Free State is now the absorbing question here. No man remains in the present Irish Government with anything like the varied talents and dominating powers of the distinguished Irish leader. Under Collins the whole Ministry has been combined into a united body. The main outlines of Irish policy were fixed by Arthur Griffith and the departed Irish Commander-in-Chief. Their successors will undoubtedly continue along the lines that they laid down.

Next to Collins in military importance is Richard Mulcahy, Chief of the Staff of the Free State Army, who holds the entire confidence of the rank and file in the Irish military establishment. His effective record in the conflict for Irish freedom also marks him as a strong candidate to succeed his departed chief.

On the civil side is William T. Cosgrave, now the acting head of the Irish Provisional Government. He was always entirely in accord with Griffith and Collins and is noted for his tenacity in pursuing a policy once decided upon.

George Gavin Duffy, who was Irish representative in Rome and later Foreign Minister of the Provisional Government, also is regarded as a man of great promise. He had been extremely active in the formation of the Free State Government and was one of the negotiators in the conferences with Premier Lloyd George.

General O'Connell, Assistant Chief of Staff of the national forces, and General Gerald O'Sullivan are considered as giving promise to assume the leadership of Ireland. Another leader, who is often spoken of as the new head of the Irish Free State, is Kevin O'Higgins, Minister of Economic Affairs in the Dail Eireann Cabinet.

The capacities of Michael Collins were so many-sided that his loss will be keenly felt in all departments of the Irish Government. He was the strongest driving power in the Administration and was accessible to all colleagues desiring his advice.

He dominated the Dail by the force of his personality, and but for his consistent and persistent efforts the treaty would have had small chance of acceptance. The most powerful slogan in the country was: "What is good enough for Collins is good enough for us."

He enjoyed the confidence of the Irish Republican brotherhood and was beloved by the army. He deeply impressed the leading members of the old Unionist Minority, and Protestant Bishops and Peers willingly recognized his character and talents and looked forward to his influence being devoted to national appeasement and fair play all round.

Though Michael Collins had been the fiercest fighter against the British, he was, when peace was made, treated as an opponent on whose word they could confidently rely. He was stiff in insisting on all rights secured by the treaty, yet in all unessential matters of detail he was reasonable and helpful. The Ulster Government appreciated his attitude and regretted the breakdown of his peace agreement with Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier.

fans fell. It was obvious that he had been mortally wounded, but notwithstanding this he still fired from the ground and encouraged his men by his unflinching bravery.

In a feeble voice the Commander asked for Major Gen. Dalton, and Dalton and General O'Connell, both greatly distressed, comforted their dying chief. They whispered a few prayers and recited the Act of Contrition before the General passed away. His body was removed under fire to the armored car.

His last words, addressed to Major General Dalton, were:

"Forgive them."

The irregulars were by now in retreat, leaving many dead and wounded on the field. The Nationals were obliged to leave the touring car, taking their dead chief's body in the armored car, which reached Cork about midnight.

Grief over the death of Michael Collins is immeasurable. The entire city is shocked. While resentment in the National army was so strong that the commanding officers had difficulty in restraining the men when the news first reached here at midnight. When troops arriving from the north learned of the tragedy officers and men alike gave way to tears, as did their comrades in Cork that night. Collins was idolized by the troops and the mass of the people and the killing of this man in his own native county has brought shame to the people.

Early today great crowds wended their way to the Shanakiel Hospital, in the suburbs, and long before noon the hill was packed with people, while streams moved along all the roads leading to where the body of the late Commander in Chief reposed. Some were admitted to the hospital grounds and a few were allowed to enter the room where the body lay in state. Officers of the army formed the guard of honor, and the room was filled with floral tributes.

Thousands of citizens passed, and when they left, after offering silent prayer, they were unable to conceal their emotion. A number of the clergy also came to the hospital, including Bishop Cohalan of Cork.

The military procession accompanying the body to the steamer which will take it to Dublin was most impressive. The chief pallbearer was Major Gen. Dalton, Commander in Chief and the friend to whom none he died and to whom he said: "Let the Dublin Brigade bury me."

Other pallbearers were Colonel Kingston, General Liam Tobin, Colonel Byrne, General O'Connell and Lieut.-Commandant Dolan. The funeral ceremony at the hospital was brief. At noon, prayers for the dead having been said by Dr. Scannell and the assembled clergy, the coffin was closed. The troops reversed arms, breaking the intense silence and the coffin was carried out, followed by a group of nurses bearing the wreaths. The hearse moved down through the ranks of the troops and proceeded over Wellington Bridge, through Washington and Patrick Streets to the quay, where the body was put aboard the steamer. All along the way there were evidences of the great sorrow of the people.

Dail Eireann to Meet Saturday.

DUBLIN, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—It was announced this morning that, in view of the assassination of Michael Collins, the Dail Eireann will be summoned immediately, probably meeting on Saturday of the present week.

The body of Michael Collins on its arrival here tomorrow night will be placed in the mortuary of St. Vincent's Hospital, pending its removal to the City Hall Friday, where it will lie in state until Sunday afternoon.

Then it will be taken to the Pro-Cathedral, where a solemn requiem mass will be celebrated at 11 o'clock Monday morning. After the ceremony in the Pro-Cathedral interment will take place in Glasnevin Cemetery.

The people of Dublin testified to their great grief throughout the day. Business was practically suspended and flags were half-masted on all public buildings.

The City of Dublin is literally stunned today by the news. Everywhere in the Irish capital there were expressions of profound grief and amazement that such a tragic and untimely end could have come to the military genius of the new régime, who had barely reached the prime of life, being only 31 years old. The tragedy was all the more shocking by coming so soon after the sudden death of Arthur Griffith.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A Cork dispatch to the Press Association explains that the impression that Major General Dalton was wounded was an erroneous one. It was due to the fact that General Dalton's uniform was smeared with blood. Michael Collins having died in his arms.

We Want Four Capable Men

A well established national business is seeking the services of four worthwhile men. These men will be put through an intensive educational course devoted to the study of the company's products, corporation fundamentals and scientific salesmanship, as a basis for the executive positions which they will hold in the development of our sales organization. Liberal commissions, commensurate with the importance of the positions, will be paid.

Applicants should be not younger than thirty nor older than forty; a college education is an asset, but business experience, particularly with regard to selling securities, is more essential. The men chosen for these positions will be well rewarded in the opportunities that will be open to them for future advancement.

Your first letter should contain your telephone number and sufficient detail about your business experience to enable us to determine whether a personal interview would be desirable. Replies will be treated with confidence.

SAILPLANES BUILT ON SEAGULL MODEL

Wings Taper to Fine Points, Being Broad Next to the Fuselage.

SECRET OF UPWARD THRUST

Dr. Boehmer, Aviation Expert, Explains the Lifting Process Due to Air Whirlpools.

By CYRIL BROWN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—In the last few days no new records have been set by the German gliders competing at Wasserkuppe, owing to an unfavorable bit of weather; but I have obtained fascinating technical details of the aerial "sailboats," including hitherto closely guarded secrets of construction and operation, from Dr. Joachim Boehmer, a friend and co-worker of the aged Gustav Lilienthal, Germany's pioneer in and greatest living theoretician of motorless flying and brother of Otto Lilienthal, who was killed in 1896 putting their early theories into practice.

"The machines of the two victors, the student Martens and the engineer Hentzen," he said, "as well as most of the machines in the present sailing competition, differ less in principle than in form.

"It is a significant fact that the Germans do not refer to these motorless airplanes as gliders, but use the technical term "sailers," equivalent to "sailplanes" or "aerial sailboats," because gliding is only a small part of their performance, to wit, for landing. Otherwise they literally sail, trimming their wings to exploit variable air currents for upward and onward propulsion.

"The overwhelming majority of sailers are constructed of the same material as motor airplanes," said Dr. Boehmer. "The framework consists of very light wood, some parts being of light metal. The covering of the wings is the same as in the case of motor airplanes, a thin, impregnated material."

Hanover Record-Breaker Looks Like a Gull.

The Hanover students' record-breaking airboat, the Vampire, looks in the air like a huge, ungainly, angular, futuristic seagull. Examination of its structural details confirms the first impression that it is closely modeled on nature's soaring and skimming birds.

According to Dr. Boehmer, "as in motor airplanes the ends of the wings of the sailers consist of warpable surfaces controlled from the flier's seat in the centre, by means of which the wings are instantly adjusted to the varying air currents."

The "sailers" differ decidedly from motor airplanes in appearance and construction, however, in that the tips of their wings taper to a very fine point, whereas the middle part of the wings and that part near the rump are decidedly broader and thicker. In this thickening of the parts of the wings nearest the body lies the secret of the possibility of motorless sail-flight.

The rump of most "sailers" is a fuselage, closed on the front and sides, in which the flier sits. In a few types the flier is suspended below the wings by an arrangement of belts, which does not appear to be advantageous, however, owing to the increased air resistance. The fuselage is carried far back in the rump to secure equilibrium and has a stabilization plane at the extreme tail, which latter, however, is seldom used, since by warping the wings ends sidewise steering and flying are usually possible as well. The wing-span of the machines in the Rhön competition varies from seven to fifteen meters.

Many of the "sailers" differ from the motor airplanes in that their wings are not flat or only slightly curved planes, but, looked at from in front, are bent at an angle in the centre like the roof of a house. This wing construction has been adapted to nature's own models. The wings of monoplane "sailers" have a surface load of ten kilograms per square meter, though the record-breaking Vampire flown by Martens and Hentzen had the greatest load yet tried—twelve and one-half kilograms per square meter.

Lifted by Air-Whirlpools.

At first sight it seems as if the upward and forward motion of these "sailplanes" contradicted the mechanical laws of nature, but this apparent paradox is explained by a closer study of aerodynamics. It was the particular service of the brothers, Otto and Gustav Lilienthal, that they brought clarity into the character of sail flight. Taking nature as their teacher, they ascertained that sail flight (soaring) was always possible in a wind of at least eleven meters per second. If you place a wing built specially for soaring against the wind at the rate of eleven meters or more, then, to be sure the wind streams smoothly over the top of the wing rearward; but on the under-surface the diametrically opposite takes place. As the result of the thickening of the wings from the angle of the bent centre to the rump, there are formed under the wings air-whirlpools which have changed their directions. The wind streaming under the wings strikes the thickened section toward the rump, which forms air-whirlpools of which the layer has reversed its direction and now streams and presses upward and forward. These air-whirlpools, pressing from behind and from below the wing, therefore constitute a force which raises the "sailer" and carries it forward.

And, though this force is intrinsically very small, it is a cumulative force, and the longer it is exerted the more it accelerates the upward and forward motion of the "sailers."

Allen Starts for Germany.

PARIS, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Edmund Allen, the American pilot who, under the auspices of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, participated in the glider contests at Clermont-Ferrand, left here today with his companions for Gersfeld, Germany, determined to fly in the "sailplane" contest now in progress there, whether his trials should be considered in the competition or not.

Allen has been impressed with the record made last Saturday by Herr Hentzen, a student of the Hanover Technical School, who remained in the air two hours and ten seconds in a motorless machine.

The American pilot has not received acknowledgment of the receipt of his application to enter the German contest, and it is uncertain whether he would be allowed to compete for the prizes offered for the "sailplanes" which are making their experiments from the summit of the Wasserkuppe. Allen's only desire, however, is to be permitted to try out under official supervision his American machine, which was rushed through the German customs with the aid of the American Embassy and officials of the Army of Occupation, acting under instructions from the War Department.

"Relatively to the wind," Dr. Boehmer continued, "a sailer must therefore always have a speed of at least eleven meters per second; otherwise it will not be carried up or sustained in the air. Its rate of motion relatively to the earth depends entirely on the absolute rate of speed of the wind. According to Lilienthal's scientific investigations the angle of the incidence against the wind of the wings of a bird like a stork is four degrees and gives this bird at a wind-strength of twelve meters per second, an excess of lifting and driving power equivalent to nine-tenths of a kilogram per meter, which suffices to sustain and carry the stork forward. Through this forward motion, however, the bird's speed relatively to a contrary wind is increased, and, therefore, its forward motion is accelerated and increased.

Flyer May Start From Level Ground.

"Further increase of flying speed is limited by the wind resistance depending on the size of the bird's forehead. It is, therefore, not necessary that a motorless flyer start from the top of a hill or mountain. On the contrary, a start can be made from a flat country, and this alone is the perfect sail flying. The reason for now starting from a mountain top is merely to obtain greater initial speed against the wind in order to exploit more rapidly its lifting forces.

"The successes achieved in the Rhön Mountain region spell more than merely pure sportsmanship performances. They are supplying proofs of the shortcomings and insufficiencies of the theories at the basis of motorplane construction, and afford an outlook on the fundamental transformation of all human flying. Though much hard work must still be done, and many a life, perhaps, sacrificed to attain the goal which one begins only now to perceive, yet the events of the last few days have repaid the efforts of years, and confirmed the correctness of the way pursued. The scientific research and daring of our sailfliers will yield further successes."

SAYS HARDING BROKE FAITH WITH SHOPMEN

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Charging that President Harding had broken faith with the striking shopmen in his efforts to settle the railroad strike, Timothy Healy, International President of the Stationary Firemen, today called him "'that great big wall flower in the White House" in a speech before the convention of the New York State Federation of Labor. Healy referred to Chief Justice Taft as a man "who couldn't get a job as constable or dog catcher in any election anywhere in the United States."

"The President," said Healy, "after making his first peace proposition, asking the carriers to take back the strikers with seniority unimpaired, promised a committee of union men that he would use the big stick to make the railroads accept." Instead of that, the labor leader said, "the other fellow used the big stick on the President, who, when his proposal was turned down by the carriers, offered a second suggestion, that the men be taken back and the matter of seniority left to the Labor Board to settle.

"Last Friday," Healy continued, "the President in a speech to Congress threw up his hands and said he was unable to settle the strike."

"Teddy Roosevelt wouldn't have done that; Wilson wouldn't have broken faith with labor in that way."

Chief Justice Taft was criticised by Healy in referring to the action of the Supreme Court in declaring unconstitutional the Federal child labor law and for his opinion in the Coronado coal case. At the close of his address he introduced a resolution calling for legislation to provide for the recall of State Supreme Court Justices and the election of Appellate Division Justices by popular vote. The convention adopted the resolution without a dissenting vote.

On Governor Miller speakers from the floor and the platform placed the entire blame for what they called miserable administration of the labor laws in New York State, particularly the Workmen's Compensation act. Every appeal for his defeat in the elections this Fall brought responding applause.

After the charges had been made that insurance companies had an unfair influence over judging the amount of compensation injured workmen are to receive the convention adopted a resolution calling on the Governor to remove Henry D. Sayer as State Industrial Commissioner.

A collection of $225 to aid the striking railroad shopmen was taken up. In appealing for financial assistance F. E. Boland, International Vice President of the Blacksmiths' Union, said:

"The railroad managers are beat but they won't give in, because they are backed by the manufacturers and the kings of finance in Wall Street. The meeting in New York today will show whether Atterbury of the Pennsylvania, Underwood of the Erie and Loree of the Delaware and Hudson are bigger than our country."

Following an address by William F. Deegan, State Commander of the American Legion, the convention adopted a resolution pledging labor's support to the Legion's efforts to have all of the New York State men who were disabled in the war treated within the boundaries of the State and as near their homes as possible.

SICK MAN'S FRIENDS BURIED WRONG BODY

Undertaker and Man Who Paid Funeral Bills Start an Investigation.

When Thomas Mahalski saw his friend Louis Jasulkaic approaching him on Clinton Avenue, Elmhurst, yesterday afternoon, he dropped his cigar in amazement, for Mahalski and his friends thought they had buried Jasulkaic eight weeks ago in St. John's Cemetery, Long Island City. Mahalski paid the undertaker's bill out of funds of a death benefit society called the Frank Casmers Society of the Holy Cross Polish Catholic Church. Father A. Nawrocki of the Holy Cross Church performed the burial ceremony from the home of Joseph Mielko, a cousin, on Hull Avenue, near Clermont Avenue, Maspeth, L. I.

The body supposed to be Jasulkaic's was brought from the Kings County Hospital to Mielko's house by Joseph Urban, an undertaker living at Fisk Avenue, Woodside, and the two days of mourning, which is part of the Polish burial service, were gone through.

Jasulkaic, who is 40 years old, is said to be suffering from tuberculosis and has been in a hospital for some time. When he met Mahalski yesterday he said, "Hello, Tom," and put out his hand.

"You're supposed to be dead," responded the astonished Mahalski.

It took Jasulkaic some time to convince Mahalski that he was wrong. It also became clear to Jasulkaic why his friends hadn't come to see him lately.

Mahalski and Urban, the undertaker, are going to start an investigation to see who was buried.

MURDER BAFFLES PARIS POLICE

SEEK MYSTERIOUS WOMEN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The Paris police today are confronted with one of those baffling murders which cause hard thinking to the best detectives in large cities, a crime which, moreover, in this case is attended by mysterious and romantic elements.

"Father Formol," an old silversmith and engraver of precious metals, was found in the small hours of this morning bound and gagged and lying in a pool of blood in his little workshop in a tumbledown, ramshackle building situated in one of those winding old world streets in the populous "Enfants Rouges" district, strangely reminiscent of the Rue Morgue in Poe's famous tale.

The white-bearded, kindly old man was a familiar figure in the whole quarter, where young and old were accustomed to salute him with a friendly "Bonjour, Père Formol," whenever he passed by—though some, prompted by a certain resemblance he bore to the great French poet, addressed him as "Père Hugo."

Father Formol had a kindly word for all, and everybody thought that having known him so long they knew him well, knew all about him. Yet today the very first difficulty which confronts the police is that nobody can supply information as to his real identity.

On account of his distinguished bearing and educated manner of conversing, it was generally surmised that he had seen better days. But Father Formol, although never denying this when it was suggested, and sometimes even going so far as to admit that he might, had he not met with an unfortunate romance in his early life, have been filling today a high post in the country's service, never confided the details of his past even to those with whom he was most intimate.

Three or four times during the last ten years the curiosity of the neighborhood was excited when a smart carriage, and at a later period a big limousine, drove up the little street and stopped at Père Formol's door. From it each time stepped a fashionably gowned but heavily veiled woman, who remained closeted in the workshop for several hours, and then disappeared as mysteriously as she had arrived.

Last evening this strange visitor appeared again—a few hours, according to police calculations, before Formol was murdered with the implement he used for engraving and his shop looted. The police doubt that the visit was anything more than one of those strange coincidences which sometimes merely contribute to baffle them in their investigations. Nevertheless the best Paris detectives are trying to trace the woman.

Another clue, which may also be connected with the same romance, if romance there was, is that of a young woman who some time ago visited the victim. After she had gone a friend found Father Formol sitting huddled upon a stool before his work table, bewailing the loss of "all his money."

"She has taken all my savings, 40,000 francs," sobbed the old man.

But when his friend suggested that he should call the police, Father Formol drew himself up, said it was quite out of the question and angrily intimated that he wished to hear nothing more about it.

The fact remains, however, that the last time the victim was seen alive yesterday by a neighbor was when Père Formol assisted the first-mentioned woman to alight from her automobile and conducted her into his workshop.

MAN RUNS BLOCK WITH BULLET IN HEART, DIES

Shot by an unknown assassin at Fifty-first Street and Third Avenue in South Brooklyn last night, Peter Whalen, 25, ran a whole block with a bullet in his heart and fell dead at Fifty-second Street. Witnesses scattered in all directions as a man lurking in a doorway opened fire on Whalen, but detectives under Acting Captain George Busby of the Fourth Avenue Station said they thought they knew who did the shooting and anticipated prompt arrests.

Whalen, whose last address of record was 260 Fifty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, is believed to have been killed in a bootleggers' row. The police say he was making an illicit living as a rum runner. He had been known to the authorities since he was 11 years old.

In February, 1912, he was sent to the Catholic Protectory for stealing pigeons. In March, 1914, he was committed to the House of Refuge. In December, 1916, he was sent to Elmira Reformatory. The police record shows no disposition for the next three charges against him, the entries merely stating that he was arrested for grand larceny in December, 1920, for petit larceny in January, 1921, and for felonious assault in June, 1921. In March of this year Whalen was arrested again for assault, but "beat the case" because the complainant failed to identify him.

4 ITALIAN AVIATORS KILLED.

2 Pilots and 2 Observers Crushed in Collision of Military Machines.

RIMA, Italy, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Two military airplanes collided in midair near here today at a height of 1,000 feet. The two pilots and two observers were crushed to death under the wreckage of the machines.

Those killed were Salvatore Monmenti, who was a member of d'Annunzio's famous squadron which flew over Vienna in the course of the war; Lieutenant Nicole Cena, Captain Attilio Vinzinal and Captain Vittorio Forcelli.

Bomb in Budapest Court Building.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—An unexploded bomb was found today in the hall of the Criminal Court Building here, near the entrance. The police have been unable to determine the motive for planting the bomb or find any clue to the identity of the persons who did so.

Spain's Postal Strike Collapses.

MADRID, Aug. 23.—The striking postal workers at a meeting today agreed to resume their duties. In announcing their willingness to return to work they requested the Government not to penalize them for having struck. The decision of the strikers was communicated to Premier Sanchez Guerra.

SEIZED TELEFUNKEN ASKS COMPENSATION

RETURNING SOON TO BERLIN

Lawyer Here After Consultation With German Clients With Claims Against U. S.

Alfred Frankenthaler, a lawyer of 120 Broadway, and former Assistant in the New York Port Alien Enemy Bureau of the Department of Justice, returned yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic after a consultation with his clients in Germany regarding their claims for German property seized here during the war. Concerning the German wireless interests, the Telefunken, whom he represents, Frankenthaler said:

"There is no secret about the matter. A German corporation commonly called the 'Telefunken,' owned and operated the Sayville wireless station prior to the war and in connection with its operation made use of a group of patents having to do with wireless. The Sayville station and this group of patents constitute one of the most valuable German properties in the United States. It was of invaluable use to the Germans prior to our entry in the war after the interruption of the cable lines. Since the United States broke off relations with Germany, the United States Navy Department commandeered the station and operated it in the interests of the United States. After the creation of the office of the Alien Property Custodian and the Trading with the Enemy act, title to the Sayville plant and the patents mentioned was effected by seizure by the Alien Property Custodian and sold for a nominal consideration to the United States.

"There is no question that the United States Government had the right to commandeer the Sayville station for our use during the war, and there would have been no excuse had it failed to do so; it was absolutely necessary that this be done as a defense measure. But it is equally clear that when the Government commandeers or condemns private property, it must fairly indemnify and compensate the owners."

Mr. Frankenthaler agreed that the title passed to the United States was good and said that the only contingency which could arise to defeat this title, except legislation, would arise in case the sale to the United States was ordered voided unless an adequate purchase price was paid to the Alien Property Custodian. Of conditions in Germany and Austria, he said:

"The foreign influx is great, the cheap marks and kronen being the magnet; one of the greatest pastimes of the foreigner is to watch the exchange and speculate accordingly. The American, of course, finds everything very cheap, for with his dollars he is able to purchase huge sums in marks and kronen; but lately the storekeepers are asking prices of Americans in dollars and in most instances asking several times as much as is charged to natives. Work in Germany is plentiful, but the workman is poor. The desire to change money into goods and wares lest it be worth considerably less on the morrow creates a tremendous buying mania which, in turn, keeps the factory chimnies smoking. So that you have the anomalous situation of the average citizen without money, while the factories are working full blast and unemployment is at a minimum."

Mr. Frankenthaler said that he would go to Washington to confer with the authorities there and then return to Germany in another month.

HIS LICENSE REVOKED, TAXI MAN USED CARD

In a reply to Magistrate Frederick B. House of the Traffic Court, Commissioner Walter H. Knapp of the State Tax Commission explains how the chauffeur whose license had been revoked by the Magistrate on July 20 was able to create the impression that his license had been restored by the State Motor Vehicle Bureau.

The chauffeur, Theodore Lavoise, was sentenced to the workhouse for thirty days on July 20 for driving while intoxicated and his license revoked. On Aug. 22 Lavoise was again arraigned before Magistrate House and pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and was sentenced to ninety days. He showed a card bearing the same number as the license previously revoked.

"The explanation is simple," says Commissioner Knapp in his reply. "It appears that Lavoise did not turn in his license card on July 20 when you revoked his license, and after his release from the workhouse he undertook to drive without a badge on the strength of the card which he had retained. Only one such card has been issued to him.

"We take this occasion to state that the Tax Commission has at all times co-operated with the City Magistrates and that it has established a rule that no license revoked because of intoxication of the driver or chauffeur will be restored by the commission for the period of one year from the date of revocation. This is our rule, and so far as we know, there have been no exceptions. We wish you would impress upon drivers, whether chauffeurs or operators, that driving a car while in a state of intoxication is regarded by the Tax Commission as one of the most serious offenses against the highway and traffic laws, and when the Magistrate feels that the offense is sufficient to warrant a revocation of license, in no case will it be restored for the period of one year, and not then unless the operator or chauffeur shows that he has made good."

Commissioner Knapp came to the city yesterday from Albany. At the New York Motor Vehicle Bureau, Broadway and Sixty-fifth Street, he said that a chauffeur whose license had been revoked for intoxication a few days ago appeared before him that morning and pleaded for its restoration. Several licenses have been revoked for that cause since Jan. 1, said the Commissioner, and in no case has our rule been broken by withholding a hearing for restoration until the expiration of one year.

IMPLICATES FIVE IN MURDER

Baltimore Prisoner Names Companions in Killing and Robbery.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 23.—Frank J. Allers, under arrest on suspicion of being implicated in the murder of William R. Norris and the robbery of his firm's payroll last Friday, today confessed to participation in the crime and named his associates—four in number—police authorities stated.

Allers, according to the police, said that Walter Sacalow of Baltimore fired the shots that killed Norris. James ("Jack") Hart of Baltimore and New York, John L. ("Wizzles") Smith, Baltimore, and Charles P. Carey, Baltimore, were the other participants, and all were in the automobile in which the bandits escaped. Sacalow and Hart are still at liberty. The other three are in jail here.

Six Days of
"Furniture at Half"

Closing the August Sale

Any furniture to be bought within the next six months can be bought NOW to best advantage.

That is the message we should like to broadcast far and wide.

—To visitors within New York.

—To residents of New York who may be in the country, but who will find it worth while coming to town and selecting the furniture before it is too late to get these low prices.

—To all residents of the ten million population circle around New York City.

Furniture can be bought to best advantage now because:

1. Prices are lowest in several years.

2. Prices are not likely to go lower; in fact advance in cost of plate glass will send higher such things as bureaus, chiffoniers, dressing-tables, cheval glasses.

3. Prices in the August Sale are 10 to 50 per cent. lower on our entire stock than they will be during the next six months, so far as we can see ahead.

4. Large quantities of this good Wanamaker furniture are offered at exactly half price during the closing days of the sale, according to our usual custom. This "furniture at half" is grouped in front of the Ninth Street elevators on the fifth and sixth galleries, and many amazing opportunities will be found.

But there are only six days more—today and Friday of this week; Monday to Thursday of next week.

On September 1st the August tags will be removed from the furniture and standard prices will again prevail.

It has been a wonderful sale, in volume, attendance, values, and happiness that it has given to purchasers. It would be a pity should any one come too late to share its advantages.

HIRSHFIELD IN SPAT WITH DR. BUCHLER

HEARING ARRIVES NOWHERE

Commissioner of Accounts Reads a Statement and Declares the Hearing Adjourned.

Obedient to a Supreme Court order that he testify before David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, in an investigation into the Department of Public Markets, Dr. Samual Buchler, former Deputy Commission of Markets, presented himself at Commissioner Hirshfield's office yesterday. Accompanied by two men, Dr. Buchler was summoned before the Commissioner after waiting in an outer office for an hour.

The Commissioner leveled his gavel at one of Dr. Buchler's companions and said:

"Who is that man and what's he doing here?"

"Why that's my attorney, Murray Riehman, my law partner, you know," replied Dr. Buchler.

"Who is he?" asked the Commissioner waving at the other man. "What's he here for?"

"He's going to take notes so that I can get the correct minutes of this hearing," answered Dr. Buchler.

After quiet was restored Commissioner Hirshfield read a statement in which he said:

"The Department of Public Markets is an administrative department entirely under the jurisdiction of the Mayor and subject to investigation by the Commissioner of Accounts. The functions of the Department of Public Markets are of great moment to the people and it has done a great deal in the last year or two to bring about a reduction in the cost of living, particularly to the poor in the congested sections of the city.

"As I view it, while we expect every one working for the city to be honest, it is not really of such great moment whether this or that supervisor has collected 25 cents or 50 cents more than he has accounted for, as it is to bring home cheap food to those who cannot afford to pay high prices for same. However, be that as it may, the City Administration is well able to cope with the situation and I cannot for the world see why the great District Attorney of Kings County should devote so much of his time and the time of his assistants with this purely administrative matter when there are so many burglars, highwaymen and stick-up men to be prosecuted and convicted."

When Commissioner Hirshfield concluded the reading of his statement, Dr. Buchler, his stenographer and his lawyer, and Commissioner of Markets O'Malley waited for him to go on.

"I said the hearing is adjourned," snapped Hirshfield, who rose and left the room.

DEATH THREAT MADE TO HERRIN INQUISITOR

Illinois Attorney General Told to Keep Away From Scene of Mine Massacre.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 23.—Threats of death if he goes into Williamson County to conduct an investigation of the Herrin massacre have been received by Attorney General Brandage, he said tonight, while preparing for the Grand Jury investigation at Marion Monday.

A letter dated at Herrin and mailed at Pekin advises him to "keep out of Williamson if you know what's good for you."

The Attorney General and United States District Attorney Middlekauf will have personal charge of the Grand Jury inquiry. Mr. Brundage started tonight for Chicago to make ready for the convening of the jury which has been summoned by special deputies appointed by him.

A large amount of evidence would be introduced, he said, but how long the inquiry would last he was unable to say.

HINTON AND HIS CREW TAKEN TO GUANTANAMO

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The cruiser Denver, which last night picked up Walter Hinton and his companions of the Rio-bound seaplane Sampaio Correia, wrecked yesterday while en route from the Bahamas to Haiti, reported to the Navy Department at noon today that she was proceeding to Guantanamo, Cuba, with the disabled plane in tow.

The message, timed 6:15 o'clock this morning, said:

"Denver proceeding to Guantanamo with Lieutenant Hinton and crew aboard, and plane in tow. Expect to arrive about 4 o'clock. Plane wrecked. Lieutenant Hinton and crew in excellent condition."

2 ARMY FLIERS FALL INTO SEA, BUT ESCAPE

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Aug. 23.—Two army fliers who left here this afternoon for a bombing demonstration off Fort Hancock fell into the ocean at the end of the manoeuvres, after their plane had been damaged in landing on the beach. The mishap occurred only a few yards offshore and both were uninjured.

Lieutenant H. R. Rivers was the pilot and Lieutenant Victor E. Bertrandias the bombing officer. They left Mitchel Field with three other planes and off Fort Hancock dropped ten bombs at a derelict, eight of the ten being hits.

CAR KILLS M. B. RIGGS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Seized with a fainting spell, Miles B. Riggs, 28 years old, of White Plains, N. Y., was fatally injured when he fell under the wheels of a motor truck near Waldorf, Md., this afternoon.

Riggs was placed on a passing automobile and taken to the office of a near-by physician. Shortly after 3 o'clock he was transferred to the Casualty Hospital, where he died five minutes after being admitted.

came wary. They began to leave. By midnight Monday only seventeen were left. Foster and Mrs. Stokes were among the absentees. And just before dawn Tuesday Sheriff Bridgeman and the Federal agents swooped down and the entire seventeen were rounded up. Chief among them was C. E. Ruthenberg, once a candidate for Mayor at Cleveland, one of the most widely known radicals in the nation. Arrested a number of times, he is still under indictment in Chicago for his activities with the party here in 1919-20. He is now the National Executive Secretary of the Workers' Party of America, a radical organization, and is the head of its activities in this country.

These Under Arrest.

Also under arrest are Norman Polleline, head of the British branch of the party; William E. Dunne, editor of The Worker, a radical organ of Butte, Mont.; Caleb Harrison, a Chicagoan who has been lecturing for the Communist groups; Thomas R. Sullivan, St. Louis, Chairman of the National Convention of the Workers' Party; William Reynolds and Cyrill Lambkin, Detroit adherents; Max Lerner of Seattle; Francis Ashworth of Camden, N. J.; Alexander Bell of Philadelphia, Pa.; J. Michelic, Kansas City; Thomas O'Flaherty, New York; Z. Nordling, Portland, Ore., and Charles Erickson, Chicago. The last, it is said, will not be held.

Following the raid the Federal agents discovered a mound of fresh earth and below it two barrels. One contained five typewriters and a mimeograph machine. The other contained seventy-three bulky parchment envelopes, containing lists of membership of the Communist Party; opposite the name of each member were cabalistic markings to denote their standing in revolutionary work.

Plans were found written by secretaries of Lenin and Trotsky in Russia, plans whereby the Government of the United States might be supplanted by a Government of Soviets. There were scores of pamphlets, some in English, some in Russian, all advocating the utmost in revolutionary tactics. The story of how the army and navy and police system were to be overcome in the final battle between "the proletariat and the capitalist" was retold.

Warrants for Foster, who as the head of the Gary steel strike and later as the organizer of the Trades Union Educational League has achieved more actual publicity than any radical, were sworn out by the Federal officers. When he turned up at his office today he was immediately arrested.

Foster declared his intention of employing the best of counsel to fight not only extradition but the charges.

"This whole thing is a frame-up," he declared. "They can't prove that I have ever advocated any revolutionary tactics in my life. I have not had anything to do with advocation of revolutionary tactics, and they know it. This is a scheme to block the holding of our national convention in Chicago on Aug. 26. That's all."

The search for Mrs. Stokes and for others in the convention was well under way tonight. It was rumored that six persons already had been arrested in Chicago, and that two more arrests were to be made later. These rumors could not be confirmed.

To Undermine Army and Navy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The arrest of alleged Communists after the secret convention of the Communist Party at Bridgeman, Mich., yesterday, by Michigan State authorities, disclosed a program for the organization of Communists groups in the army and navy and for the initiation of militant action on the part of radicals in the United States, according to information from official sources in Washington today.

William J. Burns, Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, declined to comment in any way on the Michigan arrests, but in other quarters it was said that a definite connection between the Communist Internationale of Soviet Russia and the Friends of Soviet Russia in the United States had been established with the Communist Party, otherwise known in America under its reorganization name as the Workers' Party.

Officials said last year the secret convention of Communists was held undisturbed at Wopdstock, N. Y. This year, they added, the place of assemblage was set for Chicago, and the delegates were then taken across Lake Michigan to Bridgeman. Information, however, was placed in the hands of the Michigan Commissioner of Public Safety by secret agents and the trap was sprung, but not before some had escaped.

William Dunn, one of those taken into custody at Bridgeman, was declared by officials to be the Gubernatorial candidate of the Workers' Party in New York at the election next November. He was for many years, it was added, editor of The Butte Daily Bulletin and has been active in the radical movement, particularly in the Communist and Workers' Parties.

Charles E. Ruthenberg, another of those taken in the Bridgeman raid, is described in official reports as having recently been released from prison in New York, to which he had been sentenced for activities for the overthrow of the Government. He has been active in the Communist and Workers' Parties, and was further described as having been "particularly active during the war in the anti-draft propaganda."

Caleb Harrison, also arrested at Bridgeman, is described as having been interested in the Sacco-Vanzetti defense campaign at Dedham, Mass., and in the activities of the Friends of Soviet Russia, having with Dr. Jacob W. Hartman of New York, called the convention together at which that organization was formed.

Berie Reinstein, asserted by officials to be the former Red Army propagandist, was sent to the United States, they said, by the Communist Internationale to increase propaganda here. He was declared to be considered by the Communists their best organizer and propagandist.

Much of the time of the convention, officials said, in addition to the discussion of the program for formation of groups in the army and navy and for initiating militant action here, was devoted to the settlement of differences in the radical movement and the firmer establishment of the Communist Party as the directing element in the movement in the United States.

Carey Leads in Wyoming Primary.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 23.—Count of one-half of the State's precincts today in the Republican primaries showed Governor Carey in the lead for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination after a see-saw contest in which he and his opponent, John W. Hay, alternated with margins of 100 or 200 votes. In 320 precincts out of a total of 457 Governor Carey's lead had jumped to 1,414, a margin which his friends declared was indicative of victory. The vote stood, Carey 9,967, Hay 8,553.

often refused thrones of various countries, the last being Albania, which finally was accepted by the famous Prince Dwied.

Even if the Duke of Aosta scheme fails Italy certainly will continue to struggle to keep Austria out of the Little Entente which is sure to bring her into opposition to France. Italian and French policies are diametrically opposite. France fears Germany and wishes a strong Little Entente in order to keep Germany in order. Italy does not fear Germany, but fears Austria. Therefore, she wishes a weak Little Entente in order to have no complications on the Eastern frontier.

ROME, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Italy claims Austria as an Italian protectorate and the Duke of Aosta is spoken of as the first Italian Viceroy, according to an article which appeared in Il Paese today in connection with Chancellor Seipel's visit to Prague and Berlin.

Il Paese says that the struggle is being fought between France and Italy over the disposition of Austria. The former insists that Austria must join the Little Entente, says the journal. This plan is energetically opposed by Italy, as the strengthening of the Little Entente means an increase in the power of Jugoslavia, the article contends. From this, Il Paese concludes that Italy's salvation lies in admitting Austria into an economic union with Italy, which will thus act as the protector.

GERMANY PROMISES AID.

Agrees to Help Austria Whenever It Is Possible.

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—It is semi-officially announced that the German Government has promised to assist her sorely tried neighbor, Austria, whenever it is possible. The promise was made in consequence of conversations that had been going on between Dr. Seipel, the Austrian Chancellor; Herr Segur, Austrian Minister of Finance, and officials of the German Government.

Addressing the newspaper men today, Herr Segur said the London conference had been a disappointment to Austria on account of its having submitted the Austrian question to the League off Nations. A gratifying sign, however, was the Reparation Commission's decision to abandon liens. Herr Segur added there had been no question of begging for help to stave off an impending collapse, since a continuation of the budgetary regime was secure for the present.

"Misery loves company" is the recurring motif in the editorial reflections with which the Berlin press greets the visit here of Chancelor Seipel of Austria.

"Any material aid Germany is able to extend to her neighbor is bound to be meagre and severely restricted, for Germany's hour of fate will also soon strike unless her former foes hastily abandon their present folly and decide to give her a breathing space," says the Lokal-Anzeiger, which believes a working union between Austrian and German industrial and financial circles might be accomplished in the absence of direct aid on the part of Germany.

The Chancellor's visit gives a new impetus to the suggestion that Austria's rescue can only be accomplished by union with Germany. Says Vorwärts: "We believe that even under the existing conditions, amalgamation is the most obvious solution."

LITTLE ENTENTE STRONGER.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The fanfare over the reparations negotiations has diverted attention from important developments in Central Europe. Plans are being laid which may have a basic effect in continental politics.

There are two developments worthy of notice—one is the efforts of Austria to establish an association with some other nation to better her sorry plight, and the second is the project of a twenty-year alliance between Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia, to which Rumania and Poland may become associated, thus establishing the Little Entente on a more solid foundation. Inasmuch as the Little Entente was created in 1920 under French encouragement, and shapes its policies in accord with Paris it will be seen that the consolidation of the Little Entente in turn consolidates the French dominated crescent stretching through Europe enclosing Germany and formed of Poland, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, France herself and Belgium.

Despite the attention paid to the visit of the Austrian Chancellor to Berlin, France, in accord with her smaller allies, has not the slightest idea of permitting the union of Austria and Germany, and a note to the Austrian Government this week recalls that under the terms of the peace treaties such a union is barred and mention that the Allies will see that the terms of these provisions are enforced. Of course, every one is entitled to his own ideas on the right of the Allies thus to dictate to Austria after they have failed after two years of promises to come to the aid of the stricken little country. That, however, doesn't change the determination of the French bloc to prevent the mooted move by Austria, and it may be taken for granted that one of the provisions of the treaty being framed between Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia is the pledge of mutual efforts to prevent the annexation of Austria by the German Reich.

Undoubtedly a factor in the apparently successful effort of Premier Benes of Prague to bring about a tightening of the bonds of the Little Entente was the failure of Lloyd George's plan for a Continental peace treaty. At Genoa the nations signed a provisory non-aggression pact which was to end one month after the close of The Hague conference, it being the British Prime Minister's hope that, as a result of The Hague meeting, the treaty could be written for a ten-year period. Now The Hague conference has been over one month and the treaty seems in the discard.

Coupled with this the Rapallo treaty between Germany and Russia has greatly disturbed the Little Entente and has appeared to make a closer alliance more to be desired. While there have been some hitches in the plans for the Marienbad meeting of the Little Entente nations, the delay seems due only to the preliminary negotiations which will probably be completed at Prague prior to the Marienbad conference. At Genoa, Benes conceived the idea of a twenty-year union of the Little Entente and received the approval of the French. It was Benes's idea that a regional treaty could be incorporated in the general arrangement planned by Lloyd George. The temporary submersion of the British Premier's plan has not caused Benes to think less of his idea.

According to the Little Entente statesmen the purposes of their treaty will be to enforce the Danubian clauses of the Versailles Treaty, to prevent any restoration of the Hapsburgs either in Vienna or Budapest and to prevent the union of Austria with Germany.

Italy is watching with greatest interest the development of the Little Entente plans. Generally speaking, Italy is on good terms with the Little Entente whose objects coincide in many points with Italian foreign policy. However, there still are differences outstanding between Italy and Jugoslavia with respect to the Adriatic, and Foreign Minister Schanzer is said to see possible difficulties in a hard and fast alliance between Belgrade and Prague which might bring the support of Czechoslovakia to Jugoslavia in international negotiations over points of difference between Rome and Belgrade. In any event, Italy will support the efforts of Benes to prevent Austria joining Germany, for only ten days ago at London Schanzer said Rome would send an army into Austria if such a move were necessary to prevent the assimilation of that country by Germany.

In this connection it is interesting to note that Austrian agents have been several weeks, it is learned, in negotiation with bankers at Rome, Paris and London to obtain funds to start a new bank of emission. The bankers have demanded that their advances up to 10,000,000 francs-gold be guaranteed by the Italian, French and British Governments. This project now is being considered by the allied Cabinets.

But, above all, the new Central European developments point to the strengthening of France's political position in Europe. The trend is all the more important in the view of the French determination to practice toward Germany a policy independent of the British. The increase of French political strength would have its effect on such a movement as will in the proposed general European conference for November and in the Assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva next month. In the present circumstances any augmentation of French political strength on the Continent means a corresponding decrease of British influence there.

SEIPEL INVITED TO PARIS.

French Back Czechoslovakia in Her Austrian Policy.

PARIS, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—It is reliably reported in Paris that Ignaz Seipel, the Australian Chancellor, who is now in Berlin, has received an invitation from the French Government to come to Paris to discuss means by which Austria may be assisted in her present difficulties.

In well informed sources it was indicated today that France has fully approved the efforts of Czechoslovakia to save the political and economic existence of Austria.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—King Alexander of Jugoslavia and M. Benes, the Czechoslovakian Premier, met today at Tatra, a Slovakian mountain resort, and agreed upon important questions with regard to Austria-Hungary, according to seemingly reliable reports in circulation here.

The news that the Austrian Chancellor Seipel was going to Prague was received with increased nervousness, due to apprehension that Austria, in her extreme need, will accept Czechoslovakian sovereignty, thus completely isolating Hungary.

VIENNA RIOTERS FORCE PARLIAMENT DOORS

VIENNA, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Several thousand unemployed persons, dissatisfied because the Government had rejected or delayed its answer to their demands, today unhinged the doors of the Parliament Building and entered, wrecking the furniture.

It's Easy Now to Curl Hair to Stay Curled

To curl the hair to stay curled, nothing equals the simple silmerine method. If a little liquid silmerine be applied with a clean tooth brush before doing up the hair on curlers, the loveliest wavy effect imaginable will be in evidence in three hours, and this will last a long time, regardless of temperature or humidity.

This method, instead of injuring the hair, is really beneficial. A few ounces of liquid silmerine, which may be procured at any drug store, will last for months. The best way is to divide the hair into strands and moisten each of them from root to tip. The curliness will look perfectly "natural," and the hair will be beautifully glossy, yet without the least stickiness or stickiness.

RYAN'S POSSESSIONS BRING ONLY $8,600

Stutz Promoter Says He Is Still in Business but Is Not Paying Rent.

Allan A. Ryan, who failed for $18,000,000, submitted yesterday to his first examination in the bankruptcy proceedings. Mr. Ryan, before Referee Peter B. Olney, at 68 William Street, was questioned concerning some of the details of his financial affairs, several of them relating to his personal assets. The examination, after a few questions, most of them perfunctory, was discontinued until the next hearing, on Wednesday.

David Hunter Miller, attorney for the trustee, Francis G. Caffey, conducted the examination. Mr. Caffey, with the approval of Mr. Olney, later sold tangible assets consisting of seventeen items, including jewelry, for $5,600.

Mr. Ryan was first questioned about bills for taxes for 1921 and 1922 from the city. One was for a tax on $50,000 personal property. Ryan said that he had never had $50,000 personal property and had therefore never paid it. The city had never sought judgment as a result of his refusal to pay, he said.

Mr. Ryan testified that he had borrowed all but about $1,100 of the loan value of three life insurance policies. Their total face value was $50,000, and his wife, Sarah T. Ryan, was named as beneficiary in all of them. He said that he had started borrowing on the insurance about a year ago.

The only assets of Allan A. Ryan & Co., in which Kenneth R. Howard was his partner, were office furniture worth about $200, according to the bankrupt.

Ryan was asked about his one-fifth interest in the estate of his mother. He said he had no idea of its value and referred Mr. Miller to his brother, John D. Ryan, and the Central Trust Company.

The ownership of fifty shares of Royal Typewriter Company stock was inquired into. Mr. Ryan said that he believed they were the property of his wife.

Ryan said that he was still carrying on some of his affairs at 111 Broadway.

"Who is paying the rent," Mr. Miller asked.

"Nobody pays the rent," was his reply.

The tangible assets which were sold by Trustee Caffey included promissory notes of Rowland Thomas for $1,200 and Theodore S. Tack for $2,000, and a certificate of membership in the Knollwood Country Club redeemable for $250.

SOVIET NOW SEEKING NEW FIELDS IN ASIA

Angora Organ Calls on Moscow to Take the Lead in Organizing a Conference.

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 23.—Further light is thrown on Russia's Asiatic policy by a quotation from a recent issue of an Angora newspaper prominently featured in Isvestia, appealing for a conference of Asiatic peoples. The writer contrasts "the political and capitalistic intrigues" of the Genoa and The Hague conferences with the conference he proposes of free Asiatic people who "have a common bond in the avoidance of European exploitation and aggression."

The article concludes with an appeal to the Soviet Government to take the lead in organizing the conference—the article is headed, "Hope in Russia." The writer makes it clear that he does not advocate so much opposition to Europe. He says, "If we can settle economic difficulties we can be of the greatest help in European reconstruction."

The Soviet Government already has definitely espoused the principle of the independence of Asiatic peoples. This article coincides with the present Russian attitude, and is evidence of the degree in which Russia won Asiatic confidence. This latter point is especially important in view of the trend of Russian policy to become the leader of the Asiatic powers in default or pending a satisfactory arrangement with Europe or America. It shows, too, how much water has run under the bridge since the abortive Communist Pan-Asiatic conference at Baku in 1920, when Asiatic representatives were scared by the threat and insistence of Bela Kun and Zinoviev on the Russian opposition to religion and rights of private property. Today, however, Russia has proved by her treatment of Persia, Afghanistan, Khiva, Bokhra and Turkey that she developed a new national policy, apart from Communism, which, in essence, aims at nothing less than a Monroe Doctrine for Asia.

WEEKS BACKS BECK FINDING

He Will Also Send Army Officers' Report to Oklahoma Official.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The Secretary of War today made known that he had approved the findings of the board of army officers which investigated the killing of Lieut. Col. Paul W. Beck of the Army Air Service by Judge J. P. Day at the latter's home in Oklahoma City last April, and that he would send a copy of the board's proceedings to the Attorney General of Oklahoma.

Secretary Weeks declined to amplify this statement, but it is well understood at the War Department that the testimony taken by the board and the finding that "the death of Lieut. Col. Beck was not due to his own wilful misconduct" are intended as a hint to the Oklahoma authorities that the department expects them to reopen the case in the interest of justice.

A Coroner's jury absolved Judge Day, who testified that he found Colonel Beck attacking Mrs. Day. The local authorities at Oklahoma City have failed to take further action.

Secretary Weeks declined to give out the testimony taken by the army board, but made public the board's findings, as follows:

"(a) That Lieut. Col. Paul W. Beck, A. S., died at 411 West Nineteenth Street, Oklahoma City, Okla., between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock A. M., April 4, 1922, from a gunshot wound in the head.

"(b) That Lieut. Col. Paul W. Beck, A. S., was not at the time of his death on leave status, but in Oklahoma City on an authorized routine cross-country flight undertaken in accordance with the training requirements of the Air Service and duly authorized by himself in his capacity as commanding officer, Post Field. That he met his death in the home of one Jean P. Day, at the time and date specified, as the result of a gunshot wound in the head, inflicted by a revolver held in the hand of the said Jean P. Day.

"(c) That the death of Lieut. Col. Paul W. Beck, A. S., occurred in the line of duty.

"(d) That the death of Lieut. Col. Paul W. Beck, A. S., was not due to his own wilful misconduct."

Boy Killed by Brewer's Truck.

While riding his bicycle down Jefferson Street Samuel Silbering, 11 years old, of 143 Division Street, was run down and killed yesterday evening by a horse-drawn truck belonging to the Munch Brewing Company. Police last night were hunting the truck driver, who did not stop.

COUPLE EJECTED FROM THEIR HOME

Mme. Parma and Her Husband, Albert Houghton Pratt, in Arrears.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., Aug. 23.—Mme. F. Mildred Parma and Albert Houghton Pratt, who figured conspicuously in the news several years ago, have been ousted from their home, which is known here as the "Little White House." They went out as a result of a writ of assistance issued against them by Vice Chancellor Foster recently in Newark.

They arranged to buy the house for $8,500 five years ago and paid $1,500, but when the balance was due some time later they did not make a payment. They started an action for a reformation of the deed, but Vice Chancellor Foster decided against them.

Immediately after the decision, a writ of demand for possession of the property was served upon Mme. Parma on behalf of the owner, Arthur N. Hanson. She ignored it and retained possession of the property. Hanson then obtained the writ of assistance, which was served on Monday.

Pratt, according to Deputy Sheriff James P. McCann, who served the writ, declared that he had married Mme. Parma in 1919. Both the man and the woman quoted Scripture to the deputy in an attempt to dissuade him from ordering them out. He told them he had the greatest respect for Holy Writ, but that it did not apply in this instance.

The couple left the house, but Hanson agreed to permit their furniture to remain until the next day. It was then removed and Mme. Parma announced that it would be stored in Red Bank. The pair would not tell where they were going to live.

Pratt is said to be a nephew of a man named Houghton in the firm of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., publishers. Pratt's wife, Mrs. Catherine Sloane Pratt, sued for divorce in Manhattan, naming Mme. Parma as co-respondent. Pratt was an editor for the concern and owned some stock that he sold and gave the money to Mme. Parma, along with other money that brought the sum to $48,000.

GIRL AND A BOY DROWNED,

One Falls Into Lake Hopatcong, Other Into Riando Pond.

Wandering away from her mother, Audrey Fitz Gibbon, the 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Fitz Gibbon of Sea Cliff, L. I., fell off a pier and was drowned in Lake Hopatcong on Tuesday.

Mrs. Fitz Gibbon went to Lake Hopatcong last Friday with her four children. While she and friends were preparing to go swimming on Tuesday little Audrey escaped attention, reached the end of a pier and fell into the water. She was missed five minutes later, but her body was not found for some time.

Benjamin Sunneberg, 10 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Sunneberg of the County Road, Tenafly, was drowned in the Riando Pond at Creskill Tuesday night. He fell from a springboard.

AUTOS HIT; BABY SLEEPS ON

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 23.—A six-months-old baby in an automobile slept on after the car had collided with another and thrown out John Ryan of 67 Marquette Avenue, Yonkers, who was rushed to the Grasslands Hospital dying of a fractured skull.

The accident was at Elmsford, when Mr. and Mrs. Percy McElreath of Rockaway, N. J., were on their way to catch a ferry at Tarrytown. Ryan's car shot across in front of them and turned over as it was struck. Ryan was the only one hurt.

A New Tread—a Lower Price Reliable Goodyear Quality

Here is a new Goodyear Cord Tire—a big, sturdy, long-wearing tire—that sells at a price lower than you are asked to pay for many "long discount" tires of unknown value.

It has a different tread from the famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread Cord—a new tread with a deep, clean-cut, cog-like pattern—and it sells for substantially less.

It has in it the same high-grade long-staple cotton, the same Goodyear patented group-ply construction, the same liberally oversize dimensions.

In many cases, these other cords are made of inferior materials, with short-staple cotton as a foundation.

EUROPEAN THEATRES WEAK FROM THE WAR

Sees No Danger of Invasion of United States by European Films, Which Are Inferior to Ours.

John Emerson, President of the Actors' Equity Association, returned yesterday with his wife, Anita Loos, on the White Star liner Majestic after spending five months in Europe investigating movie conditions. He said there was no danger of an invasion of the United States by European films as the producers over there fail to satisfy American audiences. Speaking of the theatrical outlook generally in Europe, Mr. Emerson said:

"The theatre in all the European countries is still suffering from the ravages of war. There has been a great improvement during the last two years; but the European stage is still far below its pre-war standard. In Germany and Austria and in Italy the falling off is particularly noticeable, due largely to the lack of money for the encouragement of the writing of plays or the making of fine productions. In England the theatre is gradually coming back to its former fine position.

"The French, with their extraordinary resiliency, have gone furthest in regaining their old brilliancy and vigor. Some of the performances of the Comédie Française and a few other of the better theatres were as fine this season as they have ever been at any time. Here again, however, there are very few new writers of any great promise.

"In fact, my five months of theatre-going in Europe have increased enormously my faith in the future of the American stage. Even today our theatre is, in many ways, far ahead of that of any European country, and I have every reason to believe that the American stage is in a process of development which will place it in the forefront of the entire world.

"The actors in all the countries of Europe are thoroughly organized, as they should be. In several countries the union shop is in successful operation and is accepted by the managers as a matter of course. It will probably be put in operation in England this Winter.

"I was delighted to hear of the appointment of Augustus Thomas to the post of Executive Chairman of the Producing Managers' Association. Mr. Thomas is an ideal man for the position, and I believe his appointment will go far to bridge whatever misunderstanding still exists between the managers and actors."

Other theatrical folks on the Majestic were Peggy O'Neill, fresh from London, where she played 380 performances in the Savoy Theatre in "Paddy the Next Best Thing," and then to Dublin, where she played in Ibsen's "Doll's House."

Francine Larrimore returned to open in Boston with her new play "Nancy Stair." The scene is laid in Scotland, she said, and she went to see that country. Miss Shirley Kellogg came back after a three months' tour in Europe.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Contrary to announcement, "Lonely Wives" will not open at the Eltinge Theatre tonight, but will remain on tour. A change in bookings will bring Maugham's "East of Suez" to the Eltinge on Sept. 11. "East of Suez" had been previously announced for the Times Square.

"Dolly Jordan," by B. Iden Payne, will be produced at the 63d Street Music Hall on Wednesday night, Sept. 27, by John Cort. The cast will include Josephine Victor, Whitford Kane, Alphons Ethier, Amelia Gardner and others.

The new mystery play, "The Warning," will instead be known as "The Last Warning." It will be produced in New York in October, with Robert Edeson in the leading role.

The comedy to be produced at the Booth Theatre on Labor Day by Brock Pemberton will be known as "The Plot Thickens." It is an adaptation from the Italian by Thomas Beer. Edwin Nicander, Remy Carpen, and Dallas Welford will have the leading roles.

Marion Coakley will play the leading feminine role in "Wild Oats Lane," coming to the Broadhurst on Sept. 6.

In support of Julian Eltinge, who will be seen in "The Elusive Lady" in Baltimore on Oct. 2, will be Lew Kelly, Charles McNaughton, William Burress, Esther Howard, and others.

"Sweet Petunia," a comedy by Wilson Collison, will be produced in October by a new firm, headed by Mr. Collison. Clarke Silvernail and Enid Markey will head the cast. Also announced for production are "Put It on Red," by Dion Kitteredge; "The Widow," by Wilson Collison, and an unnamed comedy by Innis G. Osborn.

"Guess Who" is the tentative title of Frederic Isham's farce, to be produced by A. G. Delamater.

MUSIC NOTES.

Jascha Heifetz, who has been spending the Summer in Europe, will sail on the Mauretania on Saturday. He will open his concert season on Oct. 26.

Cantor Rosenblatt will go to Europe in the Spring for his first visit since he came to this country ten years ago. He will give a series of concerts in England and on the Continent.

Mischa Elman will give his first New York concert in three years at Carnegie Hall on Sept. 29.

Robert Ringling, son of Charles Ringling, the circus owner, will make his operatic debut with the Zuro Opera Company, which will begin a two-week engagement at the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Sept. 7.

WHISKAWAY BADLY BEATEN IN HURON

ROCKMINISTER IS VICTOR

ENCHANTMENT IN FRONT

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Another turf idol was smashed today. Whiskaway, twice conqueror of Morvich this season and winner of the $50,000 Kentucky Special, for which Charles W. Clark recently paid Harry Payne Whitney $125,000, finished a bad fourth in a five horse field in the running of the Huron Handicap. The colt was seven lengths behind Montfort Jones's Rockminister, the winner. At no time in the race did Whiskaway show anything at all, although it is true that he was carrying the big burden of 122 pounds and was conceding large lumps of weight to every other starter. Rockminister carried 115 pounds.

The original field carded for the Huron Handicap, which is an annual event for three-year-olds at one mile and three-sixteenths, consisted of Rockminister, Horologe, with 116 pounds up, and Hephaistos, with 117. Whiskaway and Sweep By, which carried 116 pounds, were added starters.

There was a huge crowd around Whiskaway in the paddock before the bugle for the race, which was the fourth event on the card. There were reports that the colt was short of work, because there is nothing in the Clark barn which can make him extend himself. Nevertheless he went to the post as favorite at 2 to 1, having receded to that figure from his opening price of even money.

Horologe, bearer of Frank J. Farrell's silks, was second choice at 5 to 2, while Rockminister was backed to 3 to 1 at post time, from an opening price of 4 to 1.

Only a Gallop for Rockminister.

With the track in fast shape, there was every prospect of a bang-up race as the five went to the barrier. Yet the event proved simply a gallop for Rockminister. Before the start, Whiskaway, on which every eye was fixed, was somewhat unruly, being apparently full of life and ginger, but quieted down when given attention by outrider Murray.

The quintet got off to a good start after sixty seconds at the barrier. Sweep By broke first, followed by Rockminister. The five were closely bunched as they went by the grand stand the first time, but Rockminister began to show in front on the clubhouse turn. The Jones color bearer took the lead and from then on he was never headed, nor even threatened. Horologe was second going around the turn, with Hephaistos third and Whiskaway fourth.

In the run down the back stretch Rockminister continued to show the way and began to open up the distance between himself and Horologe, getting a lead of a length and a half. Hephaistos was running lapped on Horologe, with Whiskaway half a length back. Before reaching the far turn it was evident that Whiskaway was beaten. Tator, who rode the mount, thirty yards from the beginning of the turn tried to bring the Clark colt up and struck him with the whip. There was no response in ground gaining.

Whiskaway Is Through.

As the horses hit the turn the cry went up: "Whiskaway is through!" Going around the turn, Rockminister continued to increase his lead and coming into the stretch he had five lengths to the good. Horologe, which clung to second place throughout, was a length and a half in front of Hephaistos, which had a length over Whiskaway, with Sweep By another three lengths back.

In the run through the straightaway, Rockminister drew still further away, winning in a gallop by six lengths. Horologe was a length in front of Hephaistos, which was a head to the good over Whiskaway, with Sweep By four lengths further to the rear.

Rockminister did the distance in the good time of 1:57 2-5, the second best time in the history of the handicap and the same time as was made by Johren in winning in 1918. The record for the Huron is 1:56, made by the filly Cleopatra, with 114 pounds up, in 1920. The latter won $3,900 for his owner by his victory. Some of the wags are now calling the Jones string the Giant Killer, as it was another of the Kentuckian's horses, Surf Rider, which beat Mervich on Monday.

Those who discussed the race afterward generally agreed that the weight carried by Whiskaway was not the explanation of his defeat as today's race was run, and that he would have been beaten at even weights. He simply did not seem able to get up any speed at any point. Despite the colt's performance, George V. Barnes, trainer for Mr. Clark, declared himself as satisfied.

"I am well satisfied with the showing of my horse at the weight," he said. "I couldn't get anybody to work with him, and I was compelled to send him out although he had a lot of weight up. The race will do him a world of good, and I look to see him to go well in the Special on Saturday, for which he will surely start."

The race to which Mr. Barnes referred is the Saratoga Special Championship for three-year-olds, in which it is expected Whiskaway, Bunting, Kai Sang and Pillory will measure strides at a mile and a quarter.

Enchantment, Harry Payne Whitney's bay gelding, showed a good race in winning the second event of the card, the first division of the Baldwin Purse, for three-year-olds, at five and a half furlongs. Eight went to the post for the event, with Enchantment as an odd-on favorite at 3 to 5 and heavily backed.

Enchantment and Vigil Win.

Enchantment got away none too well and was in extremely tight quarters throughout the early running and until he got around the turn. Then he found his way through, and won like a genuinely good horse, coming with tremendous speed in the straightaway and winning easily by five lengths in the good time of 1:08 2-5, four-fifths of a second slower than the track record. Bright Tomorrow was second and Aladdin third.

The second division of the Baldwin Purse was the last race on the card, and Walter J. Salmon's colt Vigil made the same time as Enchantment in winning. Vigil, however, won in a furious drive with the Rancocas Stable's Curtis, and his performance was not as impressive as that of Enchantment. Of the seven youngsters which bore silks, Curtis was the heavily backed favorite, closing at even money. Vigil was the receding second choice.

Tator got Curtis off in his stride, and the colt opened a lead of five lengths in short order. Coming around the turn, Vigil began to close a little, and by the time the stretch was reached the leader's advantage was cut to three lengths. Rasch on Vigil put up a vigorous ride through the straightaway, nipped Curtis a short distance out, and won by half a length. The leaders were ten lengths in front of the third horse, Tuxedo.

TENNIS CHAMPIONS' PLAY IS LISTLESS

WESTERN PAIR A SURPRISE

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—Four matches were played at the Longwood Cricket Club this afternoon in the tennis tournament for the national doubles championship, and the favored teams won in each instance. The defending title holders, William T. Tilden 2d and Vincent Richards, played indifferent tennis against the Harvard-Yale pair, William W. Ingraham and Arnold W. Jones, and dropped one set to them. They would have dropped the fourth as well had not Richards made a wonderful brake and fairly pounded his team into the semi-final round. The scores were 6—3, 6—4, 4—6, 8—6

The real surprise of the day was the showing of the Western champions, John Hennessey and Walter Wesbrook, against the Australian Davis Cup team of Gerald L. Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood. Not only did the Westerners force the games to deuce in all three sets, but they were no less than four times within a point of taking the second session. Their wonderful showing was brought about by no particular weakness of the Australians, who, far from underrating the Americans, worked their hardest all through the match. It was due to their own admirable playing.

The Kinsey brothers, champions of the Pacific Coast, had little serious trouble in winning over Hugh G. M. Kelleher and Leonard Beekman, one of the star combinations of the West Side T. C. They lost the third set at 8—6, but took the three others at 6—1 each. R. N. Williams 2d and Watson M. Washburn won with even greater ease over the Longwood veterans, Raymond D. Bidwell and E. W. Porter, 6—2, 6—0, 6—1.

Sister Battle Expected.

As the competition shapes up for the remainder of the week, the Kinseys will play William M. Johnston and Wallace F. Johnson tomorrow in what should be one of the most bitterly fought matches of the tournament. The Kinseys defeated Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin for the Pacific Coast title and since arriving in the East have been beaten in only a single encounter, by Johnston and the Australian, James O. Anderson, at Seabright.

Williams and Niles will meet the international combination of Nat W. Niles and Jean Borotra tomorrow and should be able to win handily and thus reach the semi-finals against Patterson and Wood. Tilden and Richards will play the winners of the Johnston-Johnson-Kinsey brothers match. The champions lost the third set of their match with the junior combination of Ingraham and Jones because of Tilden's careless hitting.

In the first two sessions Tilden outstroked his partner by several large city blocks, but did not play through he cared, whether he won the third set or not. In the fourth set, again largely because Tilden was netting and hitting out on shots that he had been turning into placement aces in the first two sets, the champion got into difficulties. Ingraham and Jones broke through Tilden for a lead of 4—2 and later 6—5. Then Richards "got his back up," his own service was up and he took four points in succession on two service aces and two kills that immediately followed terrifically paced service. Richards kept it up in the thirteenth game and then, when Tilden's service came around again he, too, became irresistibly swift in his deliveries, rounds two service aces and the final point was a kill by Richards brought up by service.

Youngsters Deserve Credit.

But though the champions undoubtedly could have defeated the Providence youngsters far more decisively had they been more attentive to their opportunities, the latter deserve high credit for a performance that should rate them high among the junior combinations of the country, especially as their achievement today came upon the heels of their well-earned victory over S. Howard Voshell and Samuel Hardy.

Hennessey and Wesbrook forced Patterson and Wood to the limit, and won only twelve fewer points in the three sets. The total points were 128 to 116. In the tenth game of the second set the Westerners were leading the Australians, 5—4 and 40—30, so that twice they needed but one winning stroke for the set. The same situation was repeated in the twelfth game at 6—5 and 40—15. The Australians played desperately to stave off disaster and managed to force errors at the critical times. The Westerners were threatening all through the third set as well. They led at 3—1 and 4—2 before the Australians could rally to take three straight games and a 6—4 advantage.

In the tenth game Patterson and Wood brought up the match point twice in a game that went five times to deuce. The Westerners made sensational gets and played with equally spectacular speed to postpone the inevitable which came to pass four games later. The points in this third set were 42 to 42, which shows just how even the going was. Wesbrook's service was a potent weapon for his team, and Patterson especially could do little with it. Both Westerners revealed indomitable spirit as well as pronounced skill in standing up to the fire did to the victors and well controlled stroking of their famous rivals.

A Hippodromic Program.

In addition to the national doubles which, of course, is the feature of the Longwood Club's hippodromic program, matches were played in national junior singles and doubles, national boys' singles and doubles, national father and son doubles, national veterans' doubles, national mixed doubles and in the Longwood invitation tourney in women's singles.

In the junior singles Ingraham and Jones, favorites for the title, reached the semi-finals, where the former will meet Lewis N. White of Texas, and the latter will oppose John F. Whitbeck, who expects to play for the Harvard freshmen next season. Brainerd Whitbeck, brother of John, and Stuart Gaynes Jr., both metropolitan schoolboys, are the semi-finalists of the boys' singles. Julius Sagalowski of Indianapolis, last year's boys' champion, was eliminated from the junior singles by Ingraham by the one-sided scores of 6—1, 6—1.

In the veterans' doubles, which has the strongest entry in the history of the event, the winning teams included Dwight F. Davis and Holcombe Ward, Harry C. Johnson and Irving C. Wright, Beals C. Wrisht and Walter L. Pate and J. C. Jones and Arthur Ingraham, all names to conjure with in the annals of the sport.

Women Stars Win.

In the women's singles, Mrs. Mallory, Miss Helen Wills, Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, Miss Leslie Bancroft, Miss Helen Gilleaudeau and Miss Martha Bayard gained expected victories. Mrs. Walter Trumbull Jr., a Longwood player, furnished one of the day's surprises by beating her clubmate, Miss Katherine Gardner, 6—4, 7—5. Then Mrs. Trumbull turned around and lost two love sets to Mrs. Mallory. Miss Gilleaudeau also faced stronger opposition than expected when she met Marion Farrell, wife of the Italian Consul General to Boston. The scores were 6—3, 5—7, 6—1.

A start was made in the mixed doubles championship and the first round completed. Among the winning teams were Mrs. Mallory and Wilden, Miss Eleonore Sears and W. M. Johnston, Mrs. Frank H. Godfrey and Wallace F. Johnson, Miss Phyllis Walsh and Emanuel Alonso, Miss Sigourney and Willis E. Davis and Mrs. D. F. Briggs and S. Howard Voshell and Miss Martha Bayard and H. R. Guild.

MURRAY IS TWICE WINNER.

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont., Aug. 23.—R. Lindley Murray of Niagara Falls, N. Y., former national turf court tennis champion, again was victorious today in bot hopen singles and doubles at the international lawn tennis championship tournament. With terrific service and spectacular overhead work in the singles, he defeated Elliot Stearns of Cleveland in straight sets, dropping only one game. In the doubles, playing with J. Edmunds, also of Niagara Falls, he won from Jack Boys of Barrie, and Arthur Waters, New Orleans, 6—2, 6—4.

In his defeat of Arthur Waters in the singles, G. A. Bruneau of Brooklyn gave a brand of tennis that marked him as a contender for the title.

Men's Open Singles—J. Virden, Cleveland, defeated Colonel Foulkes, Kingston, 6—2, 6—2; G. A. Bruneau, Brooklyn, defeated A. C. Water, New Orleans, 6—3, 6—2; R. L. Murray, Niagara Falls, N. Y., defeated E. Stearns, Cleveland, 6—1, 6—0.

Open Doubles—E. Stearns and E. Westenhaven, Cleveland, defeated C. Whiting and W. Hanlon, Buffalo, 3—6, 6—3, 7—5; R. L. Murray and J. Edmunds, Niagara Falls, defeated J. Boys and A. Waters, 6—2, 6—4.

GOBERT SAILS FOR HOME.

French Tennis Star Thanks Americans for Kindness.

Andre Gobert, who proved to be the star of the French Davis Cup team during its sojourn in the United States, sailed yesterday on the Paris for France. Allan H. Muhr and Jean Borotra, the other members of the French team, will remain in the United States for some time.

Before his departure Gobert expressed to the U. S. L. T. A. his appreciation for the treatment which had been accorded to him and his associates during their stay in the United States.

"I will be very grateful," he said, "if you will tell the American public for me how much I would like to thank personally every one who has been so nice to us during our stay here. Our welcome was wonderful, and wherever we went the club officials and our hosts were more than kind. Our team benefited greatly by the trip, I am sure, and I think every one who saw Cochet and Borotra play realized that France has in them two very promising young players who will be heard from in future Davis Cup matches."

ANDERSON FEELING FIT.

Australian Net Star Returns Here After Ten Days' Rest Up-State.

James O. Anderson, the lanky Australian, who defeated William T. Tilden at Chicago last Fall, before sailing for home, and then beat Gerald Patterson, present world's champion, in an Australian tournament, arrived in New York this morning after a ten days' rest up State. Over the telephone yesterday he said: "I just finished eighteen holes of golf and feel so fit that I have decided to come straight to New York, instead of going to Boston, as I had been planned earlier in the week. This rest has done me a world of good, and I really was surprised to find that I wasn't tired, after such a long lay-off, when I finished the golf.

"Feeling so well, I decided it would be wise to camp down in New York, where I can have some hard matches at the West Side Tennis Club, because I know that will give me a good chance to get my eye on the ball again and be ready for the big doings next week. So I'll be dropping in to see you in the morning, and then I expect to have a bit of tennis. Golf is all right for my legs, but I need some real tennis now to get fit for the Davis Cup match."

Umpire Accepts Fans' Defi; Officiates From Grand Stand

FREDERICK, Md., Aug. 23.—Spectators at the Frederick-Chambersburg Blue Ridge League game here today, after hooting Umpire Shaner for six innings, finally invited him into the grandstand to render his decisions. He promptly obliged them and went into the stand. After he had umpired in this location for half an inning officials of the Frederick club protested and he returned to his place behind the plate. Frederick lost the game, 10 to 5.

IRISH POLO STARS HERE FOR TOURNEY

Two Players of Anglo-American Team Arrive Also—Colts Are Taken to Rumson.

Members of the All-Ireland Polo Club team, which will compete in the international polo matches which start on Saturday, two players of the Anglo-American team and the wives of three of the visitors, made up a polo party which arrived yesterday afternoon on the White Star liner Majestic. The Irish players were Captain Lisgard Goulding and Mrs. Goulding, G. C. V. Douglas, J. A. B. Trench and F. A. Gill, the last named being accompanied by Mrs. Gill. Of the Eastcott team there came Major F. B. Hurndall and Major Vivian Lockett, who will play No. 3 and back, respectively, on Earl Hopping's team. Mrs. Lockett accompanied the former international player, and also in the party was Mrs. Harbord, wife of Captain Kenneth Harbord, Royal Field Artillery, who came over last week in charge of the ponies.

At Quarantine the party was met by Walker Vick, representing the Polo Association, and at the dock were J. Ford Johnson and W. Strother Jones of the Rumson Country Club. The customs formalities were quickly disposed of, much to the delight of the visitors, who had heard much of the terrors of the incoming tourists. The Irish delegation was taken in automobiles to the Rumson Country Club, where it will be quartered during the first of the international tournaments.

Eastcott Riders Welcome Them.

At the dock there were also Stephen Sanford, No. 1, and Earl Hopping, No. 2, of the Eastcott team, to welcome their fellow-players. The latter were whisked away to Garden City, where they will spend a couple of days getting rid of their sea legs. This afternoon they will get into the saddle at the Meadowbrook Club at Westbury, L. I., where they will have a practice run-in with the Meadowbrook four.

The visiting polo players had a fine trip across, as there was a large ship's company aboard, including many notables. They were all delighted at coming to the United States to compete in an international series, which they believe will result in lasting benefit to the great galloping game. The Irish players are especially keen to get into the saddle, and immediately asked if it could not be arranged so that they could do some practicing today. Their Rumson hosts assured them that they could get action, so a practice game will be put on this afternoon, with the strongest opposition that can be gathered at such short notice.

Captain Goulding expressed great pleasure on returning to the United States for the first time in twenty years. He deprecated the fact that he was not able to secure a stronger side to represent the All-Ireland Club.

"Had the notice not been so short we would have been able to get together a higher-goal team. I had counted strongly on Lord Wedehouse coming over again, but he already had made an engagement to play at Deauville, where the big tournament is now in progress. But I think we will be able to make a good showing. I believe we will be very well mounted, considering the very short time we had to get a string of polo ponies together, and I hope they are in good condition. I am very anxious to see the team on the field, as we have not played together. It is fortunate, as they tell me, that we do not play our first match until Tuesday."

Douglas Considered a Wonder.

Douglas is the youngest of the players from overseas, being only twenty-four years old, but is considered by many on the other side as another Tommy Hitchcock. Captain F. A. Gill is an English polo player of many years' experience. He has been here before, playing polo with the Grenfells a number of years ago. Trench is a seven-goal man and the team will rank at 28 goals. The Irish players met Tommy Hitchcock in England just before they sailed and said that the young American polo star is sailing on the next steamer and will be here in time to take his place at No. 2 on Devereux Milburn's Meadow Brook combination.

Captain Goulding recounted the difficulties of getting his team together, but they were nothing compared with his troubles in getting away from Ireland in time to catch the ship. On the night he was due to leave he was captured by Irish republican soldiers, who tried to get information from him. He was threatened, but did not disclose what knowledge he possessed, and eventually he was released.

The visiting players were enthusiastic over the remarkable playing of the Argentine team in the London tournaments, and the coming tournaments, but said, by way of comparison, that he did not believe that they were up to defeating the American four which won back the International Polo Challenge Cup at the Hurlingham Club a year ago.

The Argentine players had a busy day yesterday. After luncheon with leading American players at the Polo Club, they motored to the Piping Rock Club at Locust Valley, L. I., where they witnessed an informal match between Shelburne and Orange County, which was umpired by Harry Payne Whitney, who was captain of the invincible "Big Four." Shelburne won the game, and after it was over the Argentine players were taken to Westbury, L. I., as guests of the Meadow Brook players.

U. S. RIFLE TEAM SAILS FOR EUROPE

Americans to Complete Practice for International Matches at Coblenz.

The United States rifle team which will represent this country in the international matches at Milan, Italy, next month, sailed for France from this city yesterday on the steamship President Adams of the United States Line. The members of the team will go to Cherbourg, and from there they will proceed to the headquarters of the American Army at Coblenz, Germany. There they will complete their practice on the range and then go to Milan. The meet will open on Sept. 12 and continue through Sept. 20.

The team is composed of Walter R. Stokes, a civilian, of Washington, D. C.; Lieut. Commander C. T. Osburn, U. S. N.; Sergeant Morris Fisher, U. S. A.; Lieut. Commander A. Wilson, U. S. N.; Lieut. Commander A. D. Denney, U. S. N.; Major W. T. Waller, U. S. Marine Corps, in charge of the team; Major J. K. Boles, U. S. A.; Captain Joseph Jackson, U. S. Marine Corps, and Marine Gunner C. A. Lloyd.

Walter Stokes won the world's individual rifle championship at the tournament in Lyons, France, last year. Lieut. Commander Osburn was second and Sergeant Fisher third. It is agreed that this is the strongest combination that could be gathered together to represent this country, and in rifle circles here it is believed that the team will be well up in the standing when the matches have been concluded.

Vernon to Meet Buxbaum.

Murray Vernon, crack handball player of the Crescent A. C., who holds the State singles title, will engage Sam Buxbaum, Trinity Club star, in a match on the Brighton Beach Baths court this afternoon to determine the winner of the A. A. U. open tournament.

Athletics Sell Keefe.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 23.—The Milwaukee Club of the American Association today announced the purchase of Pitcher Jack Keefe from the Philadelphia Athletics. Cleveland recently obtained waivers on the twirler and he was claimed by the Athletics.

SEA GULLS DEFEAT THOUSAND ISLANDS

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The Myopia Sea Gulls defeated the Thousand Islands four in the final for the Wellesley Island Cups in the Thousand Islands polo tournament on Wellesley Island this afternoon by a score of 11 to 4. One of the Thousand Islands goals was given by handicap.

The riding and playing were fast and furious, Myopia started out by scoring in the first period. Mandell rolled one and Captain Rogers scored another. In the second period O. A. Greening was unseated from his pony in a sharp turn, and toward the close of the period Shaw made a foul by crossing Greening, and the latter was unseated again. Referee General MacBrien gave the Thousand Islands team a free shot at their goal. Shaw in his eagerness to prevent a goal by the Thousand Islands four fouled again, and Greening made a goal.

In the third period Shaw scored for Myopia, and in the fourth a pony kicked a goal for Myopia. Shaw rolled another goal, and Myles scored one for his team.

In the fifth Whitney, whose playing was excellent, took the ball away from Greening and carried it swiftly down the field to within about 50 yards of his goal posts and Shaw scored again.

In the sixth Mandell, Whitney and Captain Rogers scored for Myopia. In the seventh Mandell and Rogers each hit a goal for Myopia, and in the eighth Myles scored again.

The line-up:

MYOPIA.	THOUSAND ISL'NDS

HUGMEN HELPLESS AT BAT

With a crash that was heard in both Cleveland and St. Louis, the Yankees yesterday tumbled out of first place, yielding the leadership, with such grace as a falling body can muster, to the Browns, who triumphed again over the Red Sox at Boston while the champions were accepting their second thrashing at the hands of Tris Speaker's Indians. The score of the Pole Grounds catastrophe was 4 to 1.

A beating by such a tally carries no particular disgrace ordinarily, but the circumstances attending this one were such as to turn devoted adherents of the fortunes of the local American Leaguers pale with woe and apprehension. For one thing, their bats were almost entirely useless and only slightly ornamental. Three safe drives constituted their afternoon's crop from the wares shown by Stanley Coveleskie. This masterly inactivity, following their two-hit setback at the hands of George Uhle on Tuesday, and with the booming Browns looming up just ahead for a four-game series, is cause for sombre thoughts.

Bob Shawkey was entrusted by Miller Huggins with the task of endeavoring to tame the Redskins. Bob tried all the methods adopted by the pioneerr against the Comanches and the Iroquois, except offering them firewater, but they remained savage and unconquerable. On the very first inning they leaped upon Robert from ambush and flayed him for a trio of sound punches and as many runs, almost driving him to cover.

As it turned out, the issue of the day was settled right then and there. The 10,000 onlookers didn't think so, however, and neither did the Yankees. Everybody was still hopeful, with Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel and other big New York guns on hand. When the local athletes made three hits in the two opening sessions and capped a run in the second it looked as if further progress might be anticipated.

Jamieson Hits Home Run.

At this stage, however, the Yankees folded up—or, rather, Coveleskie folded them up. The Polish twirler simply reached out and wrapped them up and laid them away in the box. Nothing that looked for an instant like a hit issued from their cudgels thereafter. Shawkey got along pretty well after the opening chapter, save for a home run propelled into the lower stand by Jamieson in the fourth, but the damage was irretrievably done. Bob gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Carl Mays finished the game.

The Indians took several wallops at Shawkey in the opening session, and acquired three runs and a substantial lead. There was positively no waiting and no delay in their program. Jamieson, the first Redskin to face the Mariner, took a strike and a ball and sent the next offering skimming over on a line to centre for a single. Wambsganss caught the idea and dropped a Texas Leaguer in the same neighborhood for one base. Jamieson stopping at second. Bob was weary of singles singing all about him, so he fooled Tris Speaker by passing him, and each succeeding bore its eager Indian with no deaths yet reported.

Larry Gardanner jolted a sharp bounder to Wallie Pipp, who shot to second, forcing Speaker. Jamieson scored on this play and Wamby progressed to the far corner. Schang got Joe Sewell's foul pop and the crowd resumed its temporarily suspended breathing. There was really nothing to breathe about, however, for Smoky Joe Wood was next in order and flogged the ball to the recesses of right centre field and Wamby and Gardner wended their way over the plate. Shawkey threw out Stuffy McInnis for the finale.

When Whitey Witt opened the second half of the inning by punching a one-baser to the right central garden there was fleeting hope in the stands that the Yankees might be on their way too. The hope hardly reached the budding stage, however, for Joe Dugan hit into a snappy double play, Gardner to Wambsganss to McInnis, and Gardner gathered Ruth's jab and threw the Babe out at first just like an ordinary mortal.

Yanks Score In Second.

The Huggins troupe cut that three-run disadvantage to the extent of a single counter in their portion of the second. After Pipp had hoisted to Wood, Schang cracked a one-bagger to right field. Coveleskie snatched up Meusel's bounder and got Bob at first, Ward took hold of one of Coveleskie's choice shoots and blazed it almost to the centre field fence. Speaker held the blow to a double by agile scampering and a nice throw, but it gave Schang plenty of time to meander across the plate. Sewell absorbed Scott's fly.

The third period was fruitless for both teams, a single by Wood in the Indians' half being wasted, while Tris Speaker caught long welts from the bats of Shawkey, Witt and Dugan in the home half. In the fourth, however, the invaders increased their lead to its original proportions by the addition of one marker.

Jamieson was solely responsible for this run. It was a little idea of his own, and he took no one into his confidences. He simply cracked the ball on its elastic vertabrae and it scooted into the lower right-field stand. There were two out at the time, and Wamby, the next batsman, filed to Witt.

The status of affairs remained unchanged thereafter, with both twirlers going along on an even keel, although Shawkey came near being capsized in the seventh period, when the Indians filled the bases with only one gone. Coveleskie opened with a clean single to centre and took second after Ward had captured Jamieson's hoist on a pass issued to Wamby. Speaker bounded a one-baser off Scott's glove. Matters looked dismal. However, Pipp took Gardner's fiery smash and shot to Schang, forcing Coveleskie at the plate, and Schang's quick return to Pipp doubled up Gardner.

Joe Sewell started the eighth with a single, but another double slaughter, perpetrated this time by Dugan, Ward and Pipp, kept the foemen scoreless. Shawkey departed by the pinch hitter process in the Yankees' portion of the eighth and Mays, his successor, passed O'Neill, the first man to face him in the ninth. Once more a glowing double play turned the danger aside. Ward plucked Coveleskie's punch from the turf and touched O'Neill on his way to second, being bowled over in the process. Aaron threw from a reclining posture to Pipp, retiring Coveleskie.

BROWNS AGAIN IN LEAD.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—St. Louis played errorless ball today, defeating Boston, 6 to 3, and going into the American League lead by half a game, thanks to Cleveland's victory over the Yankees. Ferguson was hit hard in the first two innings, when the Browns made enough runs to win.

Curves and Bingles.

Shawkey couldn't complain that his comrades failed to support him in the style to which he had been accustomed. They were on their toes all the time in the field, even if they were on their uppers at the bat. Double plays that sparkled headed off Cleveland runs in the last three innings.

Just as Wallie Pipp was about to cage Gardner's grounder in the fifth the ball hit some little projection and took a wicked slant away from him. Pipp called his emergency apparatus into play and shot out a long, gaunt arm and a bunch of fingers, snaring the errant sphere. Then he scrambled to first ahead of Gardner.

Five hits in two days won't win any Nobel prizes for the Yankees. They started off like race horses against both Uhle and Coveleskie, but wound up like tortoises. When they managed to put together a pair of safe drives in the second inning yesterday the fans didn't consider it wonderful. Looking back at it seven innings later, however, it seemed like a regular batting orgy.

Tris Speaker put in a busy afternoon. Such balls as the Yankees managed to propel beyond the inner defense usually fell into his palms, and in the third inning he retired the side. When he dropped Witt's hoist in this period the crowd exulted, and Witt scampered all the way to third. It was a hoax, however, for Umpire Evans waved Witt to the bench. Speaker had held the sphere "momentarily," as measured on the arbiter's mental chronometer, and had dropped it as he lifted his hand to throw it back. The fans decided that this is a bleak world.

Ward, Pipp and the Babe convened under a foul fly near the stand in the third, and the two latter finally agreed to turn the matter over to Aaron. Ward had been so interested in the debate that the ball plumped through his fingers to the turf. The aforesaid fingers were arranged for a cornet solo at the time, but not for catching a fly.

The Browns will be here tomorrow, and the series will open with a doubleheader. The first game will start at 1:30.

ROBINS SCORE EASY VICTORY OVER CUBS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Uncle Wilbert Robinson's Brooklyn clan massacred the offerings of three Chicago pitchers here this afternoon and again defeated the Cubs. The final score was: Robins 6, Cubs 0, which is fair enough as margins of victory are measured in these days of elastic baseballs and such. It was Sherrod Smith who led the Dodgers to victory. Sherry, as he is known to his teammates, had an assortment of benders and a change of pace that completely baffled the local club-swingers. He held them to eight hits and seldom during the game did he appear to be in any imminent danger.

On the occasions when the Cubs did get a bit rambunctious and threatened to profit materially their hopes were drowned in the water bucket by sizzling double plays. No less than three of these two-ply killings did the Robins turn in, giving some idea of the excellent support that was accorded Smith.

Percy Jones, Virgil Cheeves and Walter Morris all tried to check the Robins, but to no purpose. Perhaps it is wrong to say that Morris had any hand in the proceedings, for he wasn't on the mound long enough, but the two others were treated very roughly, being nicked for a total of 14 hits. It was the second time in as many days that the Brooklyn clan has won, and the series here ends tomorrow.

The Robins lost no time getting started. They combined five hits in the first inning, manufacturing a total of four runs and giving Smith a comfortable working margin. Five hits by the first five batters to face Jones is a robust attack. That's how the Robins started the game today. Olson led off. He singled to right. Johnston followed with a single to right centre and Olson pulled up at third. Griffith singled to left, scoring Olson and sending Johnston to second. Wheat attempted to sacrifice and beat out a bunt in front of the plate, filling the bases. Myers then singled to centre and Johnston and Griffith checked in at the scoring station, while Wheat advanced to second.

This was enough for Manager Killefer and also enough for Mr. Jones. Virgil Cheeves was summoned to duty. Schmandt forced Wheat at third, Cheeves to Krug. High forced Schmandt, Terry to Hollocher, and Myers scored before High was doubled up, O'Farrell to Hollocher to Grimes to Terry to Grimes.

In the fourth inning the Robins got another run. Schmandt had been retired, when High doubled to left. Miller followed with a single to left and High scored. What happened in the round after that did not matter for that was the end of the scoring for the inning.

The Robins scored their final run of the game in the eighth inning. They then injected three hits, and the tally was the result of the wallops. Griffith and Wheat both filed out, but Myers still had another hit in his system. He singled to centre, and Schmandt beat out a roller to Hollocher. High made his third hit of the game, bouncing a single past Grimes, and Myers scored.

It was one of the best games that Sherrod Smith has turned in this year. He had all of his old-time stuff. His control of the ball was nearly perfect, with the result that while the Cubs were able to reach him for eight hits, they could do nothing when he tightened up in the pinches.

CARDINALS TAME BRAVES.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23.—Bunched hits and effective pitching by Sherdel for eight innings gave St. Louis a 6 to 3 victory over the Boston Braves here this afternoon. Timely hitting by Bottomley also assisted the Cardinals. He brought in two runs with a triple in the third and one with a single in the fourth. In the ninth North relieved Sherdel after he had walked two men with only one out, filling the bases.

RAIN KEEPS GIANTS IDLE IN CINCINNATI

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 23.—The weather man, and not the Reds, stopped the Giants today. A steady rain before and after noon washed out Redland field and ruined the second and last game of the series. It will be played tomorrow, which is an open date.

This was considered a bad break by the Giants, who had Ryan or Jess Barnes primed for the Reds, leaving Neh' Scott and McQuillan to shoot at the Cardinals. The postponement means that Pat Moran can send Pete Donohue or Eppa Rixey against the champions, whereas today he had only Adolfo Luque, who usually is easy for the Giants.

Cincinnati baseball writers spent the day by taking pencil and pad in hand and conceding the pennant to the Giants. One melancholy scribe goes so far as to opine that the world series will be all New York again. Another draws these statistical conclusions about the Giants:

"Four game lead, 38 to go. Nobody can figure the Giants as winning less than 22 of the 38. Will bring them to the wire with 92 won and 62 lost. What chance then for the opposition?

"To finish with 93 won and 61 lost, the Cardinals would have to win 27 and lose only 11. The Cubs would have to win 23 and lose only 9. The Pirates would have to win 21 and lose only 8. The Reds would have to win 20 and lose only 6."

You can't blame them for starting work on the extra seats at the Polo Grounds. They are taking a leaf from the Pirates' book in 1921, and McGraw encourages this feeling in every way. The Giants prefer to show their confidence and dash on the ball field. They swept the Reds off their feet in yesterday's game, hit hard, pushed the attack, rushed Johnny Couch with vigor and played just the way a casual observer would expect champions to play. If the same class can be maintained in St. Louis the Cardinals will be hard put to it.

The present winning streak is now of considerable length. Beginning in Brooklyn, three straights were captured. Then one with the Braves in New York and five out of seven in the West, making nine out of the last eleven games. Nehf has suffered both defeats, and McQuillen has the best record, three straight victories.

PIRATES' HITTING WINS.

Pittsburgh Batters Slam Two Philadelphia Pitchers.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 23.—Pittsburgh drove Hubbell from the box in the third inning and then continued their heavy hitting on Singleton, winning today's game with Philadelphia, 11 to 3. Cooper hit a home run in the seventh inning.

Cooper injured a finger when he took a wild swing at the first ball pitched to him in the seventh. He wrapped the bleeding member in a handkerchief and promptly proceeded to drive the next offering to the flagpole. Maranville, next batter, obtained the handkerchief and wound it around his hand, but the charm failed and he grounded out.

DOUBLE SIX-METER VICTORY FOR GREBE

HANAN YACHT SURPRISES

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 23.—Grebe, the six-meter yacht owned by Richard De B. Boardman and E. Townsend Irvin, today again demonstrated her racing prowess by winning twice in the day's program of trial races to select a team of six-meter yachts to represent America when the British-American Cup is sailed for off Oyster Bay next month. It was the third of the elimination series now being conducted here under the auspices of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club, and the best day of racing to date.

Three races were held today, the yachts being sent away in two divisions, the other winners besides Grebe being Johnston De Forest's Priscilla, Addison G. Hanan's Ballyhoo, L'Esprit, the property of W. H. Childs, sailed by Butler Wrking, and Undertaker, owned and sailed by Charles A. Welch 2d of Boston.

Lea, the Bermingham yacht, which is handled by C. Sherman Hoyt and which has been almost as consistent a winner as Grebe, had an off day, finishing third twice and once coming in fifth. But Lea had a perfectly good alibi, which undoubtedly found weight with the Selection Committee, George Nichols, Robert W. Emmons 2d and Clifford D. Mallory, on whom the duty of picking the team devolves.

In the half-gale of Monday Lea's mast opened up in the seams and the boom also showed signs of strain. Lea stepped a new mast Monday night but went through the races yesterday with the split boom, which opened up still more. No new boom being available, Hoyt had the sound portion of the original mast cut into a boom. The make-shift boom is considerably heavier than the old one and the yacht handles badly in consequence.

Wind Gradually Increases.

Courses today were windward-leeward jaunts with the starting line and the weather mark established well out into the middle of the Sound. The distances sailed each race was six miles. The first battle was staged at 10:40 A. M. and the last start at 2:30 P. M. The wind, which blew twelve knots from west by south during the first race, gradually increased, and the final match was sailed in an eighteen-knot breeze. The wind also backed gradually into the southwest.

Aside from the showing of Grebe, which was not unexpected, the performance of Hanan's Ballyhoo was the feature of the day. Addison G. Hanan gave the tiller today to his son Richard, while he himself assumed general command. Besides bringing the Ballyhoo home in first place once, father and son twice scored second honors.

Cygnet, owned and sailed by Rear Commodore Paul L. Hammond, like Ballyhoo, showed a reversal of form very pleasing to her owner, who was a member of the last year's international team which raced off Cowes. Cygnet, which was designed by Sidney Herreshoff, is very fast, but until today she seemed to be a very temperamental creature. Commodore Hammond now feels satisfied that he has learned some of Cygnet's vagaries, and it will not be surprising if from now on her blue-white hull shows in the front more frequently than hitherto.

Clytie, owned and sailed by H. B. Plant, is apparently another yacht to be reckoned with. She finished second in her first race today and also appeared to be very well handled.

A surprise was the presence of Undertaker in the second division of the third race. The Welch yacht was forced yesterday to withdraw with a buckled spreader, and it was feared she could not be repaired for today's contests. Undertaker not only appeared, but she also snatched victory from the Stewart yacht Montauk, another last year's international.

Boston Yachts at Disadvantage.

The Boston boats, Undertaker and Sakie, the latter owned and sailed by Commodore Frank C. Paine, are at a disadvantage in that their skippers are unfamiliar with the local tides.

The Selection Committee, which had planned to start today eliminating the slower yachts, confessed that the task had been made more difficult by the form reversals of today's contests. The Chairman was unable to say whether any announcement would be made in the morning.

What is desired now by the captains and committee alike is a day of light airs. With the exception of the first race yesterday all contests have been sailed in strong winds, and there has been no way to pick the best of the light-weather boats. Official weather prediction tonight was of continued heavy winds, with the possibility that the condition might prevail throughout the week. No one wishes to continue the trial races into next week, but it is felt that they must go on until the boats have demonstrated their ability under all sailing conditions.

Two of the English sailing yachts and their crews are aboard the steamship Scythia which is due in New York Saturday. Today Vice Commodore Hoyt sent a wireless to Scythia welcoming the British yachtsmen and extending to them the hospitality of the club.

Races tomorrow will be held over a triangular course, the distance sailed to be six miles, weather permitting. Three contests will be held.

SEEKS TO PROHIBIT PUBLIC TICKET SALE

N. Y. Representative Would Prevent Army and Navy Teams Playing for Admission.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Cadets at West Point and midshipmen at Annapolis would not be permitted to engage in any athletic games or contest where an admission fee is charged under a bill introduced today by Representative MacGregor, Republican, New York.

Explaining the reasons for the bill, Mr. MacGregor declared members of Congress had received letters from Rear Admiral Washington of the Bureau of Navigation setting forth that thereafter they would not be supplied with passes and if they wanted to see the football games played on foreign fields this Fall they could by paying $8.50 plus war tax.

"The vast sums received for admission fees would indicate the growing spirit of commercialism in the military and naval academies and the students are not filled with a desire to demonstrate their physical development," said the New York representative. "Rather their attention is centred upon how much money they can get. The young men at these institutions belong to the nation and their gratitude for the opportunity given them should not be marred by evidences of greed.

Army and navy officials in commenting on the MacGregor bill pointed out that Congress makes no appropriation to pay the expenses of the athletic teams representing the two service schools and that athletics at West Point and Annapolis now are supported through voluntary contributions of officers and the receipts from the annual Army-Navy football game. They expressed the opinion that if the MacGregor bill became a law the staging of the Army-Navy game on a neutral field would have to be abandoned.

MOONGLOW WINNER AT WESTHAMPTON

Special to The New York Times.

WESTHAMPTON, L. I., Aug. 23.—Members of the yacht squadron of the Westhampton Country Club held their midweek regatta on Moriches Bay today. In the BB class the winner was Moonglow, the property of L. V. Klauberg, which defeated W. L. Kidde's Spaleen by 3 minutes and 36 seconds. In Class B the first boat home was Cecile, owned by W. Robertson.

In the popular little S8 class a record midweek fleet of ten boats crossed the starting line. The winner was John Pflug's craft, sailed by Helen Pflug. She defeated Mrs. William Gill's yacht by 42 seconds for the prize. It was the second consecutive meeting that these two boats had finished in the same order.

N.Y. REGATTA ATTRACTS OARSMEN OF NOTE

A good old-fashioned North River regatta will be staged next Saturday when the seventeenth annual meet of the Hudson River Rowing Association is to be held over the Riverside Park course, with senior four-oared barges as the feature event.

As in the former days, the start will be a bit below Grant's tomb—about 127th Street—and the races will finish at the Bloomingdale Boat Club, 102d Street and the Hudson River, exactly a one-mile trip. Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert will be honorary referee and will fire the gun for the first race.

In the senior four-oared barges event the Bachelors' Barge Club of Philadelphia, the Bayonne Rowing Association, the Atlantic Boat Club of Hoboken and the First Bohemian Boat Club of New York will be starters.

Next in importance will be the senior double sculls, in which will be seen in action the well-known scullers, Gilmore of Philadelphia and Zoba and Haller of New York.

The entries, which were opened last night, are as follows:

Intermediate Single Sculls—Ravenswood Boat Club, F. J. Oswes Mohl; Lone Star Boat Club, Louis H. Mayer; Bayonne Rowing Association, Edward P. Boylan.

Junior Double Gigs—Ravenswood Boat Club, W. Everett Haynes, J. S. Massino; Bayonne Rowing Association, G. Kaelin, R. Paine; Metropolitan Rowing Club, J. G. Verhoven, J. Memse; Active Boat Club, S. Schwartz, W. Gillen.

Senior Double Sculls—Lone Star Boat Club, Henry Preston, H. Heller; First Bohemian Boat Club, Albert Kohac, Louis Sak; Bachelors Barge Club, Philadelphia, C. Offmore and mate.

BRADY LEADS FIELD IN WESTERN OPEN

DETROIT, Aug. 23.—Michael J. Brady, Oakland Hills professional, led the field for the first eighteen holes of the Western open golf championship, played today on his home course, scoring a 72, one stroke better than the total of Johnny Farrell, the dark-haired young professional from Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Bunched one stroke behind Farrell at 74 were five players—Jock Hutchison, Chicago; George Sargent, Columbus, Ohio; Pat Petranck, a young assistant professional from Nutley, N. J.; Gunnar Nelson, Lafayette, Ind., and Charles (Chick) Evans, the Chicago amateur.

Mike Brady hung up his 72 for the others to shoot at early, and it withstood the attack of all the others down to the finish. Until Farrell came along late in the day with his 73, Mike had a two-stroke advantage.

Farrell Trapped at Seventeenth.

Coming to the sixteenth, or lake hole, Farrell had a finish in four, three and four ahead of him to pass Brady by one stroke. A trapped drive on the seventeenth caused one four, one over par here, and put it up to him to get a birdie four on the home hole to tie the home professional. He finished with a five, however, through a second that was a trifle short and a chip shot that was too strong, trailing Brady by one stroke as a result.

That tee shot into the trap at the left of the seventeenth green must have made Farrell wince. He missed the green by inches, the spin which the ball took coming up into the wind causing it to swerve just enough from its course to find its sandy grave. The "lie" was not bad, but the trap is about ten feet high at the point Johnny had to shoot over and he could take no chance in trying to get too close to the pin. He got on all right, but still had a long putt left and missed it.

It would not take Jock Hutchison long to explain why he took a 74 instead of a 72 to tie Mike Brady. At the fifteenth hole he made a six, two over par. Apparently he tried to negotiate Devil's Curve around the woods. He pulled into the tall timber, and finding an almost impossible lie took two strokes to get back on the fairway.

The play of Evans was remarkable, when it is remembered that he never saw the course before he played his round. He had to feel his way around, yet got his 74. He was playing with Johnny Farrell and was out in 36, the same as his young partner, but required 38 coming home in comparison with Farrell's 37.

Chick's Hook Costly.

A hooked second shot into the rough caused Chick to take six on the par five twelfth. Like Johnny, Chick finished with a five on the eighteenth, holding a sizable putt to get it after a short second into the rough and a third over the green and into a shallow trap from which he emerged by using his putter.

The scoring was higher than was expected. Play from the back tees put too much of a burden on many of the best players. Emmett French of Youngstown, Ohio, runner-up to Gene Sarazen in the professional national tournament, had to be content with an 80 as did Bobby Cruikshank, another who starred in the P. G. A.

Only twenty-nine players beat 80 and twelve of those just squeezed in with 79's, including Harry Hampton, Brooklands, Laurie Ayton, Chicago, and Pat Doyle, St. Louis.

GOVERNOR LAKE DEFAULTS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 23.—The industrial trouble cost the Shennecossett Country Club an interesting feature match today in the annual August championship, when Governor Everett J. Lake was called back to Hartford in connection with the railroad difficulty and was obliged to default his second round match to L. Tracy Sheffield of Shennecossett. Peculiarly enough the four Shennecossett men in the championship flight all came through and defeated their outside opponents.

G. Wyman Carroll Jr., the medalist, was obliged to go nineteen holes with Robert Moore of New Orleans, and J. D. Armstrong defeated P. S. Randolph, of Philadelphia, on the last hole. Philip Corbin had an easier time with W. J. Striebinger of Cleveland, and won by 7 and 6.

Championship Flight—Second round—L. T. Sheffield; Shennecossett, won from Governor Everett J. Lake, Hartford, by default; J. D. Armstrong, Shennecossett, defeated P. S. P. Randolph Jr., Philadelphia, by 1 up; G. Wyman Carroll Jr., Shennecossett, defeated Robert Moore, New Orleans, by 1 up (19 holes); Philip Corbin, Shennecossett, defeated W. J. Striebinger, Highland, by 7 and 6.

MITCHELL AND DUNCAN WIN.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 23.—Abe Mitchell and George Duncan were 4 up and 3 to play on Bobby Andrews, professional at New Haven, and Alex Byrd, New Britain professional, here today in the 36-hole match over the Sequin Golf Club course in Newington.

Andrews, who made the first nine holes in 32, 3 under par, made a new course record of 70 in the morning round.

The match, which was followed by a big gallery, was halted for a time this afternoon, when John A. Caulkins of Hartford, one of the Sequin Club experts, who was carrying Mitchell's clubs, broke his ankle in attempting to jump across the brook.

BRITISH PROS TRIUMPH.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Gene Sarazen, United States open golf champion, paired with Seymour Dunn, professional of the Lake Placid Club, was defeated, 4 and 2, here today in a 36-hole exhibition match by J. M. Taylor and Alexander Herd, British golfers. Sarazen made the best score of the match when he went out in the morning round in 78. He required 81 for the return in the afternoon, however.

Fitzsimmons Faces $100,000 Loss on Dempsey Decision

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—The humble box fan pays his flat pocketbook and dreams of fabulous prosperity that comes to the boxing promoter who is made rich overnight. But the extraordinary case of Floyd Fitzsimmons, the Michigan City, Ind., promoter, today furnishes an illustration of what may happen to the unlucky. He not only faces serious financial losses but has on his hands an abandoned arena at Benton Harbor, Mich., where Jack Dempsey battered Billy Miske to defeat in three rounds, two years ago, and the beautiful structure at Michigan City, Ind., in which Fitzsimmons intended to stage a match between Dempsey and Bill Brennan on Labor Day. Fitzsimmons is said to face a loss of $100,000 as a result of Governor McCray's opposition to the heavyweight contest on Labor Day.

GOULLET IS VICTOR IN STRAIGHT HEATS

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 23.—Alfred Goullet, all-around cycling champion of America, defeated Bobby Walthour, the youngest professional in the game, in two straight heats of a one-mile match race at the Velodrome in Newark tonight. Goullet had too much experience as well as speed for his youthful rival, but Bobby showed enough promise to convince the fans that he will be a rattling good rider before another year and a possible successor to Frank L. Kramer.

Goullet rode from in front in both heats. In the first Walthour battled him for a half lap, but was unable to get around, while in the second one Bobby fought Goullet the entire last lap. He could not beat him, but put up a great fight.

Hans Ohrt and Francisco Verri defeated Eddie Madden and Harry Kaiser in a two-thirds mile team match race. Kaiser and Madden won the first heat, while the second went to Verri and Ohrt. Kaiser and Madden won the third heat but were disqualified for foul riding on the part of Madden and the race awarded to Ohrt and Verri.

Orlando Piani defeated Arthur Spencer in two out of three heats of a one-mile match race. Piani won the first heat. Spencer took the next two, but was disqualified in the third heat for switching and the race given to Piani.

Half-Mile Handicap (Amateur)—Won by Edward C. Bendi, Unione Sportiva Italiana (15 yards); Louis Benesatti, Unione Sportiva Italian (50 yards), second; Mike Dolan, Newark (65 yards), third; Michael Ulrich, Bayview Wheelmen (65 yards), fourth. Time—0:55 2-5.

Two-thirds-Mile Handicap (Professional)—Won by Jackie Clarke, Newark (55 yards); Morgan Dalelcio, Chicago (50 yards), second; Harry Poran, Newark (50 yards), third; Anthony Young, Newark (25 yards), fourth; Charles Jaeger, Newark (70 yards), fifth; Lloyd Thomas, San Francisco (65 yards), sixth; Alfons Verraes, Belgium (30 yards), seventh. Time—1:14 2-5.

Two-thirds Mile Match Race (Professional)—Alfred Goullet, Newark, vs. Bobby Walthour Jr., Newark—Won by Goullet. First heat—Won by Goullet. Time—1:47. Second heat—Won by Goullet. Time—1:41.

Miss and Out Invitation (Professional)—Won by Anthony Young, Newark; Fred Hill, Boston, second; David Lands, Irvington, third; Fred Taylor, Newark, fourth; Frank Berkell, Newark, fifth. Time—4:50. Distance—3 miles 3 laps.

Time—6:50. Distance—3 miles 2 laps.

Two-Thirds-Mile Team Match Race (Professional)—Francisco Verri, Italy, and Hans Ohrt, San Francisco, vs. Eddie Madden, Newark, and Harry Kaiser, Bronx. Won by Verri and Ohrt. First heat won by Kaiser and Madden. Time—1:31. Second heat won by Verri and Ohrt. Time—1:30. Third heat won by Verri and Ohrt. Time—1:33.

Two-Mile Open (Amateur)—Won by Fred Spencer, Newark; C. C. Elmer Bundt, Buffalo, second; Edward C. Bandi, Unione Sportiva Italian, third; Sam Gestman, Bayview Wheelmen, fourth; Chester Fisher, East Orange, fifth. Time—4:08 1-5.

One-Mile Match Race (Professional)—Arthur Spencer, Newark, vs. Orlando Piani, Italy. Won by Piani. First heat—Won by Piani. Time—1:02 4/5. Last eighth mile—0:12 2-5. Second heat—Won by Spencer. Time—1:04. Last eighth mile—0:12 2-5. Third heat—Won by Piani. Time—3:36. Last eighth mile—0:12 2-5.

One-Mile Consolation (Amateur)—Won by John Patrick, Newark; Michael Raliopoli, Bayview Wheelmen, second; Felix Patti, Unione Sportiva Italiana, third; George Lucadema, Unione Sportiva Italiana, fourth. Time—2:03 2-5.

Twenty-five-Mile Middle Distance Championship (Professional)—Won by Alfrde Grenda, Australia; Fred Hill, Boston, second; Alfred Goullet, Newark, third; Cecil Walker, Australia, fourth; Reggie McNamara, Newark, fifth; Alex McBeath, Australia, sixth; John Bedell, Lynbrook, L. I., seventh. Time—32:21 3-5.

HAGEN ON LOSING TEAM.

With Miss Gordon He Is Beaten by Miss Collett and Kirkwood.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 23.—Miss Glenna Collett, Eastern women's golf champion, paired with Joe Kirkwood, Australian champion, defeated Miss Elizabeth Gordon, former woman champion of Rhode Island, and Walter Hagen, British open champion, 7 up, in an eighteen-hole exhibition foursome at the Wanamoisett Country Club links here this afternoon.

As was expected, Hagen and Kirkwood put on the finest exhibition of the match, while Miss Gordon and Miss Collett played in their usual excellent style. Going out Hagen was slightly off his form, and his score for the first nine holes was 40. On the last nine holes he made a 34. Kirkwood was more steady, but his count for the eighteen holes was the same as Hagen's 74.

Miss Collett was easily the more powerful driver of the two women, some of her drives going for 220 yards. Miss Gordon played more steadily, and her shots were more accurately placed. For the eighteen holes Miss Gordon turned in a score of 90, while Miss Collett's was 91.

SMITH TO MEET MILLER.

Nable and Ryckoff to Clash.

Three former amateur boxers who are progressing in the professional ranks will engage in bouts at the Surf Avenue A. A., Coney Island, tomorrow night. Sammy Nable of the east side, a former amateur, is scheduled to tackle Billy Ryckoff of Brooklyn in the main bout of twelve rounds. In another twelve-round bout Hilly Levine and Jimmy Tomasulo, bantamweight graduates of the local amateur ring, will exchange blows.

DEMPSEY IS UNABLE TO SECURE ACTION

Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, returned to this city yesterday from Michigan City, Ind., disappointed at the action of Governor McCray of Indiana in prohibiting the scheduled match between Dempsey and Bill Brennan, and eager for action which will lead to battles for the title-holder. Kearns arrived in the morning and occupied himself through the day with inspection of an accumulation of correspondence which awaited his attention. The champion's manager declared he had nothing particular in view for Dempsey, except the boxing exhibition in which the title-holder is scheduled to engage at Michigan City on Labor Day afternoon. It is likely several more exhibitions will be scheduled for the title-holder to keep him occupied in an earning capacity until the time is opportune to defend his title against Harry Wills, negro challenger.

Kearns declared there was nothing new with respect to the proposed Dempsey-Wills match. Dempsey's position is unchanged and Kearns has not experienced any change in his attitude toward the bout. The manager reiterated a statement he has made repeatedly since talk of the bout first started: that he is ready and eager to talk business with any responsible promoter who is prepared to honor Dempsey's financial demands and who can convince him the match can be conducted without danger of interference. Kearns said he has not yet received a legitimate offer for a Dempsey-Wills match. He declined to divulge the champion's terms for a bout against Wills.

Kearns in a Quandry.

With the bars up against a bout with Brennan in Michigan City and confronted with a likelihood of interference in other quarters if an attempt is made to shift the battle ground, Kearns is in somewhat of a quandary on the matter of matches for Dempsey. He admits the Wills battle is the outstanding attraction. But difficulties surround the successful conduct of this match, which, according to Kearns, practically precludes the possibility of it being held until next year. The prospects of a match against Jess Willard are even less encouraging than is the outlook for a Dempsey-Brennan clash, at least before the champion tackles Wills.

Harry Greb, holder of the American light-heavyweight title, is another of the list of eligibles for a bout with the champion, but indications of interest in such a bout are conspicuously missing.

Kearns, seeking a measure of relief from the situation, said he is considering the advisability of accepting proffered matches against Jack Johnson in Mexico City and Luis Firpo in South America. Jim Coffroth, former Coast boxing promoter, who operates a race track at Tijuana, according to Kearns, is eager to conduct a Dempsey-Johnson bout.

Firpo Also Considered.

The champion's manager said he also has under consideration a proposition for a bout against Firpo, the Argentine novice, whose countrymen insist he is a prospective successor to the heavyweight title. In addition to these matches Kearns is prepared to resume exhibitions here with the champion for the double purpose of keeping Dempsey active and realizing on his pugilistic asset—the title.

Dempsey is on the Coast, according to Kearns. The champion will remain a few days in Los Angeles awaiting word from Kearns to come East in the event of developments which would require the title-holder's presence. Dempsey is in good condition, weighs about 187 pounds, and is ready to box on ten days' notice, Kearns said. The only business in sight for Dempsey right now is in the Michigan City exhibition date on Labor Day. Kearns said he will remain here a week or ten days.

MATCH DEPENDS ON LEONARD'S RECOVERY

Gibson Says Champion Will Not Fight White Until Mouth Injuries Heal.

Completion of arrangements for a world's lightweight championship match between Benny Leonard, the title holder, and Charley White, his Chicago challenger, depends entirely upon the recovery of Leonard from the injury to his mouth received in his bout against Lew Tendler in Jersey City, and aggravated subsequently in the champion's clash with Ever Hammer in Michigan City, Ind. Leonard lost a piece of tooth in the Tendler bout, and punches by Hammer caused an infection which is still troubling the champion. Since his return here Leonard has undergone an operation. He is still under the care of a surgeon dentist. If he recovers in time the champion will box White before the end of the outdoor season. Otherwise the bout will be held as an indoor attraction.

Billy Gibson, manager of Leonard, thus summed up the situation regarding the proposed Leonard-White match yesterday. Gibson was in conference with Promoter Tex Rickard and Matchmaker Frank Flournoy, and advised the Garden officials of the champion's predicament. Gibson declared he had not agreed on definite details for the proposed match, and added that he would not be in a position to do so until Leonard recovers from the injury which now prevents his engaging in training work.

JACKSON DUE TODAY FOR GO WITH WILLS

Tut Jackson, the colored heavyweight of Washington Court House, Ohio, is expected here tomorrow to complete training for his approaching bout with Harry Wills, the New Orleans negro, who is the foremost challenger for Jack Dempsey's title. Jackson and Wills are scheduled for a fifteen-round clash at Ebb

OUR DICTATOR.

Mr. JOHN L. LEWIS seems to be waxing fat on President HARDING'S lamentable admission that the country is "at the mercy of the United Mine Workers." As he rightly considers himself to be, in effect, the United Mine Workers, he naturally concludes that the country is at his mercy. LOUIS XIV. never made a more majestic assumption that he was the State. The President of the United Mine Workers, it is true, seeks to make it appear that he is a benevolent tyrant. At the time of the Cleveland conference with the mine owners he declared that while the miners had won a sweeping victory they would deal magnanimously with the operators—would not "humiliate them." It was a gracious concession not to make them crawl to Mr. LEWIS'S feet with ropes around their necks. But whenever he is opposed he asserts his power as a dictator unflinchingly. In breaking off negotiations for bringing about peace in the anthracite industry, his port was that of a man who would brook no resistance to his will, and his language that of a superior being giving orders to his subordinates.

The latest evidence of the arrogance with which Mr. LEWIS now thinks it safe to clothe himself is seen in his attitude toward the bills in Congress for the creation of a Coal Commission. He can hardly conceal his indignation that the President and Congress should have ventured to propose a plan of their own differing from his. In a telegram to Representative BLAND of Indiana he expressed his astonishment that anybody at Washington should have been so bold as to undertake to "nullify the provisions of the Cleveland conference dealing with a Coal Commission." Who is the President, what is Congress, to presume to set aside a project favored by the head of the United Mine Workers? Mr. LEWIS serves fair notice on those in authority who dare to think for themselves. He telegraphs that, if the action urged by the Administration and by the leaders in Congress is carried out, "responsibility will lie with those who recommend such action." In other words, Dictator LEWIS will hold his subjects to a strict account.

There is only slight exaggeration in this summary of what Mr. LEWIS now pretends and intends. The case needs only to be stated to be seen to be intolerable. Mr. LEWIS may think that the country and its selected representatives in Congress are at his mercy, but they are not. The best present answer to make to his impudence is to pass the bill for a Coal Commission. It provides for a thorough and impartial investigation of the entire coal industry. The membership of the commission is to represent neither the operators nor the miners, but the general public. The intention is to secure the naming by the President of men whose competence is so unquestioned and integrity so unchallenged that their findings will be accepted by the country and followed by appropriate legislation. No narrow technical or legal objections should be allowed to stay the progress of this measure. It is for Congress to express in a dignified but unmistakable way its resentment at the attempts of Mr. LEWIS to dictate to it.

President HARDING could not really have meant in his message to admit that the interests of the people and the authority of the United States have been permanently placed in the hands of the United Mine Workers. It is only a temporary emergency that has seemed to grip the country by the throat. Mr. LEWIS is no dictator for life. He is merely for the time being a monopolist able to exact tribute from the people. But his monopoly is sure to be broken, and his dictatorship certain to be trampled in the dust, as soon as the American people find leaders to show them the ways and means to do it.

THE CURSE ON IRELAND.

The loss by the Irish Free State within so short a time of its two great leaders will revive in some minds Lord ROSEBERY'S melancholy theory of a "malignant fate" that continually pursues Ireland. In the death of ARTHUR GRIFFITH the Provisional Government lost its brain, and now the assassination of MICHAEL COLLINS has deprived it of its sword. The shock and horror of this latter crime are said to have filled the minds of many people in Ireland with fearful forebodings. They are said to be asking each other apprehensively if it may not be true that a curse rests upon Ireland, if all her efforts to govern herself are not doomed to failure, and if it may not be necessary to call back the English to restore order and to bring to justice the marauding and murderous bands that are now making the island a scene of terror.

It is no time, however, to give way to unmanly dread. It is not a wicked spell laid upon Ireland with which her sons have to contend, but the mad endeavors of a small fraction of her people to ruin the country if they cannot rule it. Ultimate responsibility for the present campaign of looting and midnight assassination rests upon DE VALERA and a few other leaders of the insurgents, who willfully set themselves to oppose the great majority and to prevent the infant Irish Free State from coming to mature strength. Ex-Governor GLYNN, in commenting upon the terrible misfortune of the killing of MICHAEL COLLINS, declares that at least 90 per cent. of the people of Ireland are in favor of the Provisional Government and are devoutly anxious that the authors of the atrocious crimes which now are a reproach to Ireland should be dealt with sternly.

This being so, the demand of the hour is not for useless repining or surrender to superstitious fears, but for a resolute assertion of the power of the Free State, responsive to the will of the Irish people. If the chosen leaders are gone, others can be found to take their places. With the military situation what it is, courage and firmness are all that will be needed in stamping out the remains of the guerrilla warfare, hardly distinguishable now from vengeful reprisals and the methods of assassins.

THE CEREMONY ON THE TACOMA.

The Central American republics have been trying to form a federation, or political union, for nearly one hundred years, but local jealousies, topographical difficulties and the vested interests of ruling families have prevented it. Success seemed at last to be assured when the flag of the Central American Union of Honduras, Salvador and Guatemala was raised in the City of Guatemala on Oct. 1, 1921, and President HERRERA read a proclamation of adhesion to the Constitution of the new republic. If such a union could stand the strain of partisan government, the inclusion of Costa Rica and Nicaragua might be expected. But seven weeks after the ceremony in the capital of Guatemala the Government of HERRERA was overthrown, and General JOSE MARIA ORELLANA, a leader of the Liberal Party, became President. Early in the present year the National Assembly voted to secede from the union, and declared the Constitution of 1879 to be in force. Overtures to Guatemala to take her place again by the side of Salvador and Honduras were made in vain.

In the interval our State Department has not been idle. On Sunday last the Presidents of Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador met on board the cruiser Tacoma in the neutral waters of the Gulf of Fonseca and renewed, in the presence of the American Ministers to those republics, the treaty, or series of conventions, which all the five Central American republics agreed to at a conference in Washington during President ROOSEVELT'S Administration in 1907. But the association of that year must not be confused with a plan of political union, although it was regarded at the time as a step toward a federation of the republics of Central America. President DIAZ of Mexico seems to have urged upon President ROOSEVELT the calling of the conference in 1907. DIAZ had advocated a joint Mexican-American protectorate over Central America, or a confederation of the five republics, each to retain local autonomy. At the Washington conference eight conventions were signed: a General Treaty of Peace and Amity, an additional convention to the General Treaty, Establishing a Central American Court of Justice, Extradition, Future Conferences (monetary), Communications, Establishing an International Central America Bureau and Establishing a Pedagogical Institute. The dispatch from Corinto, Nicaragua, describing the ceremony on the Tacoma, does not make clear whether the ambitious program of the Washington conference was approved again in every detail, but a summary indicates that it was. Guatemala and Costa Rica are to be invited to adhere to the agreement. In the original Treaty of Peace and Amity measures to deport dangerous agitators, to protect frontiers against invasion and to deal vigorously with conspirators against the peace of an associated State were formulated, and they appear in the Tacoma document.

Will Costa Rica and Guatemala come in? This suggests another question. Why did the conventions of 1907 lapse? The simple answer is that harmony has never existed among the Central American States, and that within the bounds of each there is no solidarity among the well-educated or ruling classes. Interstate antagonisms are always active. The Guatemalans rail at the people of the other republics as "guanacos," and they "hurl back" the epithet of "chapines." The policy of Costa Rica is aloofness. In Guatemala there is an embarrassing Indian problem. Salvador is overpopulated and lacks agricultural territory. Honduras is sparsely populated and largely desert. Salvador looks to Mexico as her natural ally, Nicaragua to the United States. In many ways these republics are at cross-purposes. Union, it has often been said, is too often a pretense of partisans who want office. But the conventions signed on the Tacoma do not require a political union. Costa Rica and Guatemala may come in to please the United States.

THE DOUBT ABOUT THE PERFECT.

We are asked to venerate the "essential principle" of the tariff. The only trouble about it is that there are two sacred tariffs. Mr. FORDNEY produced a bill, beyond all possibility of error. Mr. MCCUMBER and his brethren in economic wisdom produced another bill, almost totally different from the first. Virtue must be one. Wisdom must be one. Yet the Senate smacked nearly 2,500 amendments on the House bill, almost every one of them contrary in principle as well as different in rate to those of the master economists of the House. What is to happen in conference? The two impeccables are now face to face.

MR. FORDNEY is true to himself and the House. He believes that the House bill is better than the Senate bill. There is no doubt about that. The Fordney bill was merely the worst that could be devised by the thinkers of the House. The Senate bill is distinctively and enormously worse. The fight in regard to American and foreign valuation seems to be serious; but what is really serious is the effect of the bill, either in the House form or the Senate form, in "soaking" the consumer. That seems to be acknowledged by both Democrats and Republicans. The fact that prices are rising seems to be attributed to the Democrats. Prices are going up. What puts them up? The iniquity of Democrats. How can Republican storekeepers ask lower prices than Democratic storekeepers? That doesn't look like business.

Is the bill so good, is the bill so bad, that it must be passed or postponed? Are the promises of the tariff, House or Senate, so attractive to the common, ordinary voter that he can't get the realization or anticipation of them in law too soon? This doubt is the one shadow upon the entire and perfect bill. Prices seem to be going up. They are said to be "rigged" by Democrats. But here is Mr. PHILIP PITT CAMPBELL, Chairman of the Committee on Rules, saying that if necessary to preserve the glorious principles of protection one might wait till the "third day of March"; that is, the judgment of the country on the one thing of interest to the country, a thing it feels in its pockets every day, is not essential and may be postponed.

The honorable SIMEON D. FESS of Ohio, its hope and pride and Republican candidate for Senator, has emitted the final and beautiful word about the beautiful and final tariff. Mr. FESS asserts that, whatever has happened in connection with the concoction of the supreme tariff of the world, it is still "the most scientific tariff ever enacted." The tariff is so good that a lot of people think it is the worst in the world, and it is so necessary to pass it that a lot of its friends wonder if it should be passed at all.

NO "SWAMPING" IMPORTS.

Even in periods of normal international trade, it has been usual for shipments of foreign merchandise into the United States to increase heavily on the eve of a large advance in customs duties. Under present circumstances, such an increase must have seemed more than ever inevitable to people who have been living in apprehension of the flood of cheap European goods, the competition of cheap European labor, and the peculiar advantages to European exporters arising out of their depreciated currencies. Yet thus far such crowding of foreign goods into our market to anticipate advances in tariff rates has not materialized at all.

The recently published trade returns for July showed $9,000,000 decrease in our imports as compared with June, and the increase as compared with July of 1921 is amply accounted for by the recovery of prices during the twelvemonth, and by the fact that our industries were at low ebb of inactivity a year ago. The truth is that the cold statistics of our import trade have entirely upset the theory that our markets are being or have been "swamped" with foreign goods. Our total importations during the fiscal year ended last June were $3,607,000,000. In the fiscal year ending with June, 1914, they were $1,893,000,000. On the face of the figures, the increase would seem to be large, though possibly not larger than the normal growth of international trade during an eight years' interval would warrant. But average prices, measured by the statistical index numbers, stand at present something like 55 per cent. above those of 1914; and if the imports in the fiscal year 1914 were to be valued at present prices, they would work out at $2,557,000,000, or close to the past fiscal year's actual results.

So far as concerns our trade with Germany, our imports during the past fiscal year were valued at $95,500,000. In the fiscal year ending with June, 1914, they were $189,900,000; had the latter valuation been made at present average prices, it would have worked out at $256,000,000. In other words, the inrush of German goods with which our market was to have been submerged, because of the heavily depreciated German currency, has been only a little more than one-third of the prewar importation.

Our older high-tariff legislation rarely succeeded in reducing importations for more than a year or two. After the McKinley tariff of 1890 had been enacted, imports actually increased in the three ensuing years. The Dingley tariff of 1897 reduced the volume of imports during 1898 and 1899, but by 1901 the import trade was back at unprecedentedly high figures. In each of the two years after 1909, in which the Payne-Aldrich Tariff bill was enacted, imports increased $200,000,000 over the year in which the bill was passed. The explanation is that apparently the main effect of each advance in customs duties was to raise prices of domestic merchandise proportionately, or at least to keep them above the outside world's price level.

WAGES AND PRICES.

The "worst enemy of labor," as the Steel Corporation has been called, advances the wages of between 156,000 and 220,000 men by 20 per cent., thereby adding to its payroll by $50,000,000. From the first of next month the average pay will be about midway between the rates in October, 1917, and April, 1918, only a little below double the rates of 1915, and about $1.50 a day less than at the maximum in the boom of 1920.

Comparison of rates of pay is about as far as wage earners get, though that is only a beginning of the whole subject. Rates of pay do not show what the wage envelopes will buy and shed little light on the underlying causes of increases or decreases. In fact, a good deal of "unrest" is due largely to failure to understand why wages are high or low beyond the control of those raising or lowering them. The Steel Corporation's motives are not benevolence, but good business and adjustment of its wages to changing conditions.

Rising wages in a basic industry are convincing evidence of existing conditions, even if they are less encouraging on a longer outlook. The Steel Corporation's way is to make announcements of facts and leave motives for others to discuss. Yet there is little doubt that the higher wages signify that the Steel Corporation grants them in order to retain its workers. Moreover, rising prices in the trade permit the collection of the wage money from the buyers of the product. Two rates of pay for labor in the same market are impossible. The Steel Corporation's increases mean higher wages for many more men than are on its rolls. Higher wages and more costly fuel mean higher prices for products.

The question is how far these cost factors will check the improving conditions in the construction industry. In June there were issued permits for buildings valued at a quarter of a billion dollars, an increase of 70 per cent. over last year. The Associated General Contractors estimated that there were needed now 3,144,000 more homes than there were in 1910. The activity in the construction industry was expected to supply 786,000 more dwellings in 1922. That is the chief sustaining force of wages and prices in the steel trade. If construction is to be chilled by the increase of wages and prices, there may be later a revision of the scale. Since 1915 there have been fourteen changes of wage rates by the Steel Corporation. It will be prudent to remember that the present increases are not "pegged."

REFORM IN CHURCH BUILDING.

Plain truths about modern church architecture are plainly spoken in a report which is to be presented at Portland, Ore., before the General Convention of the Episcopal Church. "Paying for an altar, a window or a rood screen," it says, "does not give the donor the right to impose his own taste upon posterity." Nor are the authorities as at present constituted a sufficient tribunal. "Esthetic infallibility," the report proceeds imperturbably, "does not inhere in a Bishop." Among the members of the committee that signed these irreverent words one finds the vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession, also Mr. CHARLES STERLE and the architects BENJAMIN GOODHUE and RALPH ADAMS CRAM. Episcopal churches are presumably no worse than others, but a study of 2,500 of them has convinced the committee that "in all parts of the country millions of" money have been unwisely spent."

Clearly the time has come to apply the new principles of self-government to the building of churches. What is needed is not so much a personal dictator—a pictorial Judge Landis, an architectural Will Hays or a sculpturesque Augustus Thomas—as a commission of churchmen and architects that shall improve the taste of the donor, curb the artistic hospitality of wardens and vestry, even direct the feet of the Bishop in the way they should go. Hitherto, folk who have been properly brought up have thought it incumbent upon them not to say out loud what they think, by and large, of church architecture. But, backed by the authority of this report, they may now express a hope that in the future a pair of too-aspiring spires shall not give the rude populace occasion to dub the edifice behind them the Church of the Holy Toothpicks; that a sculptured Gabriel, overflamboyant with his trump, shall not suggest to the ungodly a Church of the Holy Bean Blower.

Ecclesiastical building presents real difficulties. Many of our most modern churches, if they faithfully expressed their character in stone, would lean on several sides toward the amusement centre, the lecture hall, the settlement house. A sly attempt was made in this direction by Messrs GOODHUE and CRAM when they adorned the portal of St. Thomas's, frequented by fashionable weddings, with monocled Fifth Avenue fops and love-knots entwining dollar signs. As members of a commission for enlightening the Bishop, how far would they carry this conception?

For the present their mood is sobriety itself. They propose that the curriculum of theological schools shall include a course in church architecture and that a handbook shall be prepared for the use of such commissions as may be established. Of late years church building has distinctly improved and competent supervision should accelerate the progress.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Information Cures Incredulity.

With the arrival of detailed and accurate information as to what has been done of late with "gliders"—airplanes without engines—in France and especially in Germany, the doubts that were aroused by the first brief accounts have been dispelled. With this incredulity, too, has gone the mystery why the Germans were "gliding" so much better and further than were the French, British and American participants in the Clermont-Ferrand tournament.

The trouble with the first impressions was an assumption that the aerial conditions at the two places were alike and simpler than in fact they were.

A glider, in still air or in air moving horizontally and steadily, would be able to rise above its point of departure only by an impetus given at launching. Its only other source of power for independent motion would be gained from downward dives, more or less nearly vertical and more or less suddenly "straightened out," but always with loss of altitude. The second of these expedients is the only resource of the ordinary aviator, with his machine heavily weighted by his stalled engine, but he usually makes safely his "forced landing" when his descent begins at a height that gives him time to choose a fairly smooth landing place. Then he, too, is a glider—he calls it volplaning—but he does as little of it as circumstances permit. He cannot hover, his radius of horizontal motion is strictly limited to the circle at the base of a cone drawn from the point where his engine stopped working.

It was knowledge of these facts that caused the general astonishment when the stories of German achievements with gliders first arrived, and it was ignorance or forgetfulness of the fact that these were not all the facts that made a good many aviators and others hastily cry, "Impossible!"

Places and Times for Gliding.

Between the engined airplane and the engineless glider there is an enormous difference of weight. Between the operation of the one and that of the other there is the still more enormous and important difference that the ordinary aviator flies from anywhere to anywhere his business takes him, at any time and in almost any weather. Winds, as a rule, affect him only as they hasten or retard his flight. The man with the glider, on the other hand, selects the scene of his exploits with the greatest care. He wants, and as yet, at least, he must have, a hill or mountain from which to start, and he can do no more than flutter downward except when a wind, blowing against his hill or mountain, is deflected from the horizontal to the upward direction. Ascending currents, which he can utilize, and the engined aviator cannot to any appreciable degree, explain the achievements that seemed so amazing.

The German gliders have a higher hill than those in France, they evidently have studied the air currents there with the greatest care, and, because of the restriction on airplane construction placed on Germany by the Versailles Treaty, more Germans than others have been experimenting with gliders. It may be that they have acquired more skill in this form of aerial navigation than is possessed by anybody else as yet, and it may be that they have better gliders. More probably their seeming superiority is due merely to the height of the Wasserkuppe and to the strong winds that blew there when the most successful flights were made.

The Germans can claim to have wakened the world to realization that, though the glider is not a substitute, or even a rival, for the engined airplane, it is a most interesting contrivance from which much can be learned and with which something—how much is still a matter of guesswork—of direct practical use can be accomplished.

For Once, Anyhow, He's Right.

Senator LA FOLLETTE has not seemed to all of us to be at all times the wisest of guides, but he certainly gives good advice to all and sundry when he tells them to lay in now a stock of the necessaries the prices of which are going to be boosted as soon as the new Tariff bill goes into effect. It is advice, unfortunately, that not everybody, even of those who recognize its excellence, can follow, as it involves the spending of money from which there will be no return for some time.

For a like reason, presumably, many people who last Spring saw the dangerous possibilities of the coal mining situation did not obey the exhortations which all received to buy then the fuel they would need next Winter. For those who could have bought it and didn't no large amount of sympathy with their present anxieties need be felt.

If any considerable numbers do heed the Senator's warning, and now stock up with "woollies" and like Articles threatened by our eminent protectors of public interests, they would be likely, alas! to find that the present possessors of those wares also had heard of tariff prospects and already had brought into action the law of "replacement value"—the law so dear when it justifies higher prices, but so often ignored or scorned when it clamors for the lowering of them. What has the Wisconsin statesman to say about that?

Doubtful and Yet Possible.

Prohibition has aroused more important controversies, but none more interesting, than those now progressing between the Mayor of Johnstown and the enforcement officials as to just what liquid it is with which that city has been "flooded."

The Mayor says that it is real beer, while the officials declare it only near-beer. The Mayor says that the proof of its reality is the fact that drinkers are getting drunk on it, and the reply is that the drunkenness is the result of suggestion, not of high alcoholic content.

Disinterested observers are trying to spoil this particularly pretty quarrel by declaring that at some of the Johnstown bars real beer is sold and at others its hyperaqueous substitute, and that therefore all of the disputants are right and all wrong.

Psychologists will not thank these would-be peacemakers. The thing to do with a good, nippy problem like this one is to solve it, not to abolish it; and while it is improbable, it is not impossible, that a considerable number of Johnstown's inhabitants are sufficiently suggestible, if told that they are drinking strong beer, to show the once familiar effects of such indulgence.

BEER AND MURDER.

Anomalous Situation as Between the Government and the State.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When Mayor Joseph Cauffiel opened wide the gates and let loose upon Johnstown another flood, of "real" beer, in the camp of the Wets there was wild elation, and the Mayor was inundated with telegrams commending him for having the courage of his convictions. But within twenty-four hours it began to dawn on the thirsty souls that the beautiful oasis was but a mirage. The Mayor, it appears, was only playing a game—he had "hit upon novel tactics for waking up the dry bureau in Washington." And Commissioner Haynes declared that "if the prohibition laws were violated the prohibition enforcement force would take necessary action."

Now the wicked Wets are pondering over what seems to them an anomalous situation. To their perverted minds it looks like a paradox that a central Government powerful enough to stop a river of beer in any State of the Union should be powerless when it encounters a river of blood in, for instance, the State of Illinois. These Wets are comparing the statement made by Commissioner Haynes with the admission made by President Harding in his recent address to Congress, referring to the Herrin outrage.

Will this Congress enact the Kellogg bill into law, or must we suffer the "humiliation which lies in the Federal Government's confessed lack of authority" to punish murderers? Shall our prohibition enforcement authorities request foreign powers to permit the search of vessels for liquors outside of the three-mile limit "in order to secure the welfare of our people," as Senator Sterling naïvely expresses it, while having to admit to these same powers that we cannot protect their citizens against mob violence in our country—excepting always, of course, the District of Columbia? WILLIAM C. KAELIN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

W. A. White says: "Now we have a group of States in the South where two amendments to the Constitution are ignored. If we have another group where another amendment is ignored we shall soon have a sort of self-determination in enforcing the provisions of our Constitution and every State that does not like the Constitution can claim the blessed privilege of violating it."

This is just exactly what is now happening in Kansas under the Eighteenth Amendment and under the Volstead law. Under these Federal acts the physicians and druggists of the United States are licensed to prescribe and to dispense whisky for medicinal use. Under existing State laws in Kansas druggists are not permitted to dispense whisky on prescription, and consequently it cannot be prescribed by physicians. This is a nullification of an amendment to the Constitution in Kansas, which is just as flagrant as any of those perpetrated elsewhere. JOHN P. DAVIN, M. D., Executive Secretary New York Medical Association.

How Long?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Has the public experienced great encouragement from Mr. Harding's message to Congress? Surely! Despite the "paralysis of industry because of coal shortage and the menace of life and health by coal famine in the great centres of population," and despite the fact that "no small body of men . . . shall be permitted to choose a course which imperils public welfare," still "there is existing law by which to settle all prevailing disputes," and it is Mr. Harding's "purpose to invoke these laws, civil and criminal, against all offenders alike."

When? Have not these same laws existed ever since the strikes commenced some time back, About April 1?

SEPTIMA SNOWDEN.

Scarsdale, N. Y., Aug. 19, 1922.

Whose Government Is This?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That was a splendid editorial in today's paper entitled "A National Reproach." I think the American public should know whether their Government is to be run by the labor unions or by a majority of the people. SAMUEL MOFFITT.

New York, Aug. 14, 1922.

SEA FOLK.

When I am bathing in the sea,
Cold fingers seem to grasp at me—
Small voices, crystalline and clear,
Whisper strange stories in my ear
About enchanted ocean caves
And coral grottoes 'neath the waves.
Frail seaweed on the silver sand
Is left for me, who understand
Its message from my mermaid kin.
And, when the surf comes thundering in,
Upon his snow-white charger rides
Great Neptune, whipping up the tides!
We who were cradled by the sea
Are never from its spell set free;
There is no lullaby so sweet
As that the restless waves repeat—
Land-lubbers, we for years must roam
The ocean always calls us home.

HARDING PROMISES LEGION

He Will Attend Convention in New Orleans if Public Affairs Permit.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—The Crescent City is preparing to entertain the largest gathering in its history when 150,000 members of the American Legion and other visitors come to the Legion's national convention here, Oct. 16-20.

With the tentative acceptance of the convention invitation by President Harding and General Pershing and the definite acceptance of Major Gen. John A. Lejeune, commandant of the United States Marine Corps; Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, the Legion meeting will assume national importance. Convention officials also expect to entertain a famous Marshal of France and other World War notables. Prominent among the distinguished guests will be twenty-five wearers of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

President Harding has written convention headquarters that he will come to New Orleans if the pressure of public affairs does not interfere, and a similar message has been received from General Pershing.

In preparation for the visit of the thousands of former service men, the Convention Committee has prepared an elaborate program of entertainment. Convention sessions will be held only in the mornings, enabling the delegates and visitors to participate in the festivities the remainder of the day.

The first American Legion national Olympic meet will be held at the convention. Legion athletes from every State will compete for national championships in track and field events, aquatic sports, amateur boxing and wrestling, golf and tennis. There also will be a national marksmanship contest and a tournament of professional boxers. A decision bout between Bob Martin, who won the heavyweight championship at the tournament staged by A. E. F. fighters after the armistice, and Captain Roper, heavyweight champion of the service men who remained in America, will be one of the leading features of the boxing card. The Legion bantamweight championship will be settled when Johnny Buff and Pal Moore meet in the convention ring.

CITY FILING 7 YEARS BEHIND.

County Clerk Asks Piece Workers for Corporation Data.

The New York County Clerk's office is about seven years behind in filing certificates of incorporation and the reports of corporations, County Clerk James A. Donegan said yesterday in commenting on his request to the Board of Aldermen for permission to engage file clerks on a "piece work" basis.

The official charge for recording the documents is 10 cents a folio. Approximately 500,000 folios of records are still to be filed. County Clerk Donegan said that when he took office the accumulation of this work was called to his attention, and he attempted to obtain permission to hire clerks, but was refused by the Board of Aldermen.

As the city is paid 10 cents a folio, Mr. Donegan thought clerks should be hired for 5 cents a folio. He denied applying in his budgetary recommendation for a special appropriation for this work, and declared that the report that he had asked for an increase in his salary list from $199,104 to $251,528 was untrue.

MAY EXTEND NAVAL ACCORD.

League Assembly Will Discuss the Possibilities at Next Session.

GENEVA, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—The General Secretary of the League of Nations has notified Governments which are members of the League that the question of the extension of the naval accord reached at the Washington conference to non-signatory powers has been made part of the program of the next session of the Assembly of the League of Nations.

This question was the subject of deliberations by the Commission for the Reduction of Armaments, which in July examined projects by Rear Admiral Seagrave, Great Britain; the Marquis Saluzzo, Italy, and Colonel Eduard Réquin, France.

The Assembly will be called upon to decide if it considers necessary the extension of the principles of the naval treaty of the Washington conference to the non-signatory powers, and, if so, the best means to arrive at this result.

OUT OF BELGIAN DELEGATION

BRUSSELS, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—The Belgian Cabinet appointed Louis de Brouckère, the Socialist Deputy, a member of the Belgian delegation to the League of Nations today. Deputy de Brouckère replaced Senator Henri Lafontaine, whose position became difficult as a result of a resolution he offered recently at the meeting in Prague of the Friends of the League of Nations.

On the presentation of the resolution of Senator Lafontaine, the delegates of the Little Entente abandoned Prague meeting. It was said that Senator Lafontaine's resolution was prejudicial to the interests of the Allies.

The Nationalist press here has carried on a campaign against Senator Lafontaine for some time. He was the winner of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1913, and has lectured on several occasions in America.

HUGHES SAILS TODAY.

Admiral Vogelgesang Will Accompany Him to Brazil as Aid.

At the Navy Publicity Bureau, 218 West Thirty-ninth Street, the following statement was given out yesterday afternoon:

"Secretary Charles E. Hughes and Admiral C. T. Vogelgesang will meet at the Twenty-third Street Ferry, on the New York side, at 4 P. M. today. They will cross the ferry to Hoboken and sail from Pier 1 on the Pan-American at 6 P. M. for Rio de Janeiro. The selection of Admiral Vogelgesang as aid to Secretary Hughes is in recognition of his high standing in Brazil, where he served a few years ago on special duty as naval adviser to the Brazilian Government. The Brazilian Government recently requested our Government to lend it Admiral Vogelgesang again to supervise the reorganization of the Brazilian Navy."

FONCK PLANS OCEAN FLIGHT

Will Try One From West Africa to Brazil After Trip to Latter Country.

LISBON, Aug. 23.—Captain René Fonck, the French ace, will attempt a flight across the Atlantic Ocean from Dakar, in French West Africa, to Pernambuco, Brazil, when he returns from his present trip to Brazil, according to an announcement made here today. The length of the flight is 1,630 kilometers and will be undertaken in a Caudron amphibian, equipped with three motors. M. Perisse, a French engineer, will accompany Captain Fonck. A wireless operator, who will send and receive messages on the progress of the flight, will also be taken.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Aug. 23.—Ignace Jan Paderewski, who came here from America some time ago, is confined indoors, suffering from a cold and a cough. However, he is not considered serious.

REDLICH URGES NEED OF TREATY REVISION

Austrian Lecturer at Williams Institute Gives His Plan for Saving Central Europe.

HOPES FOR STRONG LEAGUE

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 23.—Dr. Josef Redlich of Vienna outlined in his last lecture tonight before the Institute of Politics a general program for the settlement of Central European political and economic strife.

Dr. Redlich felt that America must return to the counsels of Europe and by taking part in European conferences "satisfy herself by actual co-operation with the European Governments that those principles to which she herself gave a new and far-reaching application in the Washington Conference will be realized by the great and the minor powers of Europe."

Dr. Redlich asserted that the special guilt of the German nation as a whole for the World War should be understood only in its lack of disposition to "break that system of prevalence of those classes which in all Germany embodied militarism as a profession, military force as the main lever for national progress and the prevalence of junkerism and imperialist industrialism.

He said that all the energies of the allied statesmen after the war were directed first to make this League of Nations, if they had to swallow it at all, as shadowy and inefficient as possible; secondly, to secure the fruit of the military, political and social collapse of the Central Powers by keeping Germany in the future permanently and weak as possible.

"What is commonly called German militarism," the speaker continued, "was nothing else than the subjection of the whole national life under the supreme rule of preparation to meet possible or expected military exigencies.

"But one must not forget in judging in an unbiased manner that Germany was by its geographical situation surrounded by big military powers, first by Russia, second by France, which latter had since 1879 developed its old tradition of glory into a system of preparedness for revenge. Germany had preserved European peace more than forty years, but since William II.'s reign began Prussian militarism had become a menace to the world at large, at least in the words of the Emperor. It was not the mass of the German nation which stood behind him. The Social Democratic Party and the Catholic Centre, representing more than two-thirds of the German parliamentary voters, opposed all militarist ideas and contradicted strongly the warlike gesticulations of William II.

Peace Terms Followed by Collapse.

"After the war came the peace treaties but not real peace. The worst feature of the peace treaties is that they have disintegrated Europe as never has been in history. They have elevated the number of sovereign States in Europe to twenty-six. Any attempt to lay the foundations of a constructive European policy must begin again on the continent.

"The principle of national self-determination was employed for the work of dismemberment under the most ideal justification.

"The unsolved problem of countries of minorities of different races is the problem of the economic disintegration of the greater part of Europe. One of the main features of the present state of Europe. The economic collapse of Germany, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria—consequently the impossibility of the victorious States to get reparations because of the encumbering of Germany and its allies by impossible mortgages—has finally broken the forces of Germans and Austrians instead of allowing them to recover, and thus to give their fair share for the indemnification of France and for the recovery of all Europe.

"So much for the economic problem. Now for what I would like to call the moral and intellectual problem of Europe. Wherever we look in all these States we see the continuance of those forms of national hatred and rampant nationalism which were brought to their culmination during the war.

"The question arises," he continued, "what can be done to meet the dangers arising from such a situation as has been dealt with here. It is, of course, impossible to give more than a very general reply to the question. I would venture, however, to formulate three main points:

"1. Revision of the peace treaties, especially in respect to the sums of the reparations.

"2. Concerted work of the great powers in order to induce and encourage economic integration not only of the new States of Central Europe but initiating a system of economic co-operation of all Europe. A great Zollverein of Central and the Near Eastern Europe would be a very tangible peace aim of a great European political leader.

"3. In a great European conference disarmament should be imposed on all European States and guarantees should be given for inviolability of the present territories.

"Protection of minorities should be guaranteed by an agreement of all powers, and the continuous maintaining of the principles arrived at should be executed by a reinforced League of Nations, into which Germany and America should enter."

Lloyd George's Polish Policy.

It was Lloyd George who instigated the sending of the French General Weygand and other high staff officers of the French and British forces to Warsaw to build up defenses against the Soviet drive on Poland in 1920, Philip Kerr revealed today in the round table on Soviet Russia.

"For the task of succeeding in his policy of trade rapprochement with Russia and at the same time to preserve Poland," said Mr. Kerr, "Lloyd George decided to send the British and French staff officers and assistance to Warsaw. It should be understood, of course, that the French were immediately sympathetic to this point of view, and a great deal of the execution was carried out by them, but Lloyd George was the instigator."

The most significant passage in Dr. Fujisawa's final address today was as foll

LESS AFRAID OF BEING SEEN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DOORN, Aug. 23.—The ex-Kaiser's mode of existence has changed, and his fanatical fear of the public eye appears to have greatly diminished, if what I saw this morning is any criterion. Instead of sawing little blocks of Christmas trees in a secluded spot in the garden or working in a secluded vegetable or tree garden, I saw the ex-Kaiser working in the garden a few feet away from the small public footpath encircling the grounds, where I stood with only the wire fence between him and the footpath.

"As I watched the ex-monarch at work, fragments of his conversation were clearly audible and related principally to forestry and care of trees. He seemed happy and thoroughly engrossed in his work, as with a small group of his retinue he busily trimmed and clipped trees in a small plantation of young fir trees. His retinue of workers consisted of several young German adjutants who were coatless and wore riding breeches and waistcoats and were moreover obliged to keep steadily at work as the ex-monarch who bossed the gang would allow no one to stand idle.

A German lady of about 40 years, Countess Lehndorf, formerly visitor at House Doorn, also assisted, often addressing the ex-Kaiser, requesting instructions which the ex-Kaiser gave in a kindly manner. It was a gay little party, laughing and joking over the work, while Frau Stain van Houten of the Dutch Marechaussee engaged in guarding the ex-monarch, also working in his shirtsleeves, amused the ex-monarch by balancing a stick on the end of his nose.

Wilhelm's conversation, which I overheard, showed keen interest in forestry and related to method of clipping trees, the ex-monarch maintaining that trees must have light in order to grow well.

As Wilhelm diligently clipped off the low dead branches with large shears, kneeling on the ground in order to do so, he remarked to the head gardener:

"Yet this tree is in a dreadful state. My method of trimming is the only way. I introduced this in the Tiergarten in Berlin, where they knew nothing of it before I told them."

The other remarks made by the ex-Kaiser were of the same category. The ex-monarch was arrayed in a gray suit, a shirt with collar to match, brown leather gaiters and shoes and a mourning band around the arm.

Some people attribute this change of attitude and disregard of the public to the disappearance of the Prussian Junker Hofmarschall von Grumbkow, who protected the retired sovereign. Anyway, the dense wood surrounding and excluding the park from public view is now being thinned out and the ex-monarch himself is assisting in the work, during which he is often visible from the main road. Every afternoon the ex-monarch buries himself in a vegetable garden, often picking peas and string beans to be consumed by the ex-royal household. The ex-Kaiser appear in remarkably good health and vigorous and looks exactly like the most recent published photograph taken of him with his small grandson.

PLEA FOR SEX EQUALITY BY MRS. HAVEMEYER

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 23.—In the course of a speech in behalf of the National Woman's Party delivered at her villa on Palmer's Hill this afternoon, Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer quickened the interest of her audience to a high degree by repeating a dialogue between herself and an unnamed Governor of New York when she attempted to interest him in a bill that would give women the same rights, privileges and immunity under the law as men.

"But, my dear woman," she quoted the Governor as having said, "you could never get men to pass this law."

"We don't want men to pass this law I replied," she said, "we want women to pass it.' I put it up to him strong and tried hard to convince him that my argument was as good as his."

A moment later Mrs. Havemeyer said: "There is no better man in the world than the American man; but you do not know it, nor does he. Yet I have never known an American man who is willing to take a woman's advice on legal matters and matters of such a nature. But I am not discouraged. I feel sure that we will yet win man over to that point where he will really treat us as his equal. It means a good fight and hard work. I have fought hard and worked hard for the cause, and I see much more hard work and real fighting ahead of me before our task is fully accomplished."

Of the principal task of the Woman's Party, it appeared from Mrs. Havemeyer's talk and that of the other speakers, was the removal of all disabilities applying against women in the various States of the Union.

When urged to make public the name of the Governor with whom she had her discussion, Mrs. Havemeyer declined to do so.

"It would not be fair to him," she said laughingly. "Besides, our party does not wish to antagonize any influential official."

"Then it was Governor Miller?" it was suggested.

"Perhaps it was Governor Al Smith?"

"Perhaps it may have been, but I will not and must not tell who it was. When I see the Governor in question I might tell him how I protected his identity."

Mrs. John Winters Brannan of New York presided as chairman of the meeting. Among those present were Mrs. Gutzon Borglum, Mrs. Julius Kruttschnitt, Mrs. Alfred Crane, Dr. Katherine Merritt, the daughter of Congressman Schuyler Merritt, and Mrs. W. J. Lopp, wife of the author and naturalist.

WILL GIVE BOOTH PORTRAIT.

An oil painting of Edwin Booth, painted by J. A. Mohler, will be presented by E. F. Albee to the Rotary Clubs of America at a luncheon today at the Hotel Astor. It will be taken by a committee of Rotarians to the Shakespeare Museum at Stratford-on-Avon. It will be America's sole contribution to the Stratford collection.

More than 500 professional men will be present at today's luncheon and ceremony. Robert B. Mantell will make the speech of presentation, and the portrait will be received by Arch C. Klumph, Past President of the Rotary Clubs of America.

SOCIAL NOTES

New York.

The Rev. Dr. E. M. Stires and Mrs. Stires have left their Summer cottage at Bolton Landing, Lake George, for Portland, Ore., Dr. Stires being a deputy to the triennial general convention of the Episcopal Church in Portland. They are due to arrive there Sept. 1.

Miss Josephine Kelly gave a luncheon yesterday in Delmonico's Roof Garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Ormond G. Smith and Mrs. Frank L. Crocker were among those giving luncheons yesterday in the Japanese Garden at the Ritz.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman D. Kountze have come from Newport and will be at the Ambassador for the week.

Commander Henry De F. Mel. U. S. N., and Mrs. Mel of Washington, D. C., are at the Astor for a few days.

Mrs. Sidney J. Colford Jr. entertained at Pierre's yesterday with a luncheon for her daughter, Miss Kathleen Vanderbilt, and Mrs. Geodhue Livingston gave a luncheon there for Miss Kate de Forest Prentice.

Mrs. Thomas B. Clarke Jr. has taken an apartment at the Ambassador but will not occupy it until September.

G. Louis Reasevain left last evening for Newport to attend the annual Horse Show.

Samuel H. Vauclain is in town and is making the Vanderbilt his headquarters. Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson Stewart have motored in from Cedarhurst and are also at the Vanderbilt.

Miss Julia Brown Pincke is to have as her attendants on Sept. 9, when she marries Frederick P. Humphreys, her cousin, Miss Dorothy Douglas Brown, as maid of honor and the Misses Suzanne Humphreys, Rosalie P. Barclay, Mary N. Simmons, Constance Hazen Banks and Edith Smedberg as bridesmaids.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Thompson motored in from Red Bank yesterday to meet friends arriving on the Majestic and gave a luncheon at Sherry's.

Mrs. Samuel F. Streit and Mrs. Leonor F. Loree also gave luncheons yesterday at Sherry's.

Mrs. Theodore Schumacher and her young son Alan have returned from their camp in the White Mountains and are at her home, 960 Park Avenue, until she sails on Sept. 2 for Europe.

Southampton.

K. N. Das Gupta came from New York yesterday and was the luncheon guest of Samuel L. Parrish at his villa later in the afternoon plans were made for a series of Hindu plays to be given in the open air theatre in the gardens of the Parrish art museum that is being built for the "Chauve-Souris" performance the evening of Sept. 7. The plays will be given in costumes of India and will be presented on the afternoons of Sept. 7, 8, 9 and the following Monday afternoon, the proceeds to be donated to a charity not yet decided on.

Mr. Das Gupta is the director of the English Union of the East and West. Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador, and Lady Geddes, Dr. Sze, Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Sze, are members of the Washington chapter before whom Das Gupta's plays were presented in Washington last Spring.

Also in connection with these plays will be held an exhibition of ancient Indian paintings, ivories, brass and lacquer works of exquisite design, shawls and embroideries of rare beauty and various art objects of India in the Parrish Memorial Hall during the entire week. Paintings and textures will come from abroad on Eastern subjects, and altogether the Indian week will be filled with interesting events.

The Misses Ruth and Mildred Stillman, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Stillman, are this week taking a motor trip in their car through the hill section of Massachusetts, and will be for a short time the guests of Mrs. Conrad Hobby in Worcester. They will return the last of the week.

Dr. Alfred Stillman 2d will come from New York for the week-end with his parents.

Mrs. W. C. Gulliver, who has been in Nova Scotia with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Sheldon, since June 1, will arrive here Sept. 1, and will be at the Meadow Club until Oct. 1, when she will occupy her West Cottage, in Gin Lane, until the late Autumn.

The juvenile fair given last week on the lawn of the serving house by a number of young girls under fourteen years of age netted $200, which will be spent for the benefit of poor children of the village under the direction of Miss Frances Archibald, district nurse.

Three free lectures on architecture and interior decoration will be given in Colonial Hall of the Rogers Memorial Library on the mornings of Thursday, Friday and Saturday this week, commencing at 11 o'clock, by Miss Minnie Brunker Ross of New York.

Mrs. Farrington-Smith, soprano, of New York gave a program of songs yesterday afternoon in the drawing rooms of Cherisol, the villa of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell, before a large and fashionable audience. Mrs. Smith was assisted by Colin O'More, tenor, who sang a number of songs in French and Italian and a group of Irish songs. Walter Golde played the piano accompaniments.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Stewart Ellsworth will entertain at dinner Friday night at their villa, Meadow Beach.

Mrs. Leaverett S. Miller will entertain at luncheon today at her villa in Watermill for her house guests, Mrs. Breese Blossom and Miss Frances Madden.

A rummage sale will be held, under the direction of Miss Emily Cross and Mrs. Phillips Thompson, on Nugent Street Sept. 2 for the benefit of the Fresh Air Home for Crippled Children.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martin Polhemus, who are passing their honeymoon in Bermuda, will arrive here Aug. 31, and will remain over Labor Day with Mrs. Polhemus's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Stillman, at their villa in Hill Street, after which they will go to their own home in New York.

Mrs. Daniel R. Somerby will give a garden party next Tuesday afternoon on the lawn of the old White House in Sebonac for the children of the Fresh Air Home.

Mrs. Hilles Root Jr. will return today from a visit to New York.

Mrs. Albert H. Ely has returned to Fort Hill, her villa in Shinnecock Hills, from a visit of a week to Mrs. George Bradley in Lyme, Conn.

Newport.

The Summer visitors and the Newport city officials are going to play ball again on Saturday, Sept. 2. For the last two Summers there has been such a game played for charity with financial success. Each side has won a game. Charles B. Dunlap has offered to captain the Summer visitors' nine this year, and has called upon Sumner Gerard, the captain and manager for the last two Summers, to assist him in the selection of the team. Mayor Mahoney, leader of the city officials' team for the last two years, will again head that team. Among those who have already signified an intention to try out for the team are Lawrence Doyle, Frank Roche, Joseph Harriman Jr., Sidney Smith, Lawrence Jennings, H. O. Havemeyer Jr. and Varick Frissell.

The officers and ladies of Fort Adams will give a tea dance Friday afternoon at the Post Service Club from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. A. L. Barber and Mrs. F. L. Buck have been selected to act as hostesses.

Captain A. E. Watson, who has been visiting Captain and Mrs. Francis Taylor Evans, left for New York last evening.

Dr. Walter Wells, who has been stopping at the Muenchinger-King, has gone to Block Island on a deep sea fishing trip. He will return the end of the week.

Mrs. Marion Eppley gave a luncheon for twenty-four guests at Beacon Rock yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Vanderbilt gave a luncheon at the Breakers and Mrs. Henry Lewis was a luncheon hostess at the Rocks.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Arthur Adams of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Osborn of New York and Mr. and Mrs. A. Harrison of Philadelphia are at the New Cliffs. Mrs. John Nicholas Brown has contributed $100 to the Newport Permanent Firemen's Pension Fund.

Mrs. William R. Hunter is acting as Chairman of the Supper Committee at the Art Association annual ball and pageant on Aug. 29. The pageant "The Village," taken from Longfellow's poem "The Skeleton in Armor," is now nearing well, and Longfellow's daughter, Miss Longfellow, has been invited to be the guest of honor of the association.

Mrs. Edith Webb Miles of Bay Forest, Ill., has arrived at the Muenchinger-King to remain over the horse show. J. Armstrong Chaloner of Richmond, Va., is also coming here for the show.

Mrs. Barger Wallach has gone to Boston to personally deliver the invitations for the tournament that is to be played at the Canoe Club next week.

The ladies' match play golf tournament for prizes offered by the Misses Ethel King and Helen Moran at the Country Club has been reduced to the semi-final round, and in this Miss Pauline Robinson will meet Miss Florence Lowe and Miss King meets Miss Moran.

Marshall Kernochan has arrived from Tuxedo Park and is the guest of Mrs. J. J. Wyhong at Greystone.

Victor Loew has arrived from New York and is visiting his brother, William Goadby Loew. They were at the Casino yesterday, as were J. H. N. Potter, James Carey Warren and T. C. McKeever of New York. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. V. Hoffman of Tuxedo Park, who are the guests of Mrs. Charles F. Hoffman, were also at the Casino with their hostess, and another couple present during the morning concert was Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Barry Warren Jr., who have come from Tuxedo Park to spend ten days with Mrs. Warren's parents.

John S. Shedd of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mrs. R. G. Davis of Belmont, Mass.; Mrs. E. Lawrence White of Beverley Farms; Miss Lila Lancashire of Manchester, Mass.; Jacob H. Lowrey of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McKeever of Watervliet, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Trie and Miss Trie of Troy, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. David H. Atwater of Bluefield, W. Va.; J. Clarence Davis, George F. Mortimer and J. Chauncey McKeever of New York are at the Hill Top Inn.

More than one dinner party in the Summer colony here lately where lobster courses had been planned, have gone without the favorite shellfish because of a lobster famine. In some instances it has been impossible to secure sufficient lobsters and in others the price, which has now reached 50 cents a pound, has been too high. The lobster catches off here this Summer have been small. They have been small elsewhere and a part of Newport's present famine has been caused by the fishermen shipping their catches away because of the big prices being offered.

GREAT NECK COLONY AIDS FIRE FIGHTERS

"Shady Lawn," the home of Eugene E. Fisher, on the Lakeville Road, near the Broadway Turnpike, in the exclusive Lakeville section of Great Neck, was partially destroyed by fire early last evening, with a loss of about $20,000.

The fire started when an electric iron in use by a maid in the top floor short-circuited.

Hose companies from the Manhasset-Lakeville district responded. They put out the blaze in a short time.

They were recalled half an hour after they returned to their stations by the fire bursting out a second time when the maid began her ironing again.

It took two hours to put out the second blaze. Many prominent men from the vicinity helped fight it. Two firemen were cut on the arm when a ladder fell.

Among the fire-fighters were E. R. Chapman, a banker of 74 Broadway, Manhattan; Captain Frederick Russell of the Russell Towing Company; Harold W. Weeks, music publisher, and Clark Roe, a Manhattan lawyer.

MISS ISABEL PELL ON STAGE

Miss Isabel Townsend Pell of 220 East Sixty-ninth Street, a daughter of the late Osgood Pell and a débutante of two years ago, is a member of the cast of "Fools Errant," which opened Monday night at the Maxine Elliott Theatre. She plays the part of a maid, and said last night that she would be willing to play maid roles for ten years if that were necessary to fit her for a successful career on the stage.

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Irene Castle, in private life known as Mrs. Robert E. Treman, this morning was caught under a falling horse and her collarbone was broken.

701 IN THE FIRST CABIN

Three Railroad Presidents Among Them—$1,280,000 in Gold Comes From London.

Among the 701 first cabin passengers who arrived yesterday afternoon on the White Star liner Majestic from Southampton and Cherbourg were three American railroad Presidents, who attended the International Railroad Conference in Rome in July. They were Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania, E. E. Loomis of the Lehigh Valley and William Besler of the Central of New Jersey.

Mr. Rea said he had been out of touch with the situation, and when informed that its settlement seemed to rest on the question of restoring seniority rights, said, "How can the railroads yield and keep the promises they have made both to the old men and the new?"

Justice Norman S. Dike of the New York Supreme Court, who returned with Mrs. Dike from a two months' vacation abroad, said when he was asked concerning European conditions: "I am sick and tired of self-appointed Ambassadors who, after seeing two or three Parisian cafés, tell all about Europe. Everywhere I found the European nations still reeling and dazed, like a prizefighter after a gruelling contest. The financial side is the problem."

Martin Littleton and his wife also were passengers on the Majestic. The lawyer said there was but one Democratic candidate for the Governorship and that was former Governor Smith. The fight, he predicted, would be between him and Governor Miller.

Princess de Polignac, daughter of Anita Stewart, returned from a visit to his family in Spain and Hungary. He was met at the White Star pier by William Rhinelander Jr., and will join the Princess and their children in Newport tomorrow.

Dr. Ludwig Enrich, Director of Information of the Polish Legation, who returned on the Majestic from a visit to Warsaw, said there was very little unemployment in Poland, all schools are open and sufficient food to obviate more relief work. The people were grateful, he said, for the help received from America. With him was Dr. Stefan Grotowski, the Polish Consul General in New York, who had visited England and France.

Mrs. Laura B. Cross of Louisville, Kentucky, a frequent transatlantic traveler, was robbed of jewelry and other property valued at $2,000 shortly after the liner left Cherbourg. On the arrival of the liner in Quarantine yesterday, detectives from Police Headquarters went on board to investigate.

Half a dozen special agents of the Treasury Department boarded the Majestic yesterday as they had been tipped off that there was a man on board who was bringing a quantity of the Russian Crown jewels for disposal in this country. He was not there, but they managed to pick up about $2,000 to $3,000 worth of undeclared diamonds and other jewels among the 1,315 cabin passengers on the liner.

In addition to 4,000 sacks of mails the Majestic brought $1,250,000 in gold for New York banks from London.

SHIP ENGINEERS RISK LIVES.

The White Star liner Majestic arrived yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg twenty-four hours late through making repairs to the port low pressure turbine at sea instead of stopping another three days in Southampton to have it done there. The work was well executed in thirty-six hours by the staff of seventy engineers belonging to the Majestic, aided by six engineers and a superintendent from Harland & Wolf's shipyard in Southampton.

Joseph Wolff, the chief engineer of the liner, who superintended her construction in Hamburg, was in charge of the job. He said that it was the breaking of thirty-two steel studs out of thirty-eight which connect the rotor with the gummy and not the struts as given in the radio message. The engineers went into the drum in relays to drill out the holes for the studs and worked in a temperature of 98 degrees. The space was so small that electric drills could not be used and special tools had to be made for the job, the Chief Engineer said.

The port low pressure turbine was cut out after the Majestic left Cherbourg on Wednesday, Aug. 16, and a hydraulic dam built to keep steam from entering the chamber, but the engineers were in danger of their lives by the possibility of the steam escaping and flooding the compartment while they were at work.

POISON PEN LETTERS STOP CANDLER WEDDING

ATLANTA, Aug. 23.—Poison pen letters, received here, have postponed the marriage of Asa G. Candler, former Mayor and capitalist of Atlanta, and Onesime Debouchelle, society leader, suffragist and beauty of New Orleans. Mrs. Debouchelle insists that there shall be no wedding until the mystery of the letters, slandering her is cleared up.

According to reports received here Wednesday, proceedings at Reno, Nev., to divorce Mrs. Debouchelle from Adolph Derocquet are still pending.

Judge John S. Candler, brother of the former Mayor, has employed two of the leaders of the New Orleans bar to inquire into the alleged slanders. These attorneys are Harris Gamble, former Attorney General, and Zach Spearing, President of the American Bar Association. Mrs. Debouchelle's instructions, it is understood, are to sue the authors of the poison pen letters for slander if their identities can be established.

Ocean Travelers.

Among the prominent New York people who returned yesterday from Europe on the White Star liner Majestic were: Henry M. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Read, Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone L. Redmond, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Rodewald, E. W. Sells and A. H. Swayne. From other cities were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McIlhenney, Miss Annabel McIlhenney and Miss Hester McIlhenney, Pittsburgh; Miss Frances T. Goodwin, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Bowman Gray, Miss Alice Gray and Gordon Gray, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Jay Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Rupert, Miss Anna Rupert and Miss Mary S. Rupert, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Sanders and Miss Rebecca Sanders, Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. William B. Tennant and Miss Alice Tennant, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Winton and Charles J. Winton Jr., Minneapolis; Mrs. John R. Bayburn, St. Louis, and Sir Joseph Sherwood of London.

EX-SENATOR HOPKINS OF ILLINOIS DEAD

AURORA, Ill., Aug. 23.—A. J. Hopkins, former United States Senator and for years a Republican leader in Congress, died today at his home, aged 76. He served eight successive terms in the lower house of Congress and then was chosen Senator.

Former Senator Hopkins, a lawyer by profession, became a member of the Forty-ninth Congress and served through the Fifty-seventh. He was elected Senator in 1903, serving until 1909.

During his service in Congress he held many important committee assignments and helped to frame every tariff law from the McKinley bill to the Dingley law. While serving on the Inter-Oceanic Canal Committee he brought before the Senate a substitute for the committee report, favoring a lock level canal as against the sea level canal recommended by the committee, and by his Senate speech secured adoption of his amendment, thus insuring construction of a lock level canal.

He was a central figure in the Senatorial deadlock of 1909 in the Illinois Legislature which culminated in the election of William Lorimer, which afterward was declared invalid. Charges of bribery in the election were not sustained.

GARDNER F. WILLIAMS DIES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—Gardner F. Williams, 80, widely-known mining engineer, who for eighteen years was general manager of the De Beers Consolidated Mines, Ltd., of London, which at one time, it was said, produced 95 per cent of the diamond yield of the world, is dead at the home here of his daughter, Mrs. M. E. Eyre Pinckard.

Born at Saginaw, Mich., Gardner Williams was taken to California in the early '50s by his pioneering father, and graduated from the State College in 1865, afterward studying for his profession at the Mining Academy of Freiberg, Germany. Two years at the San Francisco Mint made him an expert assayer, and then the successful development of several mines in the West were followed by his migration to South Africa.

He was engineer for an exploration company of the Rothschilds when he met Cecil Rhodes on shipboard. The men spent the voyage walking the deck arm in arm and poring over maps and plans. Rhodes told his vast plans to the American, who gave in return his knowledge of mining. As a result of this meeting Williams left the exploration company and until his retirement in 1896 managed the Rhodes diamond mines.

Van H. Cartmell.

Van H. Cartmell of New York, for many years president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, died early yesterday morning of pneumonia in Springfield, Ohio. He was 73 years old.

Mr. Cartmell was a pioneer in the rubber industry. Until ill health necessitated his retirement two years ago he had been actively engaged as president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

He was born in Springfield, Ohio, and began his business career as a clerk in a local store. Subsequently he founded the Springfield Rubber Tire Company, which produced carriage-wheel tires. This company was merged in 1898 with another company into the Consolidated Rubber Tire Company, of which Mr. Cartmell became president in 1902. He also served as vice president of the Rubber Association of America.

Mrs. Helen Cohn Rosendale.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Helen Cohn Rosendale, wife of Simon W. Rosendale, former State Attorney General, died tonight after a three months' illness. Mrs. Rosendale was 73 years old. Her maiden name was Helen Cohn, and she was born in Albany. For upward of forty years she had been active in every philanthropic movement in Albany. She was Treasurer of the Women's Board of the Albany Hospital and was also connected with the Public Health Council. She was a graduate of the Albany Female Academy.

Benjamin Folsom.

Benjamin Folsom, a cousin of Mrs. Thomas J. Preston Jr., who was Mrs. Grover Cleveland, died at Pasadena, Cal., on August 18. He had lived there for the last twenty years. Mr. Folsom, who was formerly a lawyer practising at Rochester, N. Y., was born in 1847 at Fulsomdale, N. Y., and graduated from the University of Rochester in 1868. In addition to his practice, Mr. Folsom wrote continually for newspapers and also served as United States Consul at Sheffield, England. He was married in 1869 to Ella Blanchard Howard of Rochester.

Rev. Dr. John Greenleaf Oakley.

The Rev. Dr. John Greenleaf Oakley, who was pastor of the Church of the Savior in this city from 1887 to 1902, and had been a member of the New York Conference for fifty-two years, died yesterday morning at the age of 79 at his residence, 34 Tuckahoe Road, Yonkers. For the last five years he was pastor of the Union Congregational Church in Tuckahoe. His other charges included the Centenary Church and the Forty-fourth Street Church in this city. Services will be held at 4:15 tomorrow afternoon at the Memorial Church, Neperhan Heights, Yonkers.

Patrick F. Shea Dies Suddenly.

Patrick F. Shea, owner of several theatres in New England and in control of the Royal and National in this city, died suddenly at noon yesterday of apoplexy while seated at his desk in his office on the eighth floor of the New Amsterdam Theatre Building. He had seemed in good health during the morning. He started in the vaudeville branch of the theatrical business forty years ago, and became the first general manager of the Keith Circuit.

Mrs. Jane Elliott Snow.

Among her best known books is one entitled "Women of Tennyson" and another "The Life of William McKinley." Her writings covered a variety of subjects, including history, agriculture, religion and dramatics.

William Boldenweck.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—William Boldenweck, who was President of the Sanitary Board during the building of the Drainage Canal, died Monday in Hamburg, Germany, of heart disease at the age of 71. He was sub-treasurer in Chicago under Roosevelt, and while in office $178,000 was stolen from the treasury. He retired afterward and the mystery of the theft was never solved. An act of Congress relieved Boldenweck of responsibility for the loss.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 23.—A feature of the will of William Sloane, New York merchant, who maintained a country mansion at Mount Kisco, disposing of an estate estimated to be more than $3,000,000, filed with Surrogate Slater today, is bequests to charitable organizations aggregating nearly $600,000.

Relatives, friends and employes are remembered to the extent of $375,000 in legacies. The residue, the value of which is not known, is left to the widow, Mrs. Frances Crocker Sloane. Upon her death it descends to her daughter, Margaret Douglas Sloane. The latter receives a diamond necklace which Mr. Sloane says belonged to his mother. Mr. Sloane, who died at Southampton, L. I., Aug. 11 last, owned a large number of shares of the firm of W. & J. Sloane, of which he was President at the time of his death.

The largest single bequest is $400,000 to his sister, Evelyn Sloane Griswold of 563 Fifth Avenue, Manhattan. Other bequests follow: John Sloane, brother, $50,000; "to my friend" Dr. Russell A. Hibbs, $3,000; the Rev. Henry Sloane Coffin of 129 East Seventy-first Street, $10,000; William E. S. Griswold, brother-in-law, $50,000; William Sloane Coffin, cousin, $10,000; Arthur Masten Crocker, a godson, $10,000; the Rev. Charles Warren Baldwin, $5,000; Mal-colm Barbier Beaucourt, France, a friend and companion in our family for more than forty years, $5,000. Employes at the Sloane country estate were remembered as follows: Frank Robinson, $10,000; Edward Cullan, $7,500; John Goyette, $7,500; Mary E. Hale, a secretary at 575 Fifth Avenue, receives $5,000.

The bequests to charitable organizations follow: International Committee, Y. M. C. A., $100,000 to be added to the permanent endowment fund; Presbyterian Hospital, New York City, $100,000; New York University, $100,000; New York Society for Relief of the Ruptured and Crippled, $10,000; New York Public Library, $50,000; Metropolitan Museum of Arts, $50,000; American Museum of Natural History, $50,000; Northern Westchester Hospital Association, $10,000; Brick Presbyterian Church, New York, $50,000; Trustees of Robert College of Constantinople, $10,000 for the college endowment funds; Yale-in-China Missionary Society for the institution known as "Yale in China" at Changshau, $10,000; St. John's Guild of City of New York, $10,000; Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, $10,000; Board of Home Missions, Presbyterian Church, $10,000; the Russell Trust Association of New Haven, $5,000; St. Andrews Society of the State of New York, $5,000; New York Probation Association, $5,000 for benevolent uses; New York Historical Society, $5,000; Children's Aid Society, $5,000; Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $5,000; Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $5,000; New York Travelers Aid Society, $5,000.

MRS. FRANK LESLIE'S ESTATE IS WOUND UP

Executors Report a Balance of $30,368 After Numerous Expenditures.

The final accounting of the executors, Louis H. Cramer of Saratoga Springs and William Nelson Cromwell of Manhattan, of the estate of Mrs. Frank Leslie was filed yesterday in the Surrogates' office. The executors charge themselves with the balance of $211,078.61 remaining after the last previous accounting. The accounting shows a credit of $2,768.11 in the sale of securities, payments of creditors of $58,341.00, payments to legatees $36,538.13, payment to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt $2,997.51, and administration expenses $80,170.19, leaving a balance on hand $30,368.07.

Included in the expenses of administration are fees to Edgar T. Brackett, attorney, $15,000, with $5,040.66 for services and disbursements; Sullivan & Cromwell, attorneys, fee of $15,000 and $5,017.61 for services and disbursements; William Nelson Cromwell, $19,602.23, and Judge Hatch a referee fee of $5,078.35.

PARK BENJAMIN'S FUNERAL.

Body of Patent Lawyer Cremated—Message From Mrs. Caruso.

The funeral services of Park Benjamin, the noted patent lawyer and father of Mrs. Enrico Caruso, who died Monday at his Summer home in Stamford, were held yesterday at his city residence, 270 West Seventy-third Street. Friends of the family who were present recalled Mr. Benjamin's opposition when his daughter married Enrico Caruso and told of a cablegram received from Mrs. Caruso. In the message, sent from Venice, Italy, Mrs. Caruso expressed herself as being "heartbroken."

The services, conducted by the Rev. Elmer Nelson Owen of Des Moines, Iowa, who is temporarily rector of All Angels' Church, West End Avenue and Eighty-first Street, were simple. The rooms, however, were literal flower gardens of bouquets. In the centre of all rested the coffin, decorated only by one large American flag.

Members of the family and intimate friends only were present. In accord with Mr. Benjamin's request his body was cremated. There were no pallbearers at the funeral.

WAGE CUTS BLOCKED, GOMPERS DECLARES

FOR COMMON LABOR AIM

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, spoke today before the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress in convention here. He asserted that employers had begun a drive against labor immediately after the armistice and said he thought conditions in Canada were much the same as in the United States. Attacks on labor had not only been from the outside but also from within by those who "played the fool" in labors ranks.

Never had the employers of the United States, he said, been so eager to free the American workmen, as they called it, by the so-called American plan. Labor had accepted some cuts but these had been followed by demands for more and more reductions and effective protests had come in the form of strikes, first in the needle trades, where there had been a great victory for labor, next in the textile industry, where the people were still resisting, and later had come the protest of the miners and railway shopmen.

In regard to the miners' strike, Mr. Gompers said that they would soon return to work victorious in their contention that the reduction in wages was stopped. The railway shopmen were standing fast against the determination of the rail executives backed and directed by high finance, and the attempt to impose another reduction has been successfully resisted.

Mr. Gompers talked of the idealism of labor, urging for common aims in all the nations of the world. Before the war he had been a pacifiest. During the war he had realized that there was nothing for the people to do but to defeat Kaiserism and to make all sacrifices necessary thereto. But, with the war at an end, he had transferred to pacifiism again, believing in international brotherhood rather than international massacre. As the workers had been against political autocracy, so were they against industrial autocracy, and as had been said at Verdun, the message of the workers to employers was that they must not pass except over the bodies of the workers.

"The toilers of Canada and the United States," said Mr. Gompers, "stand erect, looking the whole world in the face, working with determination that nothing but justice and fair dealing and a better life and conditions for the masses will satisfy labor on this hemisphere."

Mr. Gompers emphasized that the American Federation of Labor had never undertaken to interfere with the political policy of the Canadian labor movement and he wanted it realized that there was no desire to interfere. He only wished that all the workmen of Canada were united, for there was no room for two labor organizations. Mr. Gompers evidently had allusion to the Catholic and National unions in the Province of Quebec. He said that he would not if he could, and he could not if he would, interfere with the religious feelings of the working people of Canada or of any other country. In the United States the employer did not care as to the religious faith of the workers, but cared only that they should work cheap. And, said Mr. Gompers, he had a notion that it was the same in Canada.

RAPPINGS ON RADIO MYSTIFY MAGICIAN

HAS INVENTION OF OWN

Unexplained rappings that come like the dots and dashes of a telegraph code have been "picked up" through an apparatus invented by Howard Thurston, the magician, and these, he said yesterday, have convinced him that so-called spirit phenomena are founded on something tangible. Either those in the spirit world have produced the rappings or he has, he believes, caught the first faint signals from some far-distant planet. Mr. Thurston said he was not ready to give a description of the machine he is using, but that electricity entered into its working. He has been unable to read the alleged message, and Sir Conan Doyle, who witnessed some of the experiments, he added, also could not interpret them.

Mr. Thurston said last night that what had convinced him more than anything else that spirits were the source of the knocking was that he saw visions of faces—silent faces that look wistful and obey his wish that they move to the right or left, but which fade when he seeks to find out what message they bring.

Because he was able to duplicate the work of mediums in his own profession, Mr. Thurston said, he had scoffed at their claims for years.

"However my latest experiments," Mr. Thurston said, "have convinced me against my will that we are being approached by some unearthly force which seems to be trying to impart to us or received from us some information. During a recent series of tests I was astounded by the unmistakable presence of some very definite supernatural influence which seemed to be attempting to give some sort of message to me or through me. I have been using what might be called a semi-radio outfit of my own invention. I believe if these distinct impressions were not communications from spirits they must have been communications from other planets.

"Recently I have arrived at the conclusion that many of the planets, if not all, are inhabited by beings, spiritual or physical, who are similar to us in mentality at least, and that in the course of time they will get into intelligent contact with us. I think they have been trying to get in touch with us a long, long time, and it is barely possible that their signals which have been received by the highly sensitive ones among us the real mediums, have been mistaken for messages from our departed relatives and friends.

"I have not been converted to the same sort of spiritualism professed by Doyle, Lodge and Hyslop, but I believe that any highly sensitive persons with an ability to concentrate can at times receive the so-called spiritualistic communications. I feel sure there is a direct connection between occult force and radio power."

Good news for motorists! The best news after months of price-cutting and value-shifting! Lee Cords—the tires of recognized highest quality—are now selling at phenomenally low prices!

Lee Cords in the larger sizes for years have been leaders among quality tires. Their sterling dependability, with great reserve strength and long life, has everywhere won the preference of discriminating buyers.

This steadily increasing success of Lee Tires during the past three years—while most other tire manufacturers suffered reverses—makes possible the new, greatly reduced prices.

Lee Cords are built on the basis of limited production to insure highest quality. Only 2000 Lee Tires are made daily. The finest-grade materials—tire craftsmen of long experience—rigorous tests and inspection throughout every manufacturing process combine to make Lee Cords superior for every service need.

Buy Lee Cords in the size you require for fall and winter driving. No advantage in shopping around with Lee Quality Cords at the present low prices. Save time and money by going direct to the Lee Dealer. You cannot find a tire at any price to approach Lees in value.

Three sturdy rubber ribs reinforce the side walls of Lee Cords. This feature of Lee construction prevents ruining the tire when driving in ruts. It adds to the greater mileage that has made Lee Cords famous everywhere.

New York's Choice of Ricoros

THERE are 10 Ricoro sizes. All are made of the same rich imported Porto Rican tobacco.

Why is it that of these sizes, a majority of New York's Ricoro smokers prefer the Corona, Invincible and Cabinet?

Here is the explanation: The smokers of New York believe that the "BIG THREE" are shapes which bring out the full aroma of Porto Rican tobacco at its best.

You may prefer one of the seven other Ricoros; we simply pass along this news of what the majority prefers.

THE LEGISLATIVE WEEK IN WASHINGTON.

BONUS BILL GOES IN; MAY PASS SATURDAY

McCumber, Offering It in the Senate, Says He Does Not Know Harding's Stand.

OPPONENTS COUNT ON VETO

Rejection by the President, It Is Now Thought, Would Be Upheld.

WOULD USE BRITISH FUNDS

McCumber Says Interest on Debt This Year Would Cover Two Years' Soldier Payments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—With a bare quorum present, but with galleries packed, largely with veterans of the World War, the Senate began at 2 o'clock this afternoon consideration of the McCumber Soldiers' Bonus bill. Senator McCumber, making the principal speech in favor of the bill, declared that the great majority of the American people want the bill passed, and added that he had no information which would justify him in making the statement that the bill, if passed in its present form, will be vetoed by President Harding.

Since Secretary Mellon, in 1921, warned the Senate that the passage of a bonus bill would seriously interfere with the funding of the foreign debt and would place upon the Treasury Department an almost intolerable burden there has been a great change in the situation, said Senator McCumber. The "clouds of danger," he added, have been entirely dissipated. The bonus debt, he said, would be spread over a period of forty years and if every soldier took the guaranty the total cost, he declared, would not exceed $4,500,000,000.

The anticipated flood of oratory did not develop. Mr. McCumber's was the only speech of more than five minutes in length. There were no speeches from the opposition side, although Senators Underwood, Wadsworth, Borah, Nelson, Shields and Warren were in their seats to defend the rights of the anti-bonus element.

Senator Underwood will speak tomorrow, as will also Senators Wadsworth and Borah, but the speeches are all expected to be short. Neither will the Senators who are urging the passage of the bill use up much time. It is even possible that the final vote may be reached late tomorrow afternoon. It is more generally expected, however, that it will come on Saturday. If passage is delayed it will be due to long speeches prepared by radicals, not in the hope of changing any votes in the Senate, but for the purpose of getting officially on record in advocacy of the compensation proposition.

The real test of strength will come if the President, as he is expected to do, sends the bill back to Congress with a veto. The veto, declare the opposition group, will be sustained with one or two votes to spare. Thirty-three votes are necessary to uphold a veto, and the count at this time indicates twenty-three Republicans and seven Democrats who will stand by the President in the event that he refuses to sign the bill.

Uncertain of Harding's Attitude.

"It is no use," said Senator Underwood tonight, "fighting to delay the passage of this bill. It will pass by a big majority. The real showdown will come when the President vetoes the bill, as his friends maintain he will."

When Senator McCumber concluded his speech this afternoon Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, who is leading the bonus fight from the Democratic side asked him if he was in a position to state the position of the President.

"If the bill is passed in its present form and without providing the means for paying the compensation, can the Senator inform us whether the President will sign it or veto it?" Senator Robinson asked.

"I have," replied Senator McCumber, "no information whatever as to what the President will do. All that I can say is that the conditions that confronted the President of the United States in the Treasury in 1921 no longer exist. I can see no reason for a veto."

"I am convinced," replied Senator Robinson, "that there is little to be gained by a long debate on this subject. Senators have had three years to deliberate and some of them have changed their position. The Senator from North Dakota has shown that there is no longer any excuse for delaying the bill because of the financial situation and also that there is no reason why the bill should be vetoed.

"Never in the history of this country has any measure been subjected to more deliberate, more powerful, or skillfully directed opposition in the form of propaganda, and this propaganda is still in progress and gaining force all the time. The time certainly has come for a final disposition of this question."

Notwithstanding, said Senator McCumber, the objection of those people who reaped their millions during the war to now share a most meager percentage of their gains with those whose soldier services made those gains possible, I am certain that the great mass of the American people demand that this adjusted compensation bill shall be enacted into law. The millions of petitions that are coming to the Senate not only show that the heart of the American people has not grown cold toward the country's defenders, but that it recognizes it just and financial obligation and asks the country to meet it.

Counts On Funds From Britain.

"To be sure, we have not yet funded our foreign loans. To my mind there has been an unnecessary delay in funding these obligations. The law providing for a commission to settle these obligations was approved Feb. 9, 1922, and the last of the appointees on that commission were confirmed by the Senate on April 15, 1922. I, therefore, can see no reason in the world why we should not at least have a settlement with our principal debtors, Great Britain, France and Italy, before Jan. 1, 1923. In prospective of this funding Great Britain is preparing to meet the interest due this Fall, and if she does so we will have in advance a sufficient sum from that source alone to more than meet the first two years' obligations under this measure. And that assurance is the substance, if not the letter of the President's request for delay. It answers his query, 'Would it not be better to wait the settlement of our foreign loans?'

"The British Government recognizes that interest on its obligations to the United States will be due in September of this year. The British Government has included in its budget of expense for the ensuing year an item to cover the interest. The United States, then, the sum is just as much assured as though the actual bonds had been issued. That answers the President's request for delay. From the source indicated by the President I can meet the 1923 obligation of this bill and meet it nearly three times over without either issuing bonds or levying additional taxes."

Senator McCumber said that the bill, if enacted, would cost the country less than $4,000,000 in 1923, less than the money now in sight and about $78,000,000 in 1925. In 1926 the Government would take over the loans that might have been made on the certificates, and in that year, said Senator McCumber, would come the maximum payment for any one year during the life of the proposed law. If necessary, Senator McCumber suggested that good roads legislation be suspended for one year. This, he said, would more than meet the first-year payments.

"Admitting," Senator McCumber continued, "the lowering skies in the financial world of a year ago, I ask the Secretary of the Treasury and the President to view this proposed legislation in the light of present day conditions, and these changed conditions certainly must appeal to the judgment for a revision of the views of a year ago. We can meet every dollar this bill will call for without additional tax levy and without in the slightest degree affecting the refunding of any unpaid short-time obligations.

Holds Moral Obligation Supreme.

"We now come directly to the proposition. Is there a moral obligation on the part of the American people to adjust the compensation that the American soldiers received during the war to make it more nearly conform to the added compensation received by every other American citizen during that war? And remember that is all there is to this question.

"The bill is not a bonus bill. That designation is a misnomer. It is exactly what it purports to be—an adjusted compensation bill. When one person owes a debt to another there is a court to pass upon its validity in case of dispute and a law to enforce its collection. When a Government owes a debt there is neither court nor process to enforce it. Congress alone has the power to determine its equity and whether it shall be paid. That question is now before the American Congress.

"In a previous discussion of this Soldier's Compensation bill I called attention to the flagrant violation of every principle of honorable business dealing in contracts made with and in work performed for the Government during the war from contractor down to the lowest laborer. I pointed out the scandalous profiteering on the part of both employer and laborer. I called attention to the fact that the contracts engaged in the construction of all our war buildings under the cost-plus contract system encouraged idleness, padded their payrolls, and added enormously to the expense of work because by so doing they increased their own compensation.

"What were these great powers that are now condemning Congress and damning the soldiers for asking for their just rights saying at that time? Did a single one of them come out and condemn this looting of the Treasury? Did a single one of them attempt to bring before the American public any idea of what was going on in the United States in piling up without any tangible result an enormous indebtedness which must some day be paid with interest? And will they call attention to the crime against the American soldiers who were dying in France or in cantonments? Did any of them call attention to the fact that a day of reckoning would surely come? Were they all dumb in the presence of the shekels incident to the extravagance that followed this opening of the Treasury to almost bandit hands to call the attention of the public to this criminal looting of the Treasury? The only 'cry most' needed that publicity which alone could awaken the conscience of the country and check this lawless raid?

"There is no politics in the bonus proposition," Senator McCumber declared, although he added that some newspapers so assert. To say that politics enters into the situation, he said, was "absolutely silly."

"The enactment of this legislation," he resumed, "will not make the difference of a single vote for either party on the part of the American soldiers. The failure, however, to enact this legislation will, and very properly, subject this Congress to the accusation that when the House passed the Soldiers' Compensation bill June before the election in 1920 and assured the American soldiers that it would be passed by the other house as early as possible in the next succeeding session they were playing politics.

"I, for one, am certain that such a thought was never in the mind of a single Senator or Representative. You all know the history of the proposed legislation since that time. The time has now arrived for the American Congress to show that it has been acting in good faith, that it was not attempting to play politics with the American soldier. The President in his campaign in 1920 declared in favor of some kind of soldiers' compensation bill. Republicans, both in the campaign and on the floor of the Senate, have reiterated their determination to make good these promises. These were made in good faith, and that good faith will be manifested in the vote on this measure.

"The Government ought in justice and square dealing pay in cash to the soldiers this $1 and $1.25 per day for each day's service, as provided in the bill. If it did this, the entire cash cost would not exceed $1,561,000,000. But as the Government has not the cash on hand, the Congress, acting as the agent of the Government, says to the soldier: 'Let us have some basis of payment so that will give the Government an extension of time in which to make this payment.'

"So they sit down at the table, and the soldier says: 'I will not ask the Government to pay a penny for twenty years, if I live that long. So give me a paid-up insurance, the equivalent of the cash due me with interest, for those twenty years. Most of our number will take that plan.' But as there may be some few who may wish to purchase a home or land, we ask you to help those few to fulfill their purchase-price engagements. They will not be many. We desire, however, the right to borrow upon our certificates, but for the first three years we are willing to take our borrowing chances with the banks of the country if we shall be pressed for cash. After that, if we borrow from you, we shall pay you the same per cent. of interest which you allow us."

"To my mind, every precept of financial justice and every principle of political honor demand that this Soldiers' Compensation bill be passed into a law at this session of Congress.

"Thousands of soldiers," Senator McCumber said, would not apply for certificates until late in life. A soldier has twenty years in which to make his application, and the twenty years in which the obligation is to be met begins with the issuance of the certificate. That is where the forty years' proposition comes in. If they all apply now it would mean that the debt would have to be retired in twenty years.

Bill Advanced in Committee.

Rapid progress was made with the bill, and most of the committee amendments, many of them textual, were disposed of today. It appears certain that the bill, which is now in the Committee of the Whole, will go into the Senate proper tomorrow afternoon. There will be several amendments from the floor. Senator McNary will offer the Reclamation bill as a substitute, and Senator Smoot is expected to submit a sales tax substitute. Both propositions appear certain of defeat.

Senator Bursum's half cash, half certificate proposition was defeated this afternoon without roll-call. Bursum had a prepared speech ready, but before he could get started Senator Cummins put the proposition before the Senate and the defeat followed. Mr. Bursum will speak for reconsideration tomorrow in case the bill is not amended before then.

Rejects Bids for Wood Ships; Will Auction Them Privately

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board today rejected bids for the sale of 238 wooden cargo ships built during the war for the Government. These vessels will be sold at a private competitive sale at the offices of the Shipping Board here on Sept. 6.

The reason for the rejection was that the prices offered were too low. The bids were withheld from publication.

MUTINY AND FIRE ON AMERICAN SHIP

76 OF CREW ARE ARRESTED

NAPLES, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Seventy-six members of the crew of the steamship Philadelphia, belonging to the New York-Naples Steamship Company, were arrested today on a charge of being responsible for fires which broke out in several portions of the vessel this morning.

The steamship had been seized by the police in connection with an extended dispute over the bills for repairs. The passengers and crew had been ordered to disembark today. The American Consul had arranged to send the crew home on the steamship Cameronia, sailing Friday.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A Naples dispatch to the Central News says that the fire which was started on the American steamer Philadelphia this morning was accompanied by a sensational mutiny of the crew, who, after pillaging the hold, which contained valuable merchandise, defied the attempts of the Captain and the officers to restore order. A bitter fight ensued, in which the officers fired several shots among the mutineers, the dispatch states. The latter made missiles out of everything they could lay their hands on.

Strong forces of carbineers were sent for and, after firing among the disturbers quelled the mutiny. One hundred and fifty sailors were arrested and put in chains. The casualties are unknown. The fire on the steamer was only extinguished after hundreds of firemen were engaged in pouring water on the vessel.

ROME, Aug. 23.—The Italian Bureau of Emigration made public a statement today following charges that it had not sufficiently protected the Italian emigrants aboard the American steamer Philadelphia, held up in Naples. The statement declared that the Emigration Bureau never authorized the steamers New York and Philadelphia to carry emigrants, but that it contends that the bureau is wholly free from responsibility for the events which happened at Naples.

The statement further says that it called the attention of the courts to the status of the agents and owners of the ships.

The destitute emigrants will now be sent home. The Emigration Bureau urges them in the future to give preference to Italian ships, because, the bureau says, it is easier to protect them when aboard their own national steamers.

Officials of the New York-Naples Steamship Line, following the action of the Italian police in seizing the former Philadelphia while loaded with about 1,000 passengers awaiting embarkation in Naples, announced here yesterday that J. J. Dwyer, General Manager of the line, was on his way to Naples to take hold of the affairs of the company at that point.

The seizure of the ship for alleged nonpayment of bills is not the result of action begun in this country, officials believe, but a disagreement for repairs made while the Philadelphia was docked at Naples. The company has been in the hands of a receiver since the filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy by a creditor with a claim of $70,000 for goods and supplies.

POLICE DRY ACTIVITY SNUBBED BY COURT

Police emulation of the decision of the Federal Prohibition Department to arrest restaurant managers and patrons when patrons are found with liquor in their possession received a setback in the West Side Court yesterday morning. Roswell K. Colt, the rubber manufacturer, who is staying at the Hotel Plaza, and Henry J. Velloff, manager of the Little Club in West Forty-fourth Street, were the defendants. Magistrate Max S. Levine not only discharged them, but declared their arrest was outrageous.

Since a raid on the club one night last week a policeman has been stationed in the place to watch for violations of the dry law. Colt had gone to the Little Club with three friends. The place was warm and Colt, according to the testimony in court, took off his coat and placed it on a rack on the wall. In the pocket blew back the folds of the coat, and Policeman Charles Johansmeyer got a glimpse of what he declared was a flask of whisky. Colt and Velloff were arrested.

"I can't understand why he arrested the manager in this case," Assistant District Attorney Tobias told Magistrate Levine, when the case came up in court.

"I can't see why he arrested the other man, either; both are discharged," announced the Magistrate.

Federal authorities said that the dismissal of the two police cases in the West Side Court would not have any effect on the campaign they have planned to stop flip-flask drinking in restaurants, cabarets and other public places. Zone Chief John D. Appleby detailed a large number of his men last night to visit restaurants, hotels and cabarets in the city and the road houses in the suburbs to give final warning to the proprietors that liquor drinking in their places must stop. Instructions to the agents are to arrest any patrons found with liquor either on or under the table, or in transit from the hip pocket to a glass; take them to the nearest police station and also arrest the manager and escort him along with the patrons. No arrests had been reported up to midnight. In the theatrical district General Agents John P. O'Neill and Charles Lecaron gave the final warnings.

'WETS' WIN LIQUOR DEBATE.

More than 200 men employed in the financial district attended the joint debate on the success of the Volstead act yesterday at noon at 2 Rector Street, in the branch office of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. A vote at the end of the meeting showed the audience wholly in favor of modifying the prohibition law so as to permit the sale of light wines and beer.

Colonel Charles L. Wiltrow, head of the Speakers' Bureau of the association, was the principal speaker against the prohibition law. The three prohibitionists who on Tuesday accepted the challenge to debate the question of the success of the Volstead act failed to appear. Colonel Wiltrow repeated the challenge to any one in the audience.

Instantly Edward A. Packer, an insurance agent, of 149 Broadway, accepted the challenge and was soon being good-naturedly heckled.

"As to beer——" Mr. Packer was saying.

"I'd rather have whisky if I could get it," yelled a middle-aged man.

Mr. Packer told of the attitude of the railroads on liquor even before prohibition came and inquired: "Do you suppose the railroads will ever abrogate that ruling?"

"No, but the passengers can," replied a young man. "How about the president of the railroads? They drink theirs."

Dr. B. E. Myers of 320 West 124th Street ridiculed the idea that in a few generations the people would lose their taste for liquor. "Look at Maine," he said.

COHALAN ENDORSED AS AN INDEPENDENT

Non-Partisan Lawyers' Committee and Citizens Union Pledge Support.

TAMMANY CHIEFS SOUNDED

They Tell Surrogate's Friends, However, That Murphy Will Not Change His Mind.

Resolutions calling upon Surrogate Cohalan to announce his candidacy on an independent ticket for re-election against Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien, the Tammany candidate, and Frank J. Coleman Jr., the Republican designee, were adopted yesterday by the Executive Committee of the Non-Partisan Lawyers' Committee at a meeting at the New York County Lawyers' Association, 165 Broadway. At the same time the Citizens Union, which has opposed Surrogate Cohalan in the past, decided it would support him in an independent fight and called upon both Coleman and O'Brien to withdraw in Mr. Cohalan's favor.

The failure of Tammany to renominate the Surrogate was denounced by the lawyers as "an affront to the bar and the community."

If the two organization candidates refuse to withdraw, and they have until Friday night to do so, Mr. Cohalan will formally announce his candidacy and the committee will start its campaign to re-elect him. The resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, read as follows:

Among those who could not be present at the meeting, because he sailed yesterday for Europe, was William Nelson Cromwell. He left a letter with George L. Shearer, Chairman of the committee, in which he said he was with Surrogate Cohalan "to the finish," and had left word with his secretary to co-operate with the committee in every way and to subscribe any amount of money that was needed.

All the others of the six members of the committee who were absent also endorsed Cohalan. As soon as Surrogate Cohalan announces his candidacy the committee will meet and form plans for his campaign.

Efforts in behalf of Surrogate Cohalan were made yesterday to have a number of Tammany district leaders call upon Leader Murphy and induce him to change his mind about not renominating Mr. Cohalan and have him restored to the ticket in the same manner in which Judge Alfred J. Talley was given the renomination as Judge of General Sessions after first being turned down by Murphy. Among the district leaders thus approached were Sheriff Percival E. Nagle, Joseph J. McCormick, Samuel Marx, Nathan Burkan, John F. Curry, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, George W. Olvany, Martin G. McCue, who is clerk of the Surrogate's Court; James J. Hagan and Stephen Farley. These leaders all told Mr. Cohalan's friends that they could do nothing to induce Mr. Murphy to change his mind.

Representatives of Irish societies continued yesterday to voice their resentment at Surrogate Cohalan's turn-down and plans were made to co-operate with the Lawyers' Non-Partisan Committee for his election. The Thomas J. Clarke Social and Patriotic Club, at a meeting at Terrace Garden, adopted a resolution condemning the turning down of the Surrogate as being "unworthy of a free America."

CONNERS SAYS HEARST IS STILL A CANDIDATE

William J. Conners of Buffalo, who has charge of the campaign of William R. Hearst for the nomination for Governor, returned to the city yesterday, and after a conference with Mr. Hearst he declared that the latter had not withdrawn from the Gubernatorial race despite the entrance of former Governor Alfred E. Smith. He predicted that Mr. Hearst would obtain a majority of the delegates at the Democratic convention.

"Mr. Hearst is stronger today than he has been at any time," said Mr. Conners. "In the coming State convention former Mayor Fuhrmann of Buffalo will have delegates. Congressman Ten Eyck of Albany, Mayor Lunn of Schenectady, ex-Mayor Burns of Troy and former Mayor Irwin of Kingston will also have delegates from up-State, but Mr. Hearst will have a great many more than anybody else. These delegates will be for Mr. Hearst in the convention."

Mr. Hearst unquestionably will have more up-State delegates in the convention than all the other candidates. The propaganda in the press growing out of the ambition of other candidates which is attempting to minimise the known strength of Mr. Hearst is nothing but propaganda and will have no effect at the convention."

It was reported yesterday that considerable money is being used up-State to boom Mr. Hearst's candidacy. A recent pro-Hearst editorial printed in The Albany Times-Union, owned by Martin C. Ginsberg, has been circulated throughout the State. Already, it was said, 150,000 copies of the editorial have been sent into certain counties.

AMERICANS IN AIR SMASH.

Five Have a Narrow Escape as London-to-Paris Liner Falls.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Five Americans, passengers on a London-to-Paris airplane, narrowly escaped death yesterday when the machine crashed at Beauvais-Plage, about twenty-two miles south of Boulogne. The pilot had landed a passenger at Berck and was resuming the flight when engine trouble forced the airplane down. Although the machine was smashed, the passengers escaped with bruises and torn clothing.

The Americans were J. Edwin Weissenfluth and daughter of Scranton, Pa., Miss E. M. Roch of Philadelphia and Mrs. R. Hine and daughter of New York City.

LINES ALREADY CONGESTED

A suggestion by Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, that service on the lines of the company during non-rush hours be reduced because of scarcity of coal was rejected yesterday by Chairman George McAneny of the Transit Commission. Mr. McAneny, in reply, said that reduction of train and car service "upon lines already congested beyond endurance" should be one of the last measures taken for conservation.

"Mr. Garrison's letter conveying his suggestion for a curtailment of the service was written on Tuesday. It said that he had just had an interview with a representative of a coal company that supplies the B. R. T. with coal, and that the result was an agreement to pay a higher rate per ton to cover an increased wage scale, which he believed would be required.

"It seems clear," the letter continued, "that unless relief is assured we are approaching a very critical situation in respect to coal. Critical not only to us, but to all users of coal, which practically means all industries.

"Of course, it is impossible to expect that we can obtain a normal supply of coal even if the present strike conditions were brought to a finish immediately. We have some coal, as you know, and are assured of some more, but now is the time when any saving proposition would be effective. It would be utterly ineffective at a time when we cannot get the coal and therefore there would be nothing to save."

Mr. McAneny replied that, while the commission appreciated the gravity of the situation, it was keeping in touch with actual conditions from day to day, and was "of the opinion that no reduction in the service given by the B. R. T. lines should be suffered at the present moment.

"The curtailment of schedules allowed the Interborough company during the rush hours was necessitated not by the shortage of coal in itself, but by reason of the failure of coal supplies from England to develop the percentage of efficiency required for the operation of the Interborough power plants, even with every available boiler in use," he added. "The commission is hopeful that this difficulty may soon be overcome. It is of the opinion, however, that in any program of actual coal conservation intended to meet the situation the city is facing the reduction of train and car service upon lines already congested almost beyond endurance should be one of the last of the measures undertaken."

MAN SHOCK-CRAZED BY 500-VOLT RAIL

Crazed with suffering after coming in contact with a channel rail carrying 500 volts while working beneath the street car tracks at Forty-second Street and First Avenue late yesterday afternoon, Michael Traynor, 24, address unknown, fought a priest, a policeman and three fellow-laborers while being taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Traynor was thrown violently against the sides of the pit below the tracks when he or his hammer came in contact with the rail. He received a possible fracture of the skull and severed an artery in his head. Loss of blood and his other injuries are expected to prove fatal.

Traynor was laying new tracks with a gang of laborers under Patrick Dunn of 225 West 124th Street, a foreman, of the Third Avenue Railroad Company. The pit between the eastbound and westbound tracks had been cleared of debris by Thomas Kelly, another laborer. Traynor descended into the pit, equipped with a chisel and a hammer to fasten the rails to their anchors.

Traynor's companions heard a scream. Smoke puffed from the hole. They found Traynor curled up at the bottom of the shaft. Kelly and Joseph Guilfoyle, another laborer, after ten minutes' work got the injured man to the street, bleeding profusely about the head. They had to work slowly because of the highly charged channel rails on each side of them.

Patrolman Peter J. Barmonde of the East Fifty-first Street Station summoned an ambulance. Father L. W. Yarwood of St. Agnes's Roman Catholic Church was administering the last rites when Traynor was revived.

Half crazed with suffering, Traynor exerted superhuman strength and struggled violently with his rescuers. Several men were required to place him in the ambulance, where it was found necessary to place restraining straps about him.

FRANCE MAY FREE GERMAN PROPERTY

Private Debt Issue Near Settlement, but Expulsion From Alsace Will Continue.

MARK AT LOWEST RATE YET

British Reparation Envoy in Berlin Still Hopeful of Finding Solution Acceptable to Poincare.

STRASBOURG, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Announcement was made at the French General Commissioner's Office today that in consequence of a conversation between C. F. Lapatie, the Commissioner, and M. Poincaré, the French Premier, the measures of reprisal against Germans in Alsace, decided upon by France in connection with the failure of Germany to meet the prewar debts of her nationals to French nationals, would be suspended.

It was stated that the questions surrounding these private debts were in a fair way for amicable settlement and that consequently the banks shortly would be relieved of their obligations to hold German property now in their charge.

The announcement asserted, however, that the order for the expulsion of undesirables from Alsace would not be reconsidered.

German Offers Fail to Satisfy.

PARIS, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—There is considerable pessimism in French reparation circles over the results to date of the conversations in Berlin between representatives of the Reparation Commission and German Government officials. While it still is hoped that Germany will offer guarantees acceptable both to France and Great Britain with regard to her financial obligations, it was said in well-informed quarters tonight that the German suggestions for a solution of the situation had been entirely insufficient.

The refusal of the German Chancellor, Dr. Wirth, to consent to the Rühr mines and State forests being placed in the hands of the Allies as a guarantee for a moratorium to Germany, in the opinion of the French, makes the Berlin negotiations more difficult. Dr. Wirth has been informed of the insufficiency of his offers and has promised to confer anew with the members of his Cabinet.

It is said that unless the Berlin meetings produce more results within the next forty-eight hours the representatives of the Reparation Commission probably will terminate their visit to the German capital Friday evening or Saturday.

British reparation circles, however, are much less pessimistic than the French. It is reported that Sir John Bradbury, British representative on the Reparation Commission and who heads the delegation to Berlin, continues sanguine. Premier Poincaré's policy as outlined in his recent speech at Barle-Duc is now given by the Germans as the reason why a friendly agreement between the Reparation Commission and Germany daily is becoming more remote.

Mark Reaches New Low Record.

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Rumors were current this morning of a rupture in the conversations among Sir John Bradbury, M. Maudière and the German Government, which apparently contributed to a further alarming fall in the mark. They were unfounded, inasmuch as both delegates of the Reparation Commission had two hours' conference with Dr. Hermes, the German Finance Minister, today, and this evening were engaged in another conference with Chancellor Wirth.

French insistence that a moratorium can only be extended in return for German guarantees capable of easy liquidation, or which could be designated as "quick assets," is one of the stumbling blocks in the present conversations, being reported that France is demanding prerequisites of a nature which English opinion not only believes unfeasible, but which Germany could not possibly accede to without seriously interrupting her whole process of economic production.

The next is the least enthusiastic of any factors which might allay the public mind, and the dollar rate today hit the new high spot of 1,438 officially, while post-Bourse trading showed 1,470. Twenty-mark pieces, which have usually ranged far behind the official rate for paper, were bought today at a figure ranging between 6,300 and 6,500.

JOHNSTOWN DRY AGENT CALLED TO CONFERENCE

Town Is Wondering Whether He Will Come Back—Something Very Like Beer Still Flows.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 23.—Mayor Joseph Cauffiel and all of Johnstown are awaiting with interest the outcome of a conference in session at Philadelphia of the dry agents of the State, C. T. Sprague, placed in charge of the enforcement office here when the booze bubble burst last Saturday, left for Philadelphia early today to attend the parley. "Will he come back?" is the question that is puzzling Johnstown.

Anti-Saloon leaders here assert that not only in this city, but throughout the entire State, the enforcement officers are lax in upholding the law. Dr. C. C. Hays, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Johnstown and Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in America, upon his return from a moderatorial mission through the Western States and to Alaska, said today concerning the booze situation: "Every place and Germany daily is becoming more remote.

SOVIET SEIZES SCIENTISTS.

Will Exile Them With Many Writers for "Unfriendliness."

REVAL, Esthonia, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—A dispatch received here from Moscow announces the arrest of 200 Russian scientists and writers during the last few days in Moscow and of thirty in Petrograd.

The dispatch says they are accused of being unfriendly to the Soviet Government, and that they will be expelled from Russia for various periods.

Bill for $1,000,000 Reward For Sure Cure of Diseases

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Payment by the Government of $1,000,000 to the person who discovers a permanent cure for any of five diseases was proposed in a bill today by Representative Sproul, Republican, Illinois.

25 YEARS EACH FOR MAIL TRUCK BANDITS

Driver's Identification Questioned—Sentence Stuns Chapman—Two Lawyers Fined $25 Each.

Gerald Chapman and George Anderson, two of the three men charged with holding up and robbing a mail truck of $2,400,000 on the night of Oct. 24 last, were found guilty yesterday by a jury in the Federal Court. Judge Holmes immediately sentenced each of the men to twenty-five years' imprisonment in the Atlanta Penitentiary. Charles Loerber, the third man, who pleaded guilty and testified for the Government, will be sentenced today. Counsel for the defendants announced that an appeal would be taken.

Conviction was deemed certain after Loerber turned against his companions and after the long prison records of each of the trio were laid before the jury. William Baker, counsel for the defendants, in summing up, denounced Loerber as a vacillating, cowardly liar. Mr. Baker declared Loerber's sole idea in testifying against the others was to save himself.

Mr. Baker dwelt upon the fact that Frank Havercik, the driver of the mail truck, had identified an Italian named Calabrice as one of the robbers and another Italian, now in jail, as the one who had pointed a revolver at him. The two Italians bear no resemblance whatever to the defendants. Therefore, Mr. Baker argued, the latter could not have been guilty of the crime charged. He described Chapman and Anderson as educated men of weak disposition. Because they had been in prison, he said, they found it hard to make a living. This difficulty, explained Mr. Baker, made them willing to sell bonds for Loerber.

"You must be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt before you find these men guilty," he said, "a conviction will mean that they will have to pay for it with their lives beyond bars," he concluded.

Frederick J. Groehl, who appeared especially for Chapman, charged the prosecution with failure to call as a witness a man named Miller, who lives in Detroit. Chapman testified that he had turned over to Miller bonds worth from $20,000 to $25,000. Miller was subpoenaed but did not respond.

Havercik's testimony was ridiculed by Groehl, who described Havercik as a "poor boob" whose only thought was to keep his job. Groehl stated that if Havercik could not identify the men who held him up it was because he was too intent on watching the gun the thieves were pointing at him.

"The men who committed the robbery," said Groehl, "are out on the streets today and Loerber knows it. He is shielding somebody."

David W. Cahill, the prosecutor, said Loerber was the inferior of the defendants in point of intellect and that the story he had told on the witness stand was so clear, simple and connected that it could not be controverted.

When Mr. Cahill referred to Loerber as the one of the three who had acted as the chauffeur of the car at the time the mail truck was held up, Chapman shouted, "That's a lie!"

The Court sternly rebuked him and ordered him to withdraw his statement. Chapman complied, explaining that he did not mean that Mr. Cahill had lied but that Loerber had.

Concerning Schmitty" and "Slim," who were referred to in the testimony of the two defendants, Mr. Cahill declared they were fictitious characters and that the identification by Havercik of an Italian in a Hoboken jail was only a particle.

"It is absurd," said Mr. Cahill, "to think that these shrewd men of full experience were being led and deceived by such a dub as Loerber. For Loerber is a dub, a criminal dub."

The jury went out at 1:45 in the afternoon and about three hours later announced that a verdict had been agreed upon. Chapman had retained his composure throughout the trial, but when he heard the heavy sentence he turned pale and in a voice thick with emotion asked the Court to permit him to remain for a day or two in the Tombs.

Mr. Baker, who was fined $25 by the court earlier in the trial for his manner of cross-examining Loerber, was fined $35 again yesterday for being late, as was Mr. Groehl.

WOOD ALCOHOL'S VICTIMS.

Half Year Shows 22 Blinded, 130 Killed.

Figures gathered by the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness in the Russell Sage Foundation Building, 130 East Twenty-second Street, show that during the first half of 1922 wood alcohol caused 130 deaths and 22 cases of blindness.

"These figures do not, however, begin to measure the total loss of life or sight through the drinking of bootleggers' whisky containing wood alcohol," said Mrs. Winifred Hathaway, Secretary of the committee, yesterday. "Many relatives and friends of victims try to conceal the real cause of death, and in some cases succeed. And as the deterioration of sight resulting from wood alcohol poisoning is frequently a gradual process, it is difficult to obtain accurate records of the total number of cases of blindness and partial loss of vision from this cause. Even children have been victims."

It was announced that more than half of the 130 fatal cases brought to the attention of the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness during the first six months of this year were in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Forty-five fatalities were reported in New York, twenty-eight in New Jersey and fifteen in Pennsylvania. Five deaths were reported in Texas, and four each in Connecticut, Massachusetts, Ohio and Missouri. In the first twelve days of this year 108 of the 130 deaths were reported.

"Only three or four deaths per year from wood alcohol poisoning were reported in New York State prior to 1919," said Mrs. Hathaway, "while more than eight? deaths from this cause have been reported in the State within the last three years. In Pennsylvania wood alcohol killed sixty-one persons last year."

Acute alcoholic poisoning caused the death Tuesday night of Edward P. Daugherty, 42, of Bellingham, Wash., whose body was found early yesterday in his room at the Hotel Severn. According to Assistant Medical Examiner T. A. Gonsales, Contents of a nearly empty bottle found near the body indicated that Daugherty may have drunk wood alcohol.

Arthur E. Butler, 41, of 208 First Street, Carlstadt, N. J., a foreman for the Sterling Tire Company, died Tuesday of alcoholic poisoning before he could be removed to the Hackensack Hospital. He drank a quantity of wild sherry wine which he made in his home last night.

HARDING CONCEDES SHIP SUBSIDY DELAY

URGES ITS IMPORTANCE

HINTS PROHIBITION AT SEA

President Asserts That There Must Be Harmony With the Constitutional Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—President Harding today acceded from his insistence that the Administration Ship Subsidy bill must be taken up by Congress at its present session. The President was obliged to take this course on account of conditions in Congress not favorable to action on the subsidy measure at this time.

One of the circumstances unfavorable to the bill is the absence from Washington of a large number of members of the Senate and House, among them in the House membership, a considerable proportion of Eastern Representatives who are favorable to the measure. There is a larger proportionate attendance of Western members, whose declinations are not as favorable to a ship subsidy as are those from the East.

Another unfavorable circumstance is the inability of Congress to undertake the ship subsidy legislation without prolonging the present session until December, when the regular or constitutional session will be begun. In this year of general Congressional elections it is difficult to keep a full attendance of Senators and Representatives, and there is certain to be an exodus from Washington when the present legislative program is completed.

President Harding's acknowledgment of inability to enact the ship subsidy legislation at the current session was made in a letter sent today to Representative Mondell, the Republican floor leader of the House. During a call at the White House recently Mr. Mondell told the President of the impossibility of attempting to pass the subsidy now, and at the President's suggestion made a brief penciled memorandum to that effect. It was in response to this memorandum that the President wrote today to the House leader. The President acknowledged his disappointment over the situation which has delayed consideration of the subsidy bill, which is perhaps his favorite legislative measure.

In his letter the President refers to the danger confronting the bill on account of a pending amendment providing that intoxicating beverages prohibited by the constitutional amendment and the Volstead act, shall not be sold on any vessel entitled to the subsidies authorized by the bill. On this phase the President says it would be folly to ignore the development of the prohibition issue in connection with the bill, and he adds that "we must face the fact that the friends of the bill must harmonize their views to accord with both the constitutional amendment and public opinion on this subject. Moreover, the same friends of the measure must reach a concord in the matter of the covering provision carried in the tax-exemption section which was designed to provide an indirect aid to American shipping enterprise.

I need not tell you that but for the embarrassment in the industrial situation I should have long since invited conferences looking to an agreement on these problems. I am so earnest about the passage of this measure, I think it so important in furthering our commercial good fortunes and an essential to our self-independence and our national defense, that I had much rather the bill should await consideration until we can rivet the attention of Congress with a full attendance than to precipitate success by pressing for an immediate decision.

I venture to express to you in this way the hope which I have previously uttered that the Administration may find a way to deal with these new difficulties with the revival of an

BUYERS MORE ACTIVE AS FAIR NEARS CLOSE

With the ending of the first National Merchandise Fair set for tomorrow evening, buyers and exhibitors, and the dry goods division in the Grand Central Palace, had a particularly busy day yesterday, according to an announcement from headquarters. More than 1,200 buyers had registered before noon, and many more attended in the afternoon.

At the Seventy-first Regiment Armory the ready-to-wear division of the fair closed last night, after the final promenade of the fashion show. The men who have been working on that particular part of the exhibition, including Franklin Simon, Chairman, and John W. Hahn, Executive Secretary, now have the task before them of checking up criticisms and suggestions with a view to extending the scope of the next fair.

The day at the armory was not quite so busy as the one at the Grand Central Palace, and a number of exhibitors improved the occasion by beginning to pack up. The National Garment Retailers Association, under whose auspices this section of the fair was held, sent a notice to exhibitors early in the afternoon, requesting that they pack up before the fashion show ended, so that their booths could be dismantled and their goods taken away by Thursday noon at the latest.

There is no doubt in the minds of any of those connected with the organization of the ready-to-wear division that more than 90 per cent. of the exhibitors are ready to take space in another show. Exact data on this point will not be available, however, until all the answers are received to a questionnaire sent out a few days ago.

"The committee feels very elated over the success of the fair," said Mr. Hahn.

"In the last two or three days we did not have the big crowds, but I was astounded to learn of the amount of business done yesterday.

"I am confident that it will be a very easy matter when we lay our plans for the next fair to get reservations from practically every exhibitor at this one. I qualify that statement because it is impossible to talk with every exhibitor, but those to whom I have spoken have enthusiastically endorsed the movement."

A delegation from the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce visited the dry goods division at the Palace yesterday, and went through every aisle inspecting the exhibitions almost as minutely as the most interested buyers. The visitors it was announced were going to report back on the problems and benefits of such show.

A statement given out from the headquarters states that while a great many out-of-town buyers appeared at the Fair yesterday, the New York stores were better represented than on any previous day of the exposition. The statement reads:

"The expected increase in buyers and business hit the Merchandise Fair yesterday, and it is evident that the trade is realizing that the Fair will close on Friday and that the time is short for getting its benefits. While there were many out-of-town buyers in the early list of new arrivals, local firms appeared to be better represented than on any day of the event.

"Early in the day a delegation of fifty persons from Bloomingdale Brothers inspected the fair. Their object was to get talking points on goods direct from manufacturers in order to give better service to customers. There were several department buyers in the delegation. Other New York department stores sending buyers to take advantage of the closing days of the fair were Gimbel Brothers, Macy's, Lord & Taylor, Saks & Co., James A. Hearn & Son, John Wanamaker and Bonwit, Teller & Co.

The management has issued a notice to exhibitors that booths can be dismantled beginning at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. It is pointed out that many of the exhibitors have small articles of value that may be lost unless special care is taken of them. It is no easy task to get the thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise now in the Palace moved, and, as exhibitors have only until noon Monday to move, the management in its circular offers several suggestions to exhibitors on the moving of their displays.

Orders for Vellings.

Orders for vellings for the coming season are considerably better than was the case at this time last year, according to prominent manufacturers. The outstanding feature of the situation is said to be the variety which is being offered, whereas last Fall the trade concentrated its efforts on colored dots. Yard vellings are said to be selling freely, these being used on small hats, which are expected to have the bulk of the millinery demand during the coming period. In these the small design, fancy weave effects in black, brown, taupe, navy, purple and light gray are described as the leaders. In the made veils, used on large hats, the demand is fair, being confined mainly to combination dots in black and flesh and brown and tan.

Buying of Woolens.

Woolen factors seem to agree that the number of buyers who have been in the market this week is substantially less than was the case last week. The belief is expressed that the bulk of the buying that ordinarily accompanies the showing of the lines has been done. It appears that the cheaper wool goods were in most demand. Cassimeres, in particular up to $1.75 per yard, were well bought. This is true also of tweeds, trade in which was well distributed, owing to the larger number of houses that showed lines of these fabrics. Some of the cheaper lines of worsteds came in for considerable attention because of the selling drive which was made on them.

Gray Goods Were Quieter.

Trading in the local gray goods market quieted down somewhat yesterday, although a fair amount of business was put through in limited lots. In the printcloths there was further trading in 38½-inch 64-60s and 39-inch 68-72s at 8½ cents and 9¼ cents, respectively, and in Eastern 38½-inch 44-40s at 5½ cents. Southern 38½-inch 60-48s sold brought 7⅝ cents, with Eastern makes of the same construction sold at an eighth higher. In the sheeting end of the market quite a good movement was reported in four-yard, 56-60s at 10¼ cents for delivery through the rest of this month and through next. For 5.50-yard sheetings 10½ cents was paid. Specialties and fine-yarn cloths were not very active.

Fall Underwear Selling Better.

Better business in heavyweight underwear has been seen in the local trade this week, shortage of the average wholesaler's stocks of this merchandise and the approach of Autumn on the calendar being held responsible for it. The indications are that buying of the goods in question will continue more or less active until about Oct. 1, with prices unchanged for the most part. Buyers are marking time on Spring lines at the moment, and nothing much is expected of them now until after the Fall business is pretty well cleaned up. Some of the low-end balbriggans have been sold up and withdrawn, but there are still plenty of "bals." to be had at prices not much different from those named at the opening of the season.

Favored Now in Millinery.

Observation by authorities in the local millinery trade brings to light that, for use in shapes, nacre and chiffon velvets are the "last word," with matelasse and shirring effects, outgrowths of the gaufre vogue, gaining ground daily. The popularity of sectional crowns is another feature, the sections in a single crown running from four to ten. Double side bows and "ear" toques are in favor. Scratch felt hats for children, and, in the sports end, velour ones for grown-ups, are the thing. In colors the cashmere shades are favored. For trimmings, burnt peacock feathers are popular in all colors, with choux also still in favor. Ermine fur is appearing on black shapes, and in the lace trimmings there is a steadily growing vogue for narrow black "vals."

Heavy Colored Cottons.

While there is no great snap to the demand for heavy colored cottons here at the moment, enough business is coming forward in them to keep stocks down and to take care of a moderate production. The strongest items in the lot at present are plaids and cheviots, which have been in good call for some time, especially from the South, and which are not easy to get now for nearby delivery in any quantity. Hickories and tickings are meeting the average demand, and the same is true of denims. There is some variance in the reports concerning the amount of the last-named goods available just now at 15½ cents, but the indications are that buyers are not having any great amount of trouble in finding what they want at that figure.

Demand for Linings.

Makers of clothiers' linings say the largest demand at present is from the jobbers who supply the merchant tailor trade. The call from manufacturers is quiet, owing to the fact that the present is the "in-between" season. Some buying from this source is taking place for Fall, but the larger part has already been bought and the remainder will be secured as re-orders develop from the retailers. There is a marked tendency, say lining makers, to use the cheaper fabrics, owing to the emphasis which is being placed on suits to sell at a price. The demand from manufacturers of the higher grade clothing has not shown this trend, however. Buying for this Fall season has been about equally divided between satin, serge and Mervellieux linings, with slate and brown colors predominating.

The Raw Silk Situation.

A slightly better tone is evident in the local raw silk market and prices are firmer, though still somewhat below quotations in the primary markets. Inquiries from the mills are getting more numerous, according to H. L. Gwaiter & Co., Inc., and while buyers generally continue to operate in a hand-to-mouth fashion, they are showing decidedly more interest, and daily transactions aggregate a respectable total. Cheap offerings below market prices are disappearing, particularly in coarse sizes, which are eagerly sought after. The Yokohama market is decidedly stronger, and, under active buying for American account, prices have advanced 30 to 40 yen, raising Double Extra A to 2,015 yen, Extra to 1,900 yen and Kansai No. 1 to 1,870 yen. Stocks are reduced to 24,000 bales. Canton remains firm, while the Shanghai market is lifeless. The Milan market is quiet.

To Purchase Co-Operatively.

Because of its success in several large co-operative transactions recently, the management of the Garment Centre Capitol has appointed a permanent Purchasing Committee. This is composed of J. S. Becker & Co., Chairman; Jacob Rapoport, Jacob Rapoport & Co., and Joseph Rubin, Rubin Brothers, and Morris Rentner, M. & H. Rentner. The committee is empowered to consider the co-operative purchasing of large quantities of silk and woolen fabrics, furs and miscellaneous items. At a recent meeting of the committee plans were approved for engaging special merchandisers in the fields in which the purchasing will be done in order to assist the committee. According to Jacob Rapoport, the total output of the firms in the Garment Centre Capitol is valued at close to $100,000,000 annually, and this production entails the purchasing of between $65,000,000 and $70,000,000 worth of supplies every year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Announcement was made yesterday that Smith & Kaufman, Inc., of this city, manufacturers of silks and ribbons, have taken the selling agency to the retail trade of the products of Kaltenbach & Stephens, Inc., also makers of ribbons.

The corporate name of Stern, Well & Mensa, Inc., silk manufacturers, has been changed to D. L. & C. St. Stern, Inc. The business will be continued at 461 Fourth Avenue.

Henry Syerl, who is well known to the textile commission trade as credit manager for C. A. Auffmordt & Co. of this city, is to leave that position to become credit manager and cost in an advisory capacity for the Pelz-Greenstein Company, new commission house that is locating at 288 Fourth Avenue.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Awaiting decision by the railway Presidents' conference on the terms of settling the shopmen's strike, with the subsequent conference between the managers' committee and the mediating brotherhood leaders, yesterday's stock market moved uncertainly. There were advances of a point or more in numerous industrials, but railway shares mostly went lower; evidently on the market's lack of information as to precisely how the managers' reiterated refusal to restore seniority rights to returning strikers would affect the attitude of the brotherhoods. On this point the markets had no other information than the joint statement of the brotherhood leaders that the shopmen's strike "can be settled because it must be settled," and because "the public demands a settlement"—an attitude, which, if non-committal regarding details, could at least be taken as in accord with the general public's position.

In the absence of other news, a fresh decline in the German mark attracted passing notice. Measured in hundredths of a cent, the rate touched 6%, at which it closed; the previous low level was last Friday's 7%. Since the price less than a month ago was 20½, the foreign valuation of the German currency may be said to have fallen two-thirds within that space of time. At its present price, the mark stands exactly at the Austrian crown's exchange valuation during the final days of last September and only a little more than half as high as the crown's valuation a year ago this week. The Austrian rate is now below 1½ one-thousandths of a cent. It does not follow that the mark will depreciate hereafter to the same extent; for Austrian exchange just now measures not merely the country's paper inflation but the virtual collapse of its machinery of government. But the present status of the mark, with its natural effect on prices, creates a condition in Germany which is in some ways more bewildering than that of Austria, because of the far more complex mechanism of German finance and trade.

It was generally conceded in the steel trade yesterday that the 20 per cent. advance in wages will itself result in higher prices for the product. Interest in the Steel Corporation's action will therefore attach especially to the questions whether the increase of wages will be followed in other industries; if so, how far it will be reflected in prices, and what attitude the consuming public would take. In former periods of the preliminary financial and industrial recovery after prolonged depression, prices advanced rapidly and the general movement of wages was also upward. During at least a series of months the wholesale and retail buyer, whose supplies of goods had been greatly depleted, followed the market. He bought at ruling prices until his stock in hand was again of normal dimensions; after which his purchases decreased abruptly and prices declined again.

In the present case there are industries, such as the building and general construction trade, where shortage of facilities has become so great that further postponement of orders for material is not likely. On the whole, the buyer is more likely under such circumstances to hurry his orders forward on a rising market, and that is one reason why the steel trade has acted with so little hesitancy. To what extent an advance of prices or an advance in wages can be maintained by industries which depend largely on the export trade, or by those in which (as in textiles) the consumer has lately tried and proved his own power to cease buying on a rise in prices, is a much more perplexing question.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 23, 1922.

Call loans on Stock Exchange got up to 4½ per cent. just before the session closed, continued heavy demand for funds causing hardening in rate, which started and renewed at 3½. Time money was quiet and without change, chief interest in market at present being confined to renewals. Call loans against acceptances advanced to 3¼ from 3, but discount on bills remained firm; merchants' paper market dull.

CUT IN MEXICAN OIL TAXES IS CONFIRMED

Reduction of Levy on Exports to 40 Per Cent. of Former Rate to Be Retroactive.

REVENUE TO PAY OFF DEBT

News Sands Mex. Pete Up 9 Points and Other Petroleum Stocks Make Gains.

The Mexican Financial Agency in this city yesterday confirmed the advices received from Mexico that the Government had officially decreed that the export taxes on oil be reduced to 40 per cent. of the former rate established in June of last year. The news, which reached Wall Street shortly after the opening of business, resulted in a 9-point advance in the stock of the Mexican Petroleum Company from 175 to 184, and a gain of 3 points in Pan-American Petroleum from 76½ to 79½. Other Mexican oil stocks also were strong.

The reduction in taxes is understood to be retroactive to Feb. 1, and was put into effect under a presidential decree signed Aug. 17, and published in Mexico City on Aug. 18. This decree is said to be part of the agreement reached in this city in June, between Adolpho de la Huerta as representative of the Mexican Government, and bankers and officials representing the American oil companies in Mexico. A total of approximately $2,000,000 monthly is expected to be raised by the Mexican Government as a result of the new rate of taxes, which it is understood will be used in paying off the external debt of the Mexican Government.

The full text of this plan to liquidate the external debt will be made public on Sept. 1, with the opening of the Mexican Congress.

The following table shows the old and new rates of taxes on various grades of crude and refined oil, the old rates being those put into effect under the decree of June 7, 1921, the rates being based upon a cubic meter, equal to 6.9 barrels of oil:

	Old Rate	New Rate
Crude oil, specific gravity 0.96 plus	.72	.31
Fuel oil	1.00	.40
Gas oil	2.32	.92
Crude gasoline	4.70	1.88
Refined gasoline	2.35	.94
Crude kerosene	1.50	.60
Lubricants	1.40	.56

On the basis of a single barrel the tax on heavy crude oil amounts to 8 cents; on crude 0.96 plus, 5 cents; fuel oil, 6 cents; gas oil, 14.6 cents; crude gasoline, 29.8; refined gasoline, 14.9 cents; crude kerosene, 9.5 cents; refined kerosene, 4.7 cents, and lubricants, 8.9 cents. The production tax on crude remains unchanged at 14 cents a barrel so that the total export and production tax on a barrel of crude is 22 cents, compared with a former rate of 34 cents.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES

European exchanges continued easier again yesterday, conspicuous weakness being registered in the German, French and Belgian rates, the former establishing a new low for all time at 6¾ one-hundredthes of a cent, with Paris and Brussels checks approximating previous lows made early in July.

Sterling moved within narrow range, but closed fractionally under Tuesday's final. Italian, Holland and other Continentals sagging slightly. Chinese rates recovered, with Uruguay and Chile higher in South Americans.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

REFINERY AT SPARKILL.

The Standard Oil Company of New York is understood to have completed arrangements for erecting a large refinery at Sparkill, near Piermont, Rockland County, in connection with its expansion program, which also is understood to call for the construction of filling stations throughout the State.

The refinery, it is said, will be erected upon the 1,500-acre tract of land purchased by the New York company for $3,000,000 over a period of approximately seven years because of the numerous parcels involved in the transactions. The title to the property was filed in the name of the company only last October, when the purchaser became known.

The property, which consists of swamp and woodland, lies near what is virtually the most northerly point of deep water navigation on the Hudson River, and runs a mile and three-quarters inland to the West Shore Railroad. The New York Transit Company some time ago received the right to build a pipe line connecting the property with Western oil fields. In addition, oil can be taken up the river in barges from Mexican, South American, Gulf Coast and Atlantic ports.

NATIONAL TRANSIT DIVIDEND

Extra Payment Brings Total This Year to 10 Per Cent.

Directors of the National Transit Company, at their meeting yesterday, declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock, payable Sept. 15 to stockholders of record Aug. 31. In February this year and in November last year extra dividends of 50 cents a share were declared, while in August last year an extra dividend of $1 a share was paid.

The par value of the company's stock is $12.50 a share, so that the extra dividend declared yesterday is equal to 2 per cent. on each share, making a total of 10 per cent. paid thus far this year. It is the policy of the company to declare dividend payments semiannually in June and December. If a regular dividend of 4 per cent. is paid in December the payments this year will total 14 per cent. on the capital stock.

Last year dividends totaled 28 per cent. on the stock, 20 per cent. in 1920 and 40 per cent. in 1919. In addition to operating oil pipe lines the company manufactures pumping and other machinery.

Detroit Edison Co. Shows a Gain.

The Detroit Edison Company, in its report for July, 1922, showed gross earnings amounting to $1,872,542, an increase of $201,381 as compared with July, 1921. Balance after charges was $111,429, an increase of $54,818 over a year ago. For the first seven months of the year the balance after charges stood at $2,041,171, an increase of $353,540 as compared with the corresponding period of 1921.

NEW YORK AIR BRAKE SALES.

June a Record Since 1920 and Future Bright, Says Starbuck.

C. A. Starbuck, President of the New York Air Brake Company, in connection with the issue of 100,000 shares of Class A preference stock being offered to stockholders and underwritten by Edward B. Smith & Co. and Dominick & Dominick, has sent a letter to the underwriters outlining the history of the company and its prospective financial status after the new stock has been sold and summarizing the current business. In regard to the future Mr. Starbuck says:

"During the first six months of the present year our business has shown a gradual increase. Sales for June reached the largest volume shipped since March, 1920. Our sales for the first six months of this year were $2,635,734.80, compared with $2,436,743 for the entire twelve months of 1921. We now have on hand the largest volume of unfilled air brake orders in the history of the company.

"The present transportation situation demands generous additions to rolling stock, motive power and all appliances essential to efficient service. Indications are that for the next few years the railroads will be in much better condition to make outlays for new equipment.

"From 1913 to 1917 the average purchase of freight cars was approximately 117,144 per year; from 1918 to 1920 purchases averaged 59,810 per year; retired or scrapped cars for the last three years averaged 56,382. Practically all of the railroads are now purchasing equipment on an extensive scale, such purchases amounting to 80,000 cars from Jan. 1 to June 1 of this year, as against 25,000 cars for the same period in 1921."

TOBACCO PRODUCTS PLANS.

New Class A Stock May Draw 7 Per Cent. Annual Dividend.

Directors of Tobacco Products Corporation will meet today for the purpose of dividend action, and it is reported that the new Class A stock will be placed on a 7 per cent. annual basis. The declaration of this dividend is another step in the final consummation of the merger of this corporation and United Retail Stores, in which the former took over the latter company.

According to reports in banking circles associated with the Tobacco Products Corporation, earnings have been at a sufficient rate to more than pay a 7 per cent dividend on the new A stock, without drawing on the earnings of United Retail Stores, the corporation holding control of United Cigar Stores. This last named stock, on a 4 per cent. basis, will pay in to the Tobacco Products treasury $2,680,000 annually on the shares of Retail Stores, which Tobacco Products has acquired in the recent merger.

Car loadings reported for the week ended Aug. 12 totaled 852,580 cars, an increase of 1,229 cars as compared with the preceding week, and an increase of 44,311 cars over the corresponding week in 1921, but a decrease of 118,689 cars compared with 1920 figures.

Coal loadings amounted to 84,559 cars during the week, an increase of 5,318 cars over the previous week, but a decrease of 72,332 cars as contrasted with the same week last year.

Loadings of merchandise and miscellaneous freight, which includes manufactured products, stood at 548,304 cars, 8,224 under the week before. Grain and grain products totaled 57,567 cars, or 945 less than the week before.

The report showed ore loadings amounting to 69,197 cars, an increase of 2,979 over the preceding week and an increase of 36,248 over the corresponding week last year. Coke loadings amounted to 8,420 cars, 22 less than the week before, but 4,065 cars more than were loaded during the same week in 1921, while livestock loadings amounted to 28,370 cars, an increase of 1,863 over the previous week and 2,063 over the same week last year.

Loadings since the first of the year are compared with the three previous years in the following table:

EUROPE'S WHEAT CROPS SHOW FALLING TOTALS

Must Import 27,000,000 Bushels More Than the 55,000,000 She Was Short Last Year.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Europe will have to import 582,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, or 27,000,000 bushels more than last year, because of the decline in this year's production, the Commerce Department was advised today by Alfred P. Dennis, its special representative in Berlin.

Exclusive of Russia this year's European wheat crop is estimated, Mr. Dennis said, at 1,057,000,000 bushels—a decline of 156,800,000 bushels, as compared with last year's phenomenal yield.

This falling off was accounted for by Mr. Dennis by a reduction of 1,500,000 acres in the area sown, by unfavorable growing conditions in the Winter and early Spring, and, in the case of Germany and Austria, by the lack of fertilizers. There was a loss in France of 48,000,000 bushels, Italy of 33,500,000 and Germany 22,500,000, while the percentage of loss in Sweden was 40 per cent; Switzerland, 35; Holland, 25; Austria, 20; Hungary, 20; Spain, 16, and Great Britain, 19.

"The only important gains in production, he declared, are in Rumania and Poland, where the yields are estimated at 12,750,000 bushels and 9,000,000, respectively.

"Continental traders are holding off," Mr. Dennis said, "or buying from hand to mouth, in view of unsettled political conditions and difficulties of finance. Due to reports of heavy North American crops, wheat is expected to go lower in the face of slack buying, and the probability of heavy pressure in the selling of the new American crop.

"American producers should be advised that, if Europeans prefer to postpone buying until their own harvests have been eaten, strong imperative buying may be anticipated later in the year. Wheat bread is the one thing that the dense population of Western Europe will not go without."

NOT GOOD COTTON WEATHER

The Government's weekly report on conditions in the crop districts was as follows:

Cool, cloudy and showery weather prevailed in the more eastern sections of the cotton belt, while it was unusually warm and continued dry in most Western cotton growing States. These conditions were on the whole unfavorable for the cotton crop. A few light scattered showers occurred in Oklahoma and cotton showed deterioration generally in that State. It opened prematurely, and there was much shedding.

Scattered showers occurred in Texas also, but they were mostly light and were received at only about one-half of the reporting stations. Early cotton made generally poor progress there, although it was very good in a few localities where rain fell while the late crop deteriorated. The warm, dry weather held insects in check, but caused shedding and premature opening. The condition of the crop in Texas was mostly poor in the southern portion, very good in the east and fair elsewhere.

Light leaf showers gave some relief in Arkansas, principally in the southern portion. Progress was poor in Tennessee, where the plants were not fruiting well, although the general condition is fairly good. Bolls were opening more rapidly in Louisiana, but there were further reports of shedding and weevil damage, while conditions during the week were mostly unsatisfactory in Mississippi and Alabama.

The weather continued cool, cloudy, damp and unfavorable for cotton in Georgia, and general deterioration continued with bolls shedding or rotting and serious weevil damage reported. The plants have nearly ceased blooming in that State. Plant growth and condition continued very good in South Carolina. The plants were blooming and fruiting fairly well, but there was some shedding and boll rotting, while weevils were doing great damage and taking the top crop except in the Piedmont.

Heavy rains did some damage in Central and Eastern North Carolina, and it was somewhat too cool for best results the latter part of the week. The progress of cotton in that State varied from poor to very good.

Better weather than had previously prevailed was experienced during the week throughout the principal corn growing States and rainfall was very unevenly distributed. Good showers occurred in parts of the upper Mississippi Valley and in the lower Missouri Valley, but it continued dry in most of the Ohio Valley States and generally in the Southwest.

Corn made very good to excellent progress in Iowa, where the soil moisture was generally ample, but the crop needs at least two weeks more warm weather. Most of the corn crop had practically matured in this condition in Missouri, but the late planted needed rain badly in the eastern portion of the State. Corn, especially the late crop, was badly damaged by drought in all sections of Kansas, except in the southeast, while deterioration was reported from nearly all parts of Nebraska, although the rainfall the latter part of the week was helpful in that State.

Delay Detroit United Dividend.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Directors of the Detroit United Railway had deferred action on the company's dividend. According to a report in Wall Street, the Directors desired to await the report of the Michigan Public Service Commission on the valuation of the company's properties before acting.

OHIO PHONE STOCK ISSUE.

A block of The Ohio Bell Telephone Company 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock is being offered today at 102½, to yield more than 6.75 per cent., by Otis & Co. and Tucker, Anthony & Co.

The company is a subsidiary of the Ohio Bell American Telephone & Telegraph Company. It does the entire business of that company in the State of Ohio, except in the City of Cincinnati and suburbs, which are served by an associated company.

The entire issue of the common stock of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company is owned by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. The latter corporation also owns $18,000,000 of the $28,165,900 preferred stock outstanding of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company. The stock is part of an issue listed on the Cleveland and Cincinnati Stock Exchanges, and is exempt from State and local personal property taxes in Ohio and also, according to the bankers, from the Federal normal income tax.

Montana Power Dividend Unchanged

Announcement was made yesterday that the Directors of the Montana Power Company had declared the regular quarterly dividends of 75 cents a share on the common stock and $1.75 on the preferred stock, both payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 14. The action had been watched with keen interest in Wall Street because of the persistent rumors that the company would increase the rate on the common from 3 per cent. to 5 per cent. or 6 per cent.

IRREGULAR PRICES IN COTTON MARKET

Less Hopeful Labor News Is Offset by Unfavorable Crop Developments.

Seldom has cotton fluctuated as nervously as yesterday. Less hopeful labor news tended to offset unfavorable crop developments, leaving price changes abnormally erratic. Though views as to actual yield are shifting to smaller figures, the cotton trade has not entered the market on a scale to furnish speculative confidence. Action the past two days caused liquidation of many speculative lines. Every reporting station in Oklahoma had temperatures from 100 to 109, with 23 points in Texas over 100. Drought now prevails over several States with no relief in sight. Prices gained 7 to 13 points.

The irregularity that characterized Tuesday's session was resumed at the opening. Instead of showing a decline, Liverpool advanced after a lower opening and closed at high point of the week. This brought an opening gain of over 30 points, with commission house buying and covering during the call. But the upturn attracted heavy selling, mainly from speculative quarters, causing a 20-point decline in a few minutes. Strength abroad and fears of a poor weekly showing ran both October and December to 22.90 before the summary appeared. Operations revealed many cross-currents, contracts being for sale on an extensive scale both by local and commission house holders. It was possible to buy or sell a large amount of cotton within limits of 10 points, but an unusual degree of feverishness prevailed throughout the morning. Diminished prospects for an early termination of labor difficulties played an important part in sentiment, but at the same time character of crop advices discouraged operations for a decline. As a result of these conflicting factors, the market churned around, running up 20 points on a bulge back and equal amount as weight of contracts increased.

The main cause of speculative liquidation was attributed to failure of trade interests to take either contracts or actual cotton along liberal lines. Spot dealers, most disappointing volume of buying at Southern points. Sales of actual cotton in the South have reached lowest figures of the season while demand for contracts is not on a scale to absorb sales speculative cotton bought at lower figures. Similar conditions are to spot transactions prevail in Liverpool. A year ago at this time sales ran 15,000 to 20,000 bales a day and are now 5,000 to 7,000. For a week speculators have been buying contracts in anticipation of low condition figures and expecting a large volume of trade buying. Disappointment over the attitude of mills has resulted in extensive liquidation. At one time during the afternoon December sold at 22.40, but a closing rally left a slight advance on the day.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.

SEE PRICE ADVANCE IN FINISHED STEEL

PIG IRON COST ADVANCES

Advances in the prices of finished steel products are expected to be made shortly by the United States Steel Corporation and leading independent producers in all sections of the country, as a result of the increase in wages amounting to 20 per cent. of the former scale to be put into effect on Sept. 1 by the companies in question. That some such announcement on the part of the Steel Corporation was expected yesterday, was based upon the fact that the sales managers of all Steel Corporation subsidiaries held a meeting at the main office in this city, presumably to adjust prices to the new wage scale. Numerous advances in prices have been put into effect during recent months, but these mainly followed the advance in fuel prices and did not take into account the higher wage scale.

At the offices of the Steel Corporation it was stated that the meeting of subsidiary company sales managers was "the regular monthly meeting," and had nothing to do with the increased wages announced on Tuesday. It also was said that no announcement regarding price changes would be made after the meeting. Officials were hesitant to predict as to what developments may arise within the next few weeks in connection with prices for finished products, but it was stated that if a change in the present schedule will be put int effect, the announcement will be made by the various subsidiary companies.

Pig iron prices continued to move upward yesterday, following the wage advances and higher prices for fuel. One leading producer pointed out that the price for bituminous coal in some sections is now far above the peak price of war time, being $4.50 a ton compared with a war-time price of $3.50. This, he intimated, will mean higher prices for steel and pig iron. There is very little pig iron available in the market at the present time, according to officials of companies which are forced to go into the open market to take care of their requirements.

Some Advances Reported.

Eastern Pennsylvania pig iron is understood to have been advanced another dollar a ton to $32 on foundry grades, with prospects of further advances in the immediate future. Pig iron in Buffalo is quoted at $33 a ton, and in Chicago it was quoted at $30 a ton. Previous to the outbreak of the coal strike in April, pig iron could be bought in various sections of the East for from $18 to $20 a ton. In some quarters the prediction is made that a price of $35 a ton for foundry iron will be witnessed before the Winter sets in.

Commenting upon the increases in wages and higher costs of fuel and their effect upon the iron and steel industry, The Iron Age says:

"The Steel Corporation's 20 per cent. wage advance and the establishment of the $7.50 basis for coal miners make the pivotal week of the year in iron and steel. It is well realized in the industry that in a scarcity market these advances in cost mean higher prices for steel, and the uppermost question is how far this further rise will act to check business.

"Independent producers had been looking week by week for this action by the Steel Corporation, and on Sept. 1 they also will increase wages 20 per cent. In the Central West this will put common labor up to 36 cents per hour. At Eastern mills, which have had a 25-cent basis for more than a year, the new rate will be 30 cents.

"The winning of the 1920 rate by union coal miners means a like rate at non-union mines, representing $1.50 to $2 increase in the cost of a ton of steel. But market prices of coal and coke add several times more than $2 to the costs of such steel works as must buy coal and coke in the market.

Independents Increase Wages.

"What change the week's advances in fuel and labor will make in the Steel Corporation's price policy is of first consequence to other makers and to all buyers of steel. Advances are expected, but to what extent will develop after the meeting of the corporation's sales managers now being held in New York."

Other large independent companies have followed the lead of the United States Steel Corporation in raising the wages of steel mill workers. Eugene G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, yesterday confirmed "that an increase of 20 per cent. in common labor rates, together with equitable adjustments in rates of other classes of employes, effective Sept. 1, was announced to employes on Aug. 22 through their representatives under the employes' representation plan."

The Lackawanna Steel Company, which has been merged with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, also will increase wages in proportion to other leading producers, effective Sept. 1. The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, according to dispatches received from Denver, also will follow the lead of the Steel Corporation.

James A. Campbell, President of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, in advices received in Wall Street from Youngstown, is credited with saying that "we expected the corporation announcement. The wage increase will place the steel mill common laborer slightly above the railroad common labor rate, where it should be. Miners receive wartime wages for another year, and it is only fair that steel workers should get an increase." Mr. Campbell predicted that steel price advances will follow the wage advances, but fears that the return of high prices in the industry may result in a check to new buying.

Advances of 20 per cent. in the wage scale also was announced by the following concerns: Wheeling Steel Corporation, employing 25,000 men; Brier Hill Steel Company of Youngstown and the Trumbull Steel Company of Warren, together employing 10,000 men, and all independent concerns in the Steubenville district.

TO GET ON WITHOUT COAL.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—Based on the comment of THE TIMES regarding the use of oil instead of coal in the American pulp and paper industry, The Montreal Gazette says that the Canadian companies already have divorced themselves from dependence upon coal through installation of electrode boilers.

The system is finding great favor in the St. Maurice Valley and is being adopted by the Laurentide paper and other companies there and by a number of the Ontario companies.

It is regarded as an emergency measure only which has filled the bill to a nicety for paper and power companies. No Canadian paper companies are threatened with curtailment of operations through shortage of coal up to the present.

Textile Stocks Favored in Canada.

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—Textile and cotton company securities have been the prime favorites on the stock market here during the last few days, in anticipation of largely increased earnings for the group this year and the improving outlook for bonuses and increased dividends. Dominion Textile has risen to 106, Canadian Cottons to 105, Canada Cementers to 83 and Penmans to 115½.

WATSON DEFENDS TARIFF.

Tells Indiana Republicans That Democratic Charges Are False.

ANGOLA, Ind., Aug. 23.—Charges by Democrats that the rates imposed in the Administration tariff bill are "abnormal and excessively high" fall to the ground "in the face of the facts," Senator Watson, a member of the Senate Finance Committee and one of the Republican leaders in the Senate tariff debate, declared in an address at a Republican rally here today in defense of the bill.

Of an estimated total of $3,055,960,805 in imports for twelve months under the bill as originally reported to the Senate, with "its alleged high rates," Senator Watson said, it was figured that $1,927,406,650 of this amount, or 63 per cent., would be on the free list. This percentage, the Senator said, would be "much the highest under any tariff bill ever proposed by the Republican Party and but slightly less than for the last five years under the Underwood tariff law."

Comparing the estimate of 36.17 per cent. for the average ad valorem duty, figured on the dutiable list alone on imports under the Senate bill with the average paid under previous tariff bills, Senator Watson declared this was "much lower than under any previous Republican law." The estimated average, according to the figures cited, compares with 46.26 per cent. for the fiscal year 1891, 52.07 per cent. for 1907, 16.40 per cent. for 1920 and 29.45 per cent. for 1921.

Figured on the combined dutiable and free list basis, the estimate of 13.36 per cent. for an average ad valorem duty under the Senate bill, the Senator said, compares with an average of 11.44 per cent. paid in the calendar year 1921 under the joint operation of the Underwood and emergency tariff acts. The estimated average on this basis also was shown to be lower than under any previous Republican tariff.

Turning to the woolen schedule in the bill, Senator Watson replied to statements that the proposed wool rate would materially increase the price on an average suit of clothes and overcoat by citing a report of the Tariff Commission, which demonstrated, he said, that the raw wool duty cost included in the price of the ordinary suit would be about 92 cents, and in an overcoat approximately $1.72. The commission's figures were "conclusive proof," he said, that "talk about advancing prices on account of the wool tariff is done at least very largely for profiteering purposes."

MAY SETTLE WITH ONE MILL.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 23.—Prospects of a settlement of the textile strike here, as it affects the Pacific Mills, appeared brighter today when the Strategy Board of the United Textile Workers of American voted to recommend acceptance of the company's offer to restore the old rate of wages to all employes, effective Oct. 2 and retroactive to Sept. 1.

Delegates of the textile unions which have been directing the strike were asked by the "one big union" to attend another meeting tonight to act on the proposal. The United Textile Workers announced that it would not be represented at this council.

The announcement of the company's wage offer, which was given to the newspapers and to the Rev. Father O'Reilly, Chairman of the Citizens' Strike Committee, said that the company could not guarantee the old scale in the cotton department beyond Dec. 1. All employes under the terms of the offer are to work at the reduction announced on March 27 until Oct. 2.

WIFE BRINGS TWO SUITS.

Wants Separation From Max Fries and $50,000 From Helen Armstrong.

Supreme Court Justice O'Malley yesterday allowed Mrs. Max Paul Fries $350 a month alimony and $400 counsel fees pending the trial of a suit for separation against her husband, a salesman of securities, who, she says, earns $50,000 a year.

Mrs. Fries charges that her husband, whom she married in 1910, abandoned her and a few months ago, in a separation agreement, said he would pay her $350 a month and deposit $5,000 a year for ten years with a trust company for her benefit. He was unable to carry out his promise in July, it is alleged, and asked that fulfillment of the agreement be put off until 1924.

A summons in a suit by Mrs. Fries against Helen Dinwitte Armstrong was filed in the County Clerk's office last Tuesday. It was learned yesterday that the suit was for $50,000 damages, charging alienation of affections.

WOODWARD TO BE EXAMINED

Attorneys for Edith Ransom to Ask About Marriage Conversations.

Notice was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Stapleton & Friedman, lawyers, of 300 Broadway, on behalf of Edith L. Ransom, who is suing John B. Woodward, Eastern advertising representative of The Chicago Daily News, for $100,000 for alleged breach of promise, that Woodward would be examined before trial in the Supreme Court on Aug. 30.

The lawyers gave notice that Woodward would be asked regarding conversations with the plaintiff on June 20 on the subject of marriage, and that he also would be asked about the places to which he took the plaintiff in Chicago and New Jersey.

The contract for the construction of the Julia Richman High School, Second Avenue near Sixty-eighth Street, was awarded yesterday by the Board of Education to the Frymier & Hanna Company for $1,864,000, the lowest bidders. The board also awarded the contract for Public School 65 in 141st Street near Cypress Avenue, the Bronx, to Emil Diebitsch for $609,000. The board approved the plans for Public School 64 at Walton Avenue and 171st Street, the Bronx. The new building will cost $905,000 and will accommodate 1,968 pupils.

To relieve congestion in the section of Brooklyn that centres around Kings Highway and Ocean Avenue, the board advanced from the 1923 to the 1922 building program the construction of a new school at the highway between Twenty-second and Twenty-third Streets.

Commissioner Arthur S. Somers told the board he would move to include in the new budget unpaid claims of approximately $27,000, some of which go back to 1918.

Buying in the Suburbs.

Frank R. Chambers sold a large residential plot on Pondfield Road, Crows Nest Woods, Bronxville, to Carroll L. DeWitt. The property was formerly owned by Mr. DeWitt's family, who sold it to Mr. Chambers about thirty years ago. Hamilton, Iselin & Co. were the brokers.

The Warranty Brokerage Corporation sold for H. Glemby five lots on the south side of Penn Street, 100 feet east of Lincoln Boulevard, Long Beach, L. I., to the Arnold Holding Company, Inc. This property is situated in close proximity to the Hotel Nassau and Castles-by-the-Sea, and negotiations are now pending for the erection of a modern stucco residence.

McMahon and Speizer sold for Muhlebach Realty Company a plot on the corner of President Street to James J. Shawarz of Far Rockaway.

SMITH IS TO HELP MAKE STREETS SAFE

Former Governor Appointed Chairman of Drivers' Committee in Safety Campaign.

COMPLIMENTED BY GARY

An Effort to Pull New York Through a Week Without a Single Motor Fatality.

Alfred E. Smith, President of the United States Trucking Corporation and former Governor of New York, has been appointed Chairman of the Drivers' Committee of the Safety Institute of America, a subcommittee of the Public Safety Committee, headed by Elbert H. Gary, it was announced yesterday. Free schools for motor vehicle drivers in each borough of the city are to be established to teach drivers of trucks, taxicabs, busses and other commercial vehicles the fundamentals of safe driving.

The schools for drivers will be established immediately after a Safety Week in October. In the meantime drivers in individual companies operating large fleets of motor vehicles will be organized and mass meetings of drivers will be held to get their co-operation in an effort to pull New York through a week without a single motor vehicle fatality. At present twenty to twenty-five such fatalities are recorded each week—1,061 last year.

"The driver of the motor vehicle, as you know, is the key man in the traffic accident situation," Mr. Gary wrote to Mr. Smith. "We must not only teach him the essentials of the mechanical safety of his machine and the rules of safe driving, but—and this is more important—we must convince him of his responsibility in helping to make the streets of New York safe. Your long experience in public life and your intimate contact with the traffic problem as President of a trucking corporation qualify you to take the leadership in promoting traffic safety in this campaign."

The Safety Institute's schools for drivers, President Arthur Williams said, would concentrate on the drivers of commercial vehicles because they were on the streets continuously and because many commercial motor vehicles are so heavy they are not easily stopped, and therefore present a more serious hazard than the passenger car.

L. V. Coleman, director of the institute, it was said, had reported that some of the largest commercial interests of the city had already indicated they would not only be glad to have their drivers instructed at the safety schools, but would require attendance at these schools of their men.

"It is expected that in the first year we will reach 10,000 of the 100,000 motor vehicle drivers of New York," Mr. Coleman was quoted as saying.

Mortgage Loans Placed.

Lawrence, Blake & Jewell have placed for the A. C. G. Realty Company $22,300 at 6 per cent. for five years on 150 East Thirty-sixth Street, a two-story clubhouse, for Margaret Currier; $35,000 at 6 per cent. for five years on 421 Lexington Avenue, a four-story business building, for D. D. Davis Construction Company; $76,000 at 6 per cent. for five years on 152-6 East Twenty-second Street, a six-story elevator apartment for the Ranger Realty Corporation; $156,000 at 6 per cent. for five years on 1,884-6 Seventh Avenue, a six-story apartment house.

$1,000,000 Bowling Green Lease.

Approximately $1,000,000 in rentals will be paid by the Exchange Buffet Corporation for restaurant space it has obtained in the Bowling Green building at 5 to 11, running through to Greenwich Street. The lease was made with the Broadway Realty Company and involves part of the basement floor.

The lease begins Sept. 1 and runs for twenty-one years. It calls for an annual payment of $22,500 and $23,000. For the second twenty-one-year period the restaurant concern will pay not less than $23,000 annually.

Plan $700,000 Park Ave. Apartment.

Plans were filed yesterday with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings for a nine-story apartment house to be erected at 45 Park Avenue by the 45 Park Avenue Corporation, owner. The building will occupy a plot 78 by 95 feet and will cost $700,000, according to W. L. Rouse and L. A. Goldstone, the architects.

LATEST DEALING IN REALTY FIELD

Conditions in Mortgage Market Improving—Many 5 Per Cent. Loans Made.

LAMBS' CLUB MORTGAGE

Trading was light in the realty market yesterday, what little activity there was centering in apartments.

In the course of a few weeks it has dropped from the prevailing rate of 6 per cent. to 5½ per cent., and it is understood that the Dry Dock Savings Bank and several other banking institutions in the city have made loans at 5 per cent. The Title Guarantee and Trust Company last week announced it had money to loan at 5½ per cent. and the City of New York in its recent public auction of unused property accepted 75 per cent. of the purchase price on a 5 per cent. mortgage for five years.

A number of mortgages recently filed also bear a 5 per cent. interest rate, all of which has caused realty men to view conditions in a very optimistic manner.

Yesterday's 5 Per Cent. Loans.

Only yesterday Leggett & Howe, Inc., announced the placing of a $300,000 loan at 5 per cent. on the Lambs' Club at 128 to 134 West Forty-fourth Street; $102,000 on the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Eighty-eighth Street; $46,000 on 1 Gramercy Park and $13,500 on 228 Seventh Avenue.

The same firm also placed the following loans at 5½: $150,000 on 54 West Fifty-seventh Street, $100,000 on 117 to 121 West Forty-seventh Street, $66,000 on 1,107 Amsterdam Avenue, $60,000 on 213 and 215 West 113th Street; also the following loans at 6 per cent.: $40,000 on 54 West Ninety-third Street, $55,000 on 213 to 223 East Ninety-fifth Street, and $54,000 on 78 and 80 Cortlandt Street.

Apartment Trading.

Among yesterday's transactions was the sale of the five-story apartment house 48 and 50 Convent Avenue by Isidor Gersten and Hannah Angerman to the Princeton Realty and Mortgage Company. The structure is on a plot 80 by 100, containing suites of four, five and six rooms, accommodating forty families. The yearly rental is about $21,000. The property was held at $130,000. The broker in the transaction was Samuel Kapian.

The five-story apartment house at 43 East 132d Street was sold by Mrs. Lena Loeb to the Athletic Realty Company, Ida Irving Bachrach, Treasurer. The building has a frontage of 43 feet and a depth of 100 feet, arranged in suites of three and four rooms and contains twenty apartments. It yields an annual rental of more than $6,000, and was held at $32,500. Jacob Loeb and John Regnach were the brokers.

Harry J. Schum sold for Sol Freidus and Morris Steinberg 168, 170 and 172 East 112th Street, three five-story double flats and stores, on a plot 66.8 by 100.11. The property was held at $70,000.

The Hudson P. Rose Company purchased from K. Boland the five-story flat at 1,409 Avenue A.

J. Lemle resold for Leopold Loeb the five-story double flat at 324 East Ninety-fourth Street, on a lot 25 by 100.8, between First and Second Avenues, recently acquired from the Charles E. Schramm estate. Mr. Lemle was the broker in both transactions.

The same broker, in conjunction with Schendler & Liebler, sold for Catharine A. Maicke the five-story double flat at 323-A East Eighty-ninth Street, on a lot 25 by 100. It has been in the selling family since 1891.

The Cruikshank Company sold for Emily Morris Gallatin the four-story and basement building at 45 East Thirtieth Street, 19.8 by 98.9, to a client of E. A. Turner, Inc.

The parcel had not changed hands since 1890. The adjoining house at 43 has also been sold by John Lindley to the same purchaser, who plans to improve the combined site.

Herman Brose & Bold, stationers, at 812 Ninth Avenue, have bought that property. It is a four-story building, with store, on a lot 25 by 100, and adjoins the northeast corner of Forty-ninth Street. The purchasers had been tenants in the building for a year.

IDEAL CITY LIFE—
The Normal Way of Living

MEN and Women, during their "prep" school and college years, lead an active life. Their later life, in the big "City," means that they become engrossed in their affairs, and change their mode of living. They lead the sedentary life, which is all wrong. At Jackson Heights, within the City, Golf, Tennis and other opportunities for the healthful outdoor life are now available right at their door, and there they may resume that active, outdoor life in a social atmosphere at once appealing and inspiring that is all to be desired.

SALESMAN OF ABILITY.

A well-established progressive concern, making electric labor-saving machinery is in the market for a salesman who is looking for a genuine sales opportunity. While we want a man who has served his previous connections successfully, we do not want the man who lives on past performances. We want a man who has been unsatisfied with his present, whose mind, energy and will are bent on the future.

Nor do we ask him to deal in futures. We offer to him a section of the best territory at our disposal—Manhattan. It is filled with unworked prospects, 80 per cent of which have never used a machine of our type. The prospects upon which he will call are of the highest class, and the specialty he is to sell is the first in its field, a product of quality and merit.

To the right man we offer a liberal commission account, drawing account. Ahead of him lies opportunity for district sales management and the advantages it carries. If his is a man of enterprise, industry and sales ability the success we believe he can achieve will be worth the best efforts he can possibly give to the job.

In your letter tell us how long you have been in the selling game, in what lines and what your average yearly earnings have been for the last three years. X 2395 Times Annex.

SALESMEN.

A good, clean, high-class proposition, a snappy, fast-selling business service; not a million-dollar deal—not the best proposition in the world, but $50 to $80 sure every week and more if you have it in you.

Post Office Notice

The department has learned of the provisions in force relative to the importation of postage stamps into Russia, such provisions being as follows:

1. All forms of prepayment can be sent only to the address of the People's Commissariat for Foreign Trade and its branch offices.

2. Uncanceled Russian or foreign postage stamps can be sent to private persons or institutions, if stamps are intended for the prepayment of correspondence and are sufficient in number for that purpose; to that end they must be placed on envelopes.

3. Canceled postage stamps are not admitted as mail articles except in the cases mentioned under No. 1.

LAWYER A SUICIDE IN FIVE-STORY FALL

Charles H. Shapiro, 40, a lawyer of Bridgeport, Conn., and a graduate of the Yale University Law School, class of 1903, was instantly killed by falling from his room on the tenth floor of the Hotel Commodore yesterday morning to the five-story extension on the Forty-third Street side of the building. A friend said Mr. Shapiro had been ill and might have been seized with vertigo on leaning out his window, but Assistant Medical Examiner Benjamin Schwartz pronounced the case a suicide.

With Frank Stock of New Haven, a relative, Mr. Shapiro registered at the Commodore last Sunday night on his way to Asbury Park, N. J., for a rest after a nervous breakdown. But he decided to return to Bridgeport, where he has a wife and five children. After breakfast yesterday morning Mr. Stock went to the Grand Central Terminal to buy railroad tickets, leaving Mr. Shapiro sitting in his pajamas. Shortly afterward a maid heard his body strike the roof over the hotel kitchen and gave the alarm.

Mr. Shapiro lived with his family at 160 Washington Avenue, Bridgeport, where he took an active interest in Jewish charitable and philanthropic work. His body will be sent to his home.

Gustave J. Rosen, a lawyer of 233 Broadway, a friend of Mr. Shapiro, said the dead man had been in ill health for some time. Mr. Stock stated that he had left his companion in a state of nervous collapse. Assistant Medical Examiner Schwartz said the sill of the room window had a radiator in front of it and was too wide to permit an accidental fall.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 23.—Charles H. Shapiro was one of the best known lawyers in Connecticut. He was born in Russia on March 5, 1881, and came to this country with his parents when only fifteen months old. Seven years after his arrival his family settled here, where he received his elementary education. He was graduated from the Yale Law School cum laude and was also awarded a gold medal for high scholarship.

Soon afterward he began practicing here. For fifteen years he and a brother maintained law offices here. He was actively interested in charity work, and during the war was a member of the various Liberty Loan committees.

He married Stella Ethel Rosen, daughter of Dr. M. S. Rosen of this city, who is now on his way back from Europe. Mrs. Shapiro and five children, Harriet, 15, Leslie, 10, Myra, 8, Fanmore, 5, and Theodore, 3, survive him.

THOUGHT BECK DEAD, WIFE WED ANOTHER

Mrs. Helen Courtney of 824 Broadway, Brooklyn, obtained from Supreme Court Justice Gannon of that borough, yesterday, an annulment of her marriage to her husband, Hugh Courtney, on the ground that her first husband, George Beck, whom she thought was dead at the time of her second matrimonial venture, is living. Her appeal to the courts to straighten out her marriage tangle came seventeen years after she married Beck and eight years after her second marriage.

Mrs. Courtney told Justice Gannon that she was coming home in a crowded subway train on June 17 with her girl friend, Mrs. Pauline Namm of 878 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn. The train as it approached a station gave a lurch and overturned a fat old woman who was standing beside her. She turned to apologize and was amazed to recognize Beck, her first husband. She was too dumfounded to talk to Beck, but Mrs. Namm saw him later and said he admitted his identity. In corroborating Mrs. Courtney's testimony Mrs. Namm said she afterward visited Beck at his home and had a further talk with him.

Mrs. Courtney testified that she had been married to Beck on March, 1905. They separated seven days after the wedding and Mrs. Courtney said that Beck went West for his health. She had not heard anything about him until the years before her marriage to Courtney on Feb. 10, 1914, when she was told by friends that her first husband had died.

After her unexpected meeting with Beck, Mrs. Courtney said she told her second husband of the incident when she reached home that evening. They talked the matter over and agreed that their marriage was not binding as long as Beck was alive. Neither Courtney nor Beck was at the hearing.

BATTEN

The problem of getting the right people

It's people.

Mr. Carnegie knew that about the steel business. Mr. Morgan knows it about the banking business. Marshall Field recognized it in the retail business.

It's true of every kind of business.

You may go and search for the right people and maybe you can find them. But if your business is one that the public knows, your business will attract people to it.

To advertise is to be seen, to be heard, to be known. Call these things a by-product of advertising if you want to, but the fact that the business that is nationally known is the business that people are proud to say they work for is a fact not to be overlooked.

Once a month, or more frequently, we issue a publication called Batten's Wedge. Each issue is devoted to a single editorial on some phase of business. If you are a business executive and would like to receive copies, write us.

Mr. King C. Gillette,
Boston, Mass.

May 5th, 1921

My dear Mr. Gillette:

I am glad that you asked me about my Gillette razor. The old one I have used, I thought represented the last word in shaving comfort, but the new and improved Gillette certainly is proving to be a genuine revelation.

I am sure you know how well we think of your razors, for last year we presented nearly a thousand Gillette Safety Razors at Christmas time to our various friends and never was there a more genuinely appreciated holiday gift.

Please accept my sincere congratulations on the remarkable strides you have made in improving Gillette Razors.

Sincerely yours,
